MEN'S SUITS $10 SUITS

IN THE WINDOW devoted to displaying men's goods, there is a representative showing of Men's and Young Men's Suits selling at $10. We believe they are at the top of the ladder for good values. We believe there is more downright wear and style mixed up with them than you will find in the ordinary suit at this price. This being a department store, and satisfied with department store profits, we don't delude it possible to match these values elsewhere. We're willing to rest the case in your hands. We have probably looked closer at these suits than you would, and we haven't found a flaw.

As to the suits.

2 and 3 piece styles. COATS are full, half and skeleton lined, fronts cannot break PANTS are cut in the prevailing fashion; some have turned up bottoms and belt laps attached.

NEXT TO COURT-HOUSE. J. M. HARTLEY & SON. FAIRMONT, WEST VA.

ST. LOUIS, June 30.—The Liberty bell will take a mute but prominent part in the World's Fair Fourth of July celebration. With impressive ceremonies the Declaration of Independence will be read in the Pennsylvania building over Liberty bell by some one of the prominent Americans asked to participate in the celebrations. The reading of the declaration and other Liberty bell ceremonies to be devised later will be the principal feature of the day on the plateau of States.

In all the State buildings exercises of a more or less elaborate nature will be had at different times throughout the day. In the evening independent pyrotechnic displays will be had at each building. The celebration will bring together the most eloquent orators of America. The orators of the day will be Bourke Cochran, of New York, United States Senator John C. Spooner, of Wisconsin, United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, Congressman J. P. Dolliver, of Iowa, Col. W. C. P. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, Clark Howell, of Atlanta, Ga., Congressman John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, United States Senator John W. Daniels, of Virginia, Congressman Champ Clark, of Missouri, William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, and Governor Richard Yates, of Illinois. These distinguished speakers will address the people from different localities on the grounds, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Complete Parade Plans. Arrangements have been completed for the big military parade which will immediately precede the speaking. All military and cadet organizations on the World's Fair grounds at the time and the United States army troops at Jefferson barracks will participate. Special music will be furnished by a number of bands throughout the day. The day's celebration will conclude with a brilliant illumination, beginning at 8 o'clock in the evening. The central point of the display will be in the main picture, in front of the Cascades, which will be illuminated for the first time with red, green and opal electric lights.

Looks good, tastes good, it is good—Hall's ice cream.

Trying to Get Up Steam. The Democratic club got a quorum last evening for the first time since its organization six weeks ago. The required nine were present for a few minutes about 9:30 o'clock and after trying to crack a few jokes, one of the members left, thus adjourning the meeting.

Odd Fellows' Ball. The ball game between Marion lodge No. 11 and Palatine lodge No. 84, I. O. O. F., will be played at Traction Park on Friday, July 8. Both lodges have excellent material for teams and many names in the line-up will be remembered as old time stars, as well as some of more recent date. It was the intention at first to charge admission to the grounds, but they have now decided to make no charge whatever, the only cost being car fare. They expect an immense crowd.

Died From Cancer of the Tongue. George Morgan, aged 62, died at the county almshouse this morning, of cancer of the tongue. Morgan was taken to the almshouse some time in March of the present year. When the County Court visited the place in April, the man asked to be taken to a hospital where an operation could be performed, taking his tongue out. Arrangements were made and he was brought to this city, but the physicians who examined him said there was no use and he was taken back. He grew steadily worse until he died. Morgan had no relatives around here. He was a soldier in a New York regiment in the civil war. He will be buried in the potters' field at the infirmary.

A Dog Fight. Quite a little commotion was raised on Locust avenue last night by the noise occasioned by a dog fight. A well known resident who is the owner of a vicious bull dog was coming out the avenue after the dog which had gotten loose from him. As the dog passed a certain home a chuffy pug ran out and pretty soon the two were so mixed up they looked like the same dog. The owner of the large dog, a policeman and several neighbors were soon on the scene but it was several minutes before the bull dog would let go. As is usual the affair aroused considerable interest.

The Other Side. The man who was spoken of in an article yesterday as trying to get rid of his mother by sending her to the asylum, came in this morning and stated his side of the case. He is able to prove that he has done all in his power for her, even to renting a home for her and allowing her to use his credit at a local grocery. She has threatened the lives of him and his wife and he believes her undoubtedly out of her right mind. The witnesses against her on the insanity charge were among the leading citizens of this community, one of them being a prominent minister in this city. The man says he is no longer able to control her, and that he desires her to be taken where they are prepared to take the proper care of her.

Shot an Eagle. Edmund Watson, Jr., of Smithton, Monongalia county, shot an eagle this morning which measured 6 ft. 8 in. from tip to tip. It had endeavored to catch some small chickens near the home of Mr. Ed. Watson, Sr., and had alighted in an oak tree near by when seen by Mr. Watson.

Buried in Fairmont Cemetery. Larie Merico, the Italian from Newburg, who died at the Miners' Hospital Monday night, was buried in the old Fairmont cemetery this afternoon by Undertaker Jones. No word was received from Newburg.

All Are Invited. At the Presbyterian church Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock there will be the usual service, preparatory to the Quarterly Communion next Sabbath. All are cordially invited.

Game Postponed. The game between Fairmont and Tunnelton scheduled for this afternoon at Traction Park, was postponed on account of threatening weather.

Rev. W. J. Eddy is attending Sunday School convention at Ton this week.

Prof. U. S. Fleming day.

Mr. Cole, formerly of Barbour county, is a prominent young business man of Clarksburg and is well known here. He was a traveling representative of the Acme Publishing Company, of Morgantown, for several years. He is now secretary of the West Virginia Casualty Company, whose principal office is in Clarksburg.

The bride wore a handsome gown of French mousseline madeen traine and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. She wore neither gloves nor veil. The bridesmaid was dressed in pink mull and carried pink carnations. After the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room where delectable pink and white refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Cole left on No. 4 for Clarksburg where they boarded a west bound train for St. Louis and later they will visit relatives in Arkansas. After their visit they will return to Clarksburg, where they will make their future home.

The bride is one of our most prominent and best known young ladies. Both have a host of friends in this city who extend their best wishes for their happiness in their new life. Those present from out of the city for the wedding last evening were Misses Lora Cole and Myrtle Lough, of Morgantown; C. G. Coffman, of Clarksburg; John W. Cole, father of the groom, and Misses Clementa and Saphrona Cole, of Simpson, Taylor county, and Misses Lora and Pearl Bartlett, of Barbour county.

Traction Park Dance. This evening the regular public dance will be given at Traction Park. The public is invited but no objectionable characters will be allowed on the platform. The management retains the privilege of canceling the tickets of such people or of any one who raises a disturbance. Good order and a respectable crowd, are what the management will have or nothing. These dances have been carried on quietly and it is the intention to keep them so.

THAT MONSTER WHALE.

Some Interesting Facts About It. The huge monster that has been on exhibition in our city for the past few days, has attracted no little attention; and yet, such an object lesson should attract more attention than it does. There is not a child in the city, but what should see the monster of the deep, nor an adult either for that matter. Capt. Anderson, who has the whale on exhibition, took this monster from the water and has traveled for the past sixteen years exhibiting it in twenty-seven different States; talking to thousands of different people. He is thoroughly versed in natural history so far as the whale is concerned and takes great pleasure in giving a complete history of his whale. Not only of this specimen, but of the whale family generally. This monster whale was captured off Cape Cod in about fifteen fathoms of water. Whales are seldom found so far South as this one was; their home being around Greenland, Iceland and the Norwegian coast. No person who pays this monster a visit, will regret the time and the small amount charged for his exhibition.

VAST NEW GOLD FIELD DISCOVERED

TANANA'S WEALTH SAID TO EXCEED THAT OF THE KLONDIKE.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 29.—More gold will be produced by the Tanana district eventually than by the Klondike, in the opinion of R. A. Chisholm, the first man to come out since the real discovery was made a year ago. Mr. Chisholm is in partnership with Ed. Crane, the discoverer of the riches of the Tanana, and his associates, Charles Mack and George Ashenfelder. He is an old Klondiker and went into the Tanana as soon as he heard of Crane's strike last year. Mr. Chisholm describes the Tanana as a district with enormous possibilities, or, more accurately, probabilities, as the experimental stage has long since passed. The spring clear-up he figures at not less than $250,000, and he thinks it may reach $500,000. The summer product, he believes, will be still larger, and most of the mine owners are only getting ready to mine. The workings of the Tanana are different from those of the Klondike. The gravel beds containing the pay streak lie much deeper under the muck, and are themselves much thicker. On the richest digging of the Klondike the gravel beds were but a few inches thick. In the Tanana they are from 2 to 3 feet thick. The pay streak has been found as deep as 60 feet. For this reason mining is more difficult and expensive than on the Klondike, but Mr. Chisholm believes that as much gold lies beneath a given area of surface in the Tanana as under a similar area in the Klondike. It will require more digging and washing to get it, that is all. The panning so far has been extremely rich, and the area of known gold-bearing gravel is constantly widening through new discoveries. The diggings so far are mainly on five creeks—Fairhaven, Pedro, Gold Stream, Clark and Chatham. Much prospecting work has been done upon others and has disclosed the fact that they will be as rich producers as the ones named. The area already prospected with favorable results is already much larger than the Klondike, and other creeks have not yet been scratched. The whole country for 100 miles square has been located.

A. Unanimous Election? Roosevelt and Fairbanks have been unanimously nominated. Now why not make the election unanimous?—Boston Advertiser (Rep).

Our Boston contemporary confesses that it has little hope that its friendly suggestion will be adopted, but presses it, nevertheless, with some force. The Advertiser thinks the Democratic convention, when it meets in St. Louis, would be doing the "right thing," in deed the "very best thing," if it should adopt the Republican ticket and adjourn sine die. It is sometimes profitable to give a little serious consideration to nonsense. Will the time ever come when an American President will be elected without opposition? And should it come, what would it imply? We think there are few possibilities more remote than such an election, and we are equally impressed with the thought that few conditions could be worse for the country than such stolidity or indifference as would give one party a clear field for its national ticket. It may happen—in fact it is extremely likely to happen—that the Democrats will go up against another defeat next November, but if the average Democratic opinion counted on that outcome, it would be better for all interests, present and future, that the St. Louis convention put a ticket in the field and that a brave and manly effort be made to insure victory. Happily, the Democratic party is not made of such pusillanimous stuff as the Advertiser's suggestion would presuppose. Whatever else it may lack, and its deficiencies are neither few nor small, it has plenty of courage. Its greatest successes have followed on the heels of its greatest disasters. This year the Democratic party has no encouragement in any election returns that are less than twelve years old. It is somewhat at sea as to issues and as much so as to candidates. But it has hope and it believes it has a good fighting chance.—Washington Post (Ind).

Mr. Cleveland consents to an extended interview in which he talks of the Democratic outlook. When asked the direct question whether, if nominated at St. Louis, he would accept, he makes an evasive answer by saying that such a contingency is entirely improbable. This only confirms the impression that has been abroad for some time, viz.: That Mr. Cleveland is a receptive candidate. When Speaker Cannon was asked to take the Republican nomination for Vice President he said no in a manner that could not be misunderstood. Mr. Cleveland has given no such categorical answer, though he knows that powerful influences are at work in his party to bring about his nomination. And there are many men in both parties who can see no other way out of the situation than the nomination of Cleveland for a third term, disastrous as it would admittedly be to the party.—Uniontown News Standard.
