

THE PIOCHE WEEKLY RECORD.

VOL. XLVII.

PIOCHE, NEVADA, THURSDAY, JUNE 10, 1897

NO. 35.

DISTRICT COURT.

The trial of the case of James Nesbitt vs. W. M. Davidson was completed on Thursday of last week, late in the evening and was taken under advisement until Saturday when Judge Talbot entered his decision in favor of the plaintiff. The case was over the ownership of the Fraction, or Sleeper mining claim in Ferguson District, supposed now to be valuable ground. It lies on the summit of Lookout mountain between the Monitor and Lookout mines, both valuable properties. Nesbitt Bros. acquired their interest in 1893 under judgments from the Justice's Court at Helena, but the title thus obtained was ruled out. No work was done during 1893 and '94, and on the 1st of January 1895, James Murphy and W. M. Davidson relocated the claim and have since done a large amount of development work. Nesbitt Bros. however had filed notices of non-forfeiture in 1893 and '94 under the laws of Congress passed in those years, and these notices, coupled with assessment work done by them afterwards, decided the case in their favor on the principle of possession.

Defendant took time to file statement on motion for new trial and will appeal the case.

On Friday the case of F. R. McNamee vs. J. Nesbitt & Bro was tried. This was on a claim assigned to plaintiff by John Vietti for a balance due for proceeds of Jim Crow ore shipped to the Hiko Mill three years ago. Judgment was rendered for plaintiff for $384.00 and costs. Defendant took 30 days time to move for a new trial.

On Saturday morning the case of T. E. Edwards vs. John C. Wilson was called for trial. All the parties were present but asked for an hour's time as negotiations were on for a settlement of the case. Time was granted and at one o'clock the case was dismissed. The settlement was based on a recognition of the existing occupants on the surface of the Sally Ann and Jefferson mining claims, and provision was made for immediate platting of the ground into streets and blocks for town purposes.

T. J. Osborne was appointed by the court as guardian ad litem for the defendant in the case of H. A. Cohen vs. Helene Cohen, and required to qualify in a bond of $10,000, and the case was set for Wednesday the 9th. On that day Mrs. Clara of Milwaukee, a sister of Helene Cohen, was appointed general guardian of the person and estate of Helene Cohen and immediately qualified. The case was then presented and the proof warranting it a decree of divorce was entered, and the plaintiff adjudged to pay an endowment of $15,000, payable $5,000 immediately, $5,000 in one year, $5,000 in two years and $2,500 in three years from the date of entering the decree, payments to be secured, together with $150 per month alimony during the lifetime of defendant, and all costs. This money settlement was satisfactory to the guardian.

Robbery at Tuscarora.

Considerable excitement has been caused in this section by a bullion steal from the Dexter mine at the Tuscarora mining camp 60 miles from Elko. The amount missing is in the neighborhood of $40,000. The Superintendent of the mine and another man suspected of the stealing hurriedly left the camp while Sheriff Mateer was on the road between here and Tuscarora with a warrant for their arrest. A telephone message was sent from Elko by the Sheriff to the authorities at that place to arrest the men, but as they could not be held without a warrant the suspected parties took advantage of the delay and left camp. The Sheriff is now out looking for the men and the authorities all along the line have been notified to watch for them. The stealing was done several weeks ago, but no action was taken in the matter until a few days ago, when several attorneys arrived from Salt Lake to attend to the matter.—News.

A Carson Lady's Request.

CARSON, NEVADA, July 10th 1896.
To the Trib Company:
GENTLEMEN, On the 11th of June I sprained my foot and ankle very severely, turned the foot clear over. I tried a number of applications which ordinarily relieve sprains, but without effect. At the end of three days the swelling was greater than ever, the pain intolerable, and I could not walk. The whole foot was double its natural size, and black in color. I then tried Trib. In a few days I was entirely well, and to-day that ankle is better and stronger than the other. The Trib seems to have renewed the limb. Use my name in recommending Trib. Keep on advertising till all the world has knowledge of the great value—the great blessing—of this new remedy.
Yours truly,
ANN RICEY.

The foregoing is of especial interest to Carson people. The testimony of Mrs. Ricey a lady who is held in highest esteem by all who know her, has been confirmed, if confirmation were needed, by many others during the past year.—Carson News.

The Maryland political contest is now on. The round-faced, bullet-headed Wellington called a conference and had a meeting of his clans wherein was discussed the way, and means, the schemes, etc., which were to be adopted in the carrying of the State this year for the Republican party; and on Tuesday afternoon, the majestic, awe-inspiring, but always cute Gorman had his clans in conclave, wherein counter plans were discussed, and counter schemes suggested; each party feeling the greatest confidence in their ability for a successful consummation of political chicannery; both look for and hope for victory.

Wellington's course on Cuba has shown him to be, as a statesman, the shallowest of the shallow; a man of extremely ordinary ability, and intellectually below grade. He, however, offsets this in a manner by his control of the political machine. Gorman, on the other hand, is handicapped by his ultra Bourbonism, but he is the brightest Bourbon in the United States, and goes far and beyond the ordinary moss-back never-say-die Jacksonian Bourbon. As remarked before the contest in Maryland bids fair to become one of the most notable that has occurred in the politics of any State in some years.—Silver Knight.

Senator Cannon of Utah has turned tail on the tariff question. He was the standard bearer of high tariff in Utah was elected Senator as a Republican and extreme high tariff champion.

The Congressional Record contains this admission:
Senator Chandler then said: "May I ask the Senator from Utah a question?"

"Certainly," replied Senator Cannon.

Mr. Chandler—I heard the Senator talk of robbery a little while ago with reference to the tariff. Does the Senator mean that the farmer has been robbed all these years by the tariff? Is that the Senator's argument?"

Mr. Cannon—Yes, sir; decidedly.

Mr. Chandler—When did the Senator first think that the American tariff system was a robbery of the farmer?"

Mr. Cannon—Just as soon as the Senator gave sufficient attention to the subject to understand the truth of it.

Last year the daughter of Col. A. G. Mills, Past Commander of Lafayette post No. 140 of this city, in behalf of the post laid a chaplet of flowers upon the tomb of Lafayette in Paris. This year that graceful function was performed by the American University club of Paris, with Embassador Porter at its head. Nothing could be more appropriate than that. At the time when we are honoring our soldier dead, respect should be paid by Americans to the memory of the gallant young Frenchman who abandoned home and country to fight the battle of the young Republic.—New York Mail and Express.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER.

The Lesson a Big Dog Tried to Teach a Little One.

Two dogs are still held in pleasant recollection in Melrose, Mass. One was a shaggy, lumbering elephantine Newfoundland named Major, and the other a sleek, wiry little spaniel called "Kikie." Both Major and Kikie have long since passed to their reward, but this story of their friendship is still told by those who knew them.

A few hundred yards from the home of the woman who owned the dogs was a railroad crossing. Kikie had the bad habit of rushing down the street to this crossing whenever he heard the whistle of an approaching train. He would then dash along beside the cars and bark furiously. Many a time he had been punished for it, but the roar of a train was always too much for his good resolutions.

One day—the pitber that goes too often to the well, you know—some portion of the flying train struck him. He fell into the ditch beside the track, and there he lay until old Major's barking attracted the attention of a passing friend.

The little dog was taken home, his wounds dressed, and his battered frame nursed back to health. During his convalescence Major was always with him, and doubtless often said: "I told you so," and "I hope this will teach you a lesson."

But, alas for Major's hopes! Kikie was no sooner out-of-doors again than he resumed his dangerous habit. Major, however, had apparently made up his mind that moral suasion was useless, and physical force must be employed.

The next time Kikie started for the crossing Major followed. The little dog was light and quick-footed, and "got into his stride," as the horsemen say, in the first few yards. Major, on the other hand, was heavy and slow at the start, and before he was under full headway, Kikie was 50 yards ahead.

But there was conscious rectitude and stern resolve, and the force of a moral principle in Major's aid. He doubled himself up and let himself out in a way that was good to see, and he overtook Kikie within ten yards of the crossing.

With one blow of his paw he battered his small friend over, placed his great foot on the little dog's chest, and held him down while the train rushed by. Kikie lay perfectly still. When the last car had passed old Major removed his paw with a bark and a growl which said as plainly as speech: "There, you little fool, can't you learn anything? Do you want to get hit by the cars again?" and Kikie got up and followed Major home with his tail between his legs.

Many a time all this was repeated, to the delight of those who saw it. Kikie never failed to get the best start, but Major always caught him before the crossing was reached, always knocked him over and held him down till the whole train was safely past. Kikie never learned wisdom, but Major never gave him up as "past reformation."—Youth's Companion.

AFRAID OF HIMSELF.

Mother Had Always Told Him He Was Reckless.

A slim, middle-aged man with a new bicycle suit had stood for an hour in front of the emergency hospital. Every now and then he wiped his eyes and gazed at the building. Taking his handkerchief he carefully dusted off a place on the curbstone and sat down. His persistent watching attracted the attention of one of the attaches of the institution, who went out to inquire his business.

"This is the emergency hospital, isn't it?" said the stranger.

"Yes."

"And it's likely that the ambulance will go out before very long, is it not?"

"It's liable to go out at any minute. But you can't go riding around in it merely for fun."

"Oh, I don't want to ride in it. But I want to be on the safe side. The truth of the matter is that I have a reckless nature and I have to curb it. Mother always said I was foolhardy, and my wife is constantly telling me that if I were allowed to go ahead and do as I please I'd be a perfect dare-devil. So, knowing my disposition as I do, there is nothing left except for me to observe extraordinary precaution. I've had my fourth lesson on the bicycle and I'm going out on the street for the first time this afternoon. I haven't any particular route laid out and I always like to see things done just as promptly and with as little commotion as possible. What I propose to do is to follow the ambulance around wherever it goes, and if I happen to need it I'll be right there, handy. I will be spared all needless delay and the driver will not be put to the inconvenience of an extra trip to say nothing of the wear and tear that we'll be saving on the telephone."—Washington Star.

With Spring Coming.
The flimsy materials, such as muslins, bareges, etc., and even very light silks, flounced skirts, are the latest innovation.

A new use for chiffon has just cropped up. It is now made to serve as a lining to spangled tulle and lace fashions.

Glaze kid gloves in tan and brown shades are used for street wear—two-button length. The white are not so much worn in the daytime. For evening wear both glaze and suede are fashionable.

Lace is paired with jewels till it becomes a dewy delicious maze, and every seam or bolero or belt is an excuse for them. The opal, with its capricious color changes, is high in favor. It ties one to no particular gown, it is most amenable, and only the "real thing" is to be had in this most beautiful of stones. But for the purpose of millinery there are still countless other gems from which to choose. Home jewelry is dainty work.—Chicago Record.

THIRTEEN SUPERSTITIOUS MEN.

Would Not Go to Dinner Until the Fourteenth Guest Appeared.

"This matter of superstition always makes me laugh," said a traveler the other day when some one spoke of never liking to do anything on Friday. "I made a trip of 15,000 miles last summer with a party of 13 others, making 13 in all, and we started on a Friday and never missed a train or a boat or a meal or had an ache or pain among us the whole time."

Then he told a laughable story, says an exchange.

"It had been the custom of the survivors of the old national rifles to meet each year on the anniversary of our mastering into service in the war of the rebellion and enjoy a dinner and swap reminiscences near and remote. Several years ago I had the boys to my home and had prepared the very best dinner I knew how to give. There were usually 16 or 17 survivors at such a gathering, but this time when we were about to enter the dining-room somebody counted noses and discovered we were 13 all told. Now, those other 12 men were brave and courageous gentlemen, who had faced cannon unflinchingly and were afraid of nothing tangible, but not a single man of them was willing to enter that room. At last, after a half-hour's wait, during which my dinner was rapidly approaching the spoiled stage, another man came and in we went. Now, that man who made the fourteenth in the party and broke the unlucky spell, according to the 12 other guests, was Charles Alexander, and before the dinner was concluded he had to be carried home and in two months he was dead. All the others are living yet."

SAVED BY A PET GOOSE.

This Much-Maligned Bird Rescues a Man from Fire.

Henry J. Johnson, who lives near Cheocent Center, was saved by a pet goose from cremation in his barn recently, says the New York Press. Mr. Johnson owns a large gray goose that has been "brought up by hand." The bird has developed a strong attachment for its owner and will leave the flock to follow him about the farm. The other day a severe thunderstorm passed over the place and Mr. Johnson hurried to the barn to put up the horse. Suddenly there was a sharp flash and a severe crash of thunder directly overhead.

A member of the family a few moments afterward glancing from a rear window saw the goose come screaming from the barn, fly through the rain to the house and then back again to the barn. This action was repeated several times before the family decided to investigate. On entering the barn they found it filled with smoke. Lightning had struck a rafter, and, passing downward, had set fire to some clapboards. The flames, which had gained considerable headway, were extinguished by prompt action. Mr. Johnson was found lying on the floor, unconscious, and in a few minutes more the structure about him would have been ablaze. The lightning stripped the feathers from half a dozen chickens on an adjacent roost without injuring the birds. Mr. Johnson will recover.
