Peace and prosperity are better than war and ruin.

Every cloud has a silver lining—for the man who sells umbrellas—this year.

Saturday night overflows the moving picture theaters and the bathtubs of this great republic.

The present year is not content with bringing along new disasters; it is even repeating old ones.

A scientist says man is getting smaller. But not in his own conceit of which there is ample proof.

Unless auto accidents decrease it may be necessary to equip pedestrians with fenders and headlights.

A Philadelphia dentist says that the auto loosens teeth. A pedestrian is lucky if that's all it does to him.

A New York doctor says that no man being never froth at the mouth. Some of them, however, speak with a fine spray.

Out in California an actress was married 30 minutes after receiving a proposal. Evidently a movie actress who "speeded up."

Germany has placed a special tax on bachelors. It seems to be getting so that the whole world has it in for unutterably selfish old things.

An Assyriologist finds that it was Noah and not Adam who ate the apple. It is now up to the friends of Mrs. Noah to establish an alibi for her.

An archeologist says Paul was bow-legged, an affliction which may have detracted from his platform appearance, but in no way lessened his power as a preacher.

The crusade to induce the farmers to "live at home" is gradually succeeding, but we believe the movement to induce the city women to stay at home more is going to be defeated.

Avarice brings its own retribution. The mosquito that allows its whole attention to be concentrated upon drawing blood is easily swatted. The same is true of men and nations.

After reading the front page of the newspaper you are convinced that a man who has nothing worse to complain of than the trouble he is having with his motor car is pretty lucky.

A New England man, who is just dead at the age of one hundred and four, voted for 21 presidents. However a voter just attaining his majority might yet beat that record in Mexico.

A mirror set at a dangerous turn in a Pennsylvania road warns automobile motorists. Unless boys are not the same as they used to be it is sure to be a hard matter to keep that warning intact.

And now they're accusing poor old Bill Shakespeare of being one of the original wearers of the low-necked shirt. Some poor deceased notable is always getting accusations in the neck.

Have you ever noticed that one great ambition of some cartoonists seems to be to write the signature on their cartoons in such undecipherable hieroglyphics that nobody can read them?

Another evidence of the wonderful versatility of woman is that she can give 18 hours a day to thinking about clothes and her baby at the same time, and cook three meals while she is resting.

A Chicago physician says that strapping is helping to wreck the anatomy of the American people. Probably its defenders will claim that it helps, on the contrary to make a strapping race.

Some may maintain that there are no modern miracles but the clergyman who refused a fortune of millions because he did not want the responsibility of wealth, comes very near to being one.

The Austrian government has set a price of $1,000 on the head of Gabriele D'Annunzio, the Italian poet. Evidently Austria has no use for poets judging from the low value she puts on their heads.

Gertrude Atherton says the time is coming when a woman of genius will not be patted on the head like a dog that can walk on his hind legs. Still, there is a great deal of affection in the pat the dog gets.

In addition to the other horrors and misfortunes of the times we are now informed that the soft crab may become extinct. Then, indeed will the cap of the gastronomical world's nose be filled to the brim.

A western hygiene expert says the average woman of the future will be plump but not fat. In other words she will be modeled after little Buttercup who is still operetta lovers know as a plump and pleasing person.

A Pennsylvania preacher who receives a salary of $10 a year has been ordered by a court to pay to his divorced wife $1 a week alimony. There's a nice little problem in math puzzles and in making ends meet.

A court has decided that a man has a legal right to swear in his own household. Sure, that's why rocking chairs were invented.

Little girls may be as averse to school as are little boys, but they have the diplomacy of their sex and so they conceal the fact.

The "personage high in authority, whose name cannot be quoted," has again assumed a commanding position in the news of the day.

A Pennsylvania woman who was struck by lightning says such shocks will cure rheumatism. We are willing to take her word for it.

It is not an uncommon thing to find a girl worrying about next winter's styles, while her daddy is worrying about the cost of bacon and coal.

In other words, paragraphs are not necessarily bigger foots than other people, but merely have more opportunities to give themselves away.

When a woman lets it be known that she married her John to reform him, she ought to go the limit and make monthly reports of progress.

Fascinating simplicity is to be the keynote in millinery this fall, so we are told. Fascinating, of course, but simple? Well—we have to be shown.

Possibly the objection of jacksies in the American navy to sleeping in pajamas was that it seemed too much like wearing a uniform 24 hours a day.

Crime has decreased in Great Britain since the outbreak of the war. Is that a reflection on the men at front or a compliment to those who remain behind?

A man who hired an experienced lawyer and then lost his suit says that law books are found in sheep as a tribute to the mental qualities of the people who go to law.

Comparing work of some of the alleged "comic" artists with fabulous reports of the salaries they draw one judges they are a good deal more successful at drawing salaries than drawing pictures.

The discovery in Buffalo that thirty manufacturers of redhots have been using horse meat for the purpose and making incredible profits is unappetizing to those who like to fancy their redhots made of pork reassuring to people whose favorite song is "I did not raise my dog to be a sausage."

BULGARS CAPTURE SERBIAN CAPITAL

OCCUPATION OF NISH OPENS ROUTE FOR CENTRAL POWERS TO SOFIA AND TURKEY.

The Bulgarian and German Main Armies Have Effected a Junction and Campaign Probably Will Move at Faster Pace.

London.—The Bulgarians have occupied Nish, the Serbian war capital, which gives them complete control of the railway from Prahovo, on the Danube, and thus opens a through route for the central powers to Sofia and Constantinople.

In addition, the Bulgarian and German main armies have effected a junction at Krivivir, so that the campaign, which has been somewhat slower than expected, probably will move at a faster pace. In fact, except for the southern part of Serbia, the invasion is already gathering more headway, and despite Serbian resistance, the invading armies have all made considerable progress.

More than half of Serbia is now in possession of the invaders, and it is said in Berlin that the Serbians have an open line of less than seventy miles for retreat into Montenegro. Should they seek refuge in that country they would be menaced by Austrian forces, which already have begun an attack along the northern and western Montenegrin frontiers.

In the south, however, the allied forces appear to be too strong for the Bulgarians, who admit that they are faced by superior numbers.

More allied troops are being sent from Saloniki to the scene of the fighting in the hope that they will be able by the capture of Velez to compel the Bulgarians, who advanced west of Uskup, to retire and clear the Saloniki-Mitrovitza railway, so that assistance can be sent to the Serbian northern army.

There is also lack of news concerning the Russian expedition, which was reported early in the week on the Roumanian frontier, while Roumania, like Greece, is maintaining her neutrality in the face of agitations in the country for intervention.

People who use Peruna

Mrs. T. French, R. R. 1, Hickory Point, Tenn., writes: "I am happy to tell you that I am cured of catarrh. Having been afflicted with catarrh and stomach trouble for seven years, and after having tried four different doctors, who only relieved me for a little while, I gave up all hope of being cured. I was induced to try Peruna, and to my great surprise I am now entirely well. My health never was better."

FOR INDIGESTION

Mrs. W. R. Whitehead, R. R. 1, Pryor, Oklahoma, writes: "I am happy to tell you that I keep free from my old stomach trouble; feel no catarrhal symptoms at all. I am able to do my work, eat and drink what I want, and rejoice to know that I found a sure cure in your valuable medicine. I think it saved my life. By beginning in time with Peruna I was cured sound and well."

Are Strong and Happy

The Peruna Company, Columbus, Ohio. Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna in tablet form.
