

IN MEMORY OF HARRY HARVEY VAN MATRE.

There is a new made grave in the cemetery,
Where he has been laid away
To sleep 'til God shall call him,
From slumber at dawn of day.

But beyond death's dark shadow,
Where his touch is not permitted to come,
He has awakened, never to suffer pain again,
In His father's house at home.

O if Adam had resisted temptation,
What a happy life we would have led,
We would shed no tears, and know no sorrow;
And never weep over the graves of our dead.

But it is our God who takes them,
And it must be all for the best;
For it is in love He calls them
To enter into His rest.

For Jesus died to redeem us
And make us fit for heaven;
And if we trust in Him
Our sins will be forgiven.

And Harry said he was prepared to go
And was not afraid to die,
And Jesus, in whom he trusted,
Took him to His home beyond the sky.

A few years ago, at a revival,
He realized that his sins were forgiven;
That God had pardoned them, for Jesus sake,
And he was one of the heirs of heaven.

And on his face was a bright, happy smile
When his friends came to congratulate him, then,
But he will smile in fadeless beauty
When they shall greet him again.

And his mother, wife and friends know
That there is a happy time coming
When death's severed hearts will reunite,
Never to part again, for death cannot enter

Those mansions in the city of light.
And his hands that grew cold and lifeless
Will clasp theirs once more;
And his "good-by mamma" will be exchanged for welcome home
When they meet on the other shore.

"THORNS AND ORANGE BLOSSOMS"

A new dramatization of "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," from Bertha M. Clay's novel, by Lem B. Parker, is one of the new Rowland & Clifford's productions which will come to the Opera House Friday Nov. 26. This play is making a telling impression, and is called "One of the best comedy dramas of the year."

The dramatization is in four splendidly mounted acts. At St. Phillip's Hotel; on the Mediterranean; in the drawing room at Riverswell; at the Mission, and the Cottage at St. Byno's. An exceptionally fine company interprets the various roles.

YATES WILL NOT HANG

DEATH PENALTY WILL NEVER BE EXECUTED.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 18.—In an interview with a representative of the Huntington Herald-Dispatch tonight Capt. Dawson of the penitentiary stated that Isaac N. Yates, now confined in the penitentiary under sentence of death for criminally assaulting his daughter in McDowell county, would not hang on the 3rd of December. Yates is thought to be of unsound mind and the law will not execute a man of unsound mind. Yates has twice been reprieved and will probably be given a life imprisonment.
