

SALT LAKE TRAGEDY

THE SHOOTING OF WALTER DINWOODEY.

By Harry Hinds, Formerly of Butte—All The Parties Concerned are Well Known And the Shooting Caused the Greatest Surprise.

The Salt Lake Herald of Monday gives a full account of the tragedy by which Harry Hynds, formerly of Butte, killed Walter Dinwoodey, as related briefly in the Standard. The account in the main is as follows:

It appears that on Wednesday last, Mr. Hynds went up to Butte, but returning a day earlier than he expected, arrived here on the regular Union Pacific passenger train at 9:05 yesterday morning. He started to walk up town, but on account of the snow storm concluded to go directly home and spend the day. He hailed a gurney, and, driving up town purchased some cigars, greeted a few friends and was then driven to his home, arriving there a little before 10 o'clock. He tried the front door, but found it locked, which was unusual, and, using his own key, found that the door was locked on the inside. He then rapped on the door and after a little delay his wife opened it.

She was in her night robes, and stepping into the hall Hynds kissed her and they walked on until a spare bedroom was reached. The husband noticed that his wife seemed nervous, but attached no importance to it. She remarked that she had slept in the spare bedroom and stepping in said she must be getting ready to go to church. Hynds followed her in, and observing an empty beer bottle on the table, remarked jocularly that she must have been drinking. Mrs. Hynds replied that she had drunk some beer the night before. The husband then called her attention to the two glasses on the table, and she replied that a lady friend, giving her name, had been there.

"Does she smoke cigarettes?" asked Hynds, who saw several of them on the table.

At this the wife became very much agitated, so much so that her husband noticed it, but she answered that the cigarettes were brought by her lady friend.

Hynds was puzzled, but did not attach any importance to the circumstance, and walked away without pursuing the subject further. He looked back, however, and saw his wife pull the portiere over the doorway opening into a closet and bathroom. He called back, asking what she was doing, and she answered that she was only getting out her dress. This was so palpably false that he walked to her, determined now to learn the cause of her agitation, which had all the while increased. He threw back the curtain, lighted a match and was about to step into the bath room when his wife stepped forward and blew out the match. Hynds now, for the first time, thoroughly convinced that there was something of great importance that his wife was concealing from him, threw back his hand striking her on the chin or mouth, and striking another match stepped into the room.

There, in the farthest corner, was Dinwoodey, partially clad. Hynds recognized him and Dinwoodey said, in substance:

"Well, you've caught me. We might just as well make the best of it and fix this thing up."

Hynds called him into the room and instantly ordered him to leave the place. Meanwhile, the faithless wife was on the verge of hysteria, and when her husband ordered her to leave, too, she commenced wailing and crying:

"What will become of me; what shall I do?"

It was just as this most critical juncture, when the husband was using all of his self-control and firmness to keep from committing violence, that Dinwoodey made an unfortunate remark which, undoubtedly, precipitated the tragedy. He was finishing dressing, and to the woman's wails he replied: "Well, Maude, you come with me, I'll take care of you."

This broke down Hynds' resolution to do no violence. He drew his revolver and killed young Dinwoodey, and gave himself up to the authorities.

HE WAS FROM BUTTE.

But His Sporting Proclivities Were Limited—The McGarry Sale.

Henry P. Ries, administrator of the Sarah McGarry estate, arrived in the city Tuesday evening and attempted to sell the building now occupied by the Anaconda Gambling house, Wednesday as advertised. Bidding was slow. Frank McKee opened the pot at $500, and by gradual raises the bid was raised to $700 by John Dauterman. This seemed to be the limit. McKee offered to play the administrator a game of "seven up" to determine whether he (McKee) should pay $1,000 or $850, but Ries declined. After waiting some time and receiving no further bids he decided to adjourn the sale, as the property had been appraised at $1,800 and he did not care to sell it at the figures offered.

UPPER MADISON NEWS

LOCAL ROUND-UP OF THE VALLEY.

Mulvy and Mills Have a Copper Lead—Raising a Fund to Build a Church—Some Rumored Placer Deals—Social Matters Lively—Personal and General.

ENNIS, March 3.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Rev. J. J. Bowker was a visitor at the home of Mr. Will Gilmer last Saturday and Sunday. He intended to hold services Sunday, but was prevented from doing so by the awful storm which came up Saturday night. He left for Pony Monday, and will unite two couples in the bonds of wedlock to-day.

A "pancake" social was held at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Ennis on the evening of the 18th of last month. About fifty people were present. Mixed in the pancake batter was a diamond ring, Miss Mary Vetter being the lucky person who got the ring. The evening was spent in game playing and singing, everybody enjoying themselves immensely. The proceeds were about $15, and went to the ladies of the Guild of Trinity Mission.

Messrs. Mulvy and Mills have uncovered a first-rate looking copper lead recently. It is located near Morgan gulch, and assays 90 per cent copper. There have been several extensions located and quite a boom is expected when the snow goes off.

Will Cooley and John Pryce were in the county seat several days last week. Although they kept pretty still about their business, a valley rumor is to the effect that they sold their Ruby creek placer claims to Thos. Teal and T. Benton Leiter.

Bicycling is going to be the fad the coming summer, there having been four new ones ordered during the past week. Will Gilmer, Ed. Davis, Bert Maynard and Miss Susie Long being the parties who are going to learn to ride a wheel.

Quite a number of young people organized a "surprise" party and met at the home of Mrs. Thos. Whitney, last Friday night. Dancing was the order of the evening, and before going home an elegant supper was served by the hostess.

Wm. Ennis and wife returned from Virginia City, last Friday, where they had been for nearly two weeks. Mr. Ennis attending to his duties as one of the board of appraisers, while Mrs. Ennis visited friends.

A social, for the benefit of the M. E. church was held at the home of Jas. Oliver last Wednesday evening. About thirty people were present and the sum of $15 was cleared by the entertainment.

Several valley people were in Virginia attending to court matters last week. Judging from the satisfied expression on some of their faces, things must have gone their way.

Two little boys are ahead a sure-ingle and horse-blanket, owing to the forgetfulness or pre-occupation of their sister's cavalier at a recent social.

The worst storm of the season struck the valley some time Saturday night, the thermometer going down to 20 degrees below zero.

A young man returning from the social last Wednesday night, awoke a great many people by singing a parody on "Sweet Marie."

Burt Mitchell returned, last week, from Bozeman, where he has held a position as clerk with J. W. Tilton for the past two months.

Prof. F. W. McFarland has been engaged to teach the school in the Maynard district. His term begins on the 6th of May.

Jeff Allenberg came down from the ranch of the Liverpool Syndicate and went to the city on Daylight gulch, yesterday.

The church building fund now in the hands of the treasurer of the Guild of Trinity Mission, amounts to $340.

Mrs. John Hartman and Miss Nellie Switzer have been visiting friends in Bozeman for the past ten days.

O. B. Varney, who has been quite sick for the past week, is now on the road to recovery.

Miss Lena Gilmer and Miss Bessie Farrell visited the Ennis school last Friday.

Miss May Bull, who is teaching school at Darnutzer, is expected home by the 20th.

W. Macatee moved from Meadow creek to the Chervoils place last week.

KINGS DAUGHTERS.

Turn the Cemetery Water Over to the City.

At the last meeting of the city council steps were taken looking to the transfer of the cemetery water works to the city. The necessary papers are not yet complete but their completion will be followed by the council's acceptance. It is understood that the council proposes to take steps looking to the improvement of the cemetery forthwith—in fact the matter was informally discussed at the recent meeting of the council.

Following is the financial statement of the ladies, as presented by the secretary, Mrs. McNulty:

Nothing can be said too complimentary concerning this organization. Each individual member has reason to be proud of what has been accomplished. It is certain that Virginia and Virginians are proud of them. In this connection it should be mentioned that Mrs. Thomas Duncan, the president of the society, and Mrs. Flora McNulty, the secretary, have been indefatigable. Unstinted praise is due to all members, but to these two ladies in particular. Nor should it be forgotten that the work was begun during the administration of Mrs. J. T. Connor, the founder and patroness of the local organization. Those who have loved ones resting in the silent city on the hill will ever hold the Kings Daughters in affectionate remembrance.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the King's Daughters at a recent meeting:

Whereas, the completion of the work of supplying water to the Virginia City cemetery presents a suitable opportunity for us, the King's Daughters, to express our appreciation for the aid we have received; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the Union Circle of King's Daughters, do hereby tender our thanks to the people of Virginia City and vicinity for their uniform kindness, liberal patronage, and generous subscriptions and donations.

Resolved, That we express and record our hearty appreciation for the untiring zeal and faithfulness that our president, Mrs. T. Duncan and our ex-president, Mrs. J. T. Connor have taken in the work.

Resolved, That in recognition of the efficient and valuable services rendered the society by the trustee, Mr. W. A. Clark, we extend to him our earnest thanks.

Resolved, That our sincere thanks are due to Mr. W. W. Cheely for his many kindly notices in the MADISONIAN.

Resolved, That we extend our thanks
