

School Notes

The debate between Newport and Colville high schools on "The Income Tax" will be held in Newport on Friday night, Nov. 11. Material for our team, which has the negative, is very hard to get. The state and Washington State College libraries say they can send us nothing, as they have loaned what they have to schools which applied before Newport put in a request for magazines and pamphlets. The literary society on October 21 will debate the question to help our team get points and rebuttal.

Several new pupils came in this week. Miss Rebecca Baily started in with the second and part of the first grades at the Commercial Club rooms. Her department enrolled 38 on Wednesday. The first primary is continuing to fill up.

The sixth and seventh department will probably be moved next Saturday to the basement of the church. The new blackboards and desks have been expected daily.

Several of the rooms will have exercises Friday. The first regular high school literary program will be held. The program will be as follows:

This Happened in a Dry Town

Last Saturday night a stranger, who was skating at the roller rink, lost his balance and fell to the floor, breaking a flask of liquor which he had in his hip pocket, the liquid spreading over a part of the floor. Before the management could replace the wax which had been dampened by the liquid, Mrs. H. L. Mountjoy skated over a part of the sticky wax and fell to the floor in such a manner as to break her arm a few inches from the wrist.—Sandpoint News.

Water Warrant Case Still Drags.

The suit of Chas. F. Craig for the payment of the Carter water warrants came before Judge Sullivan in Superior Court at Colville Tuesday. The case has been up in some form for 3 years and this week got another set-back. The court sustaining the contention of the town's attorneys that the case was not properly instituted. The court assessed the costs of the hearing against the plaintiff and gave his attorneys thirty days in which to file an amended petition. It is understood that the next opening of the case will be a mandamus proceeding to compel the town council to make a levy to pay the warrants in question.

The history of the case dates back to the spring of 1907, when the town council contracted a 99-year lease on the Carter springs, two miles east of Newport. The lease was executed and filed for record and town warrants to cover the lease price of $1600 were issued to Mr. Carter, who presented them for payment. The town treasurer stamped the warrants "not paid for want of funds."

Before the warrants could be paid Mr. Carter sold them to Mr. Craig. Later the Newport Water company, through Harry Saddler, started suit in the superior court to enjoin the town from paying the warrants or taking any further steps toward acquiring or developing the springs.

The town failed to appear and defend the suit, and now Mr. Craig, owner of the warrants, has started suit to collect the amount. Belden & Losey, of Spokane are representing Mr. Craig and City Attorney E. I. Jones and S. W. Rogers, with Joseph & Grinstead, of Colville, are appearing for the city.

Plans Summer Resort Near Newport

A fertile island, comprising about 35 acres, in the Pend Oreille river six miles north of Newport, Wash., opposite Wolfred station on the I. & W. N., has been secured by Rudolph Doerr, of the electrical firm of Doerr-Mitchell, of Spokane, and will be made into a summer resort. Mr. Doerr bought the island from H. Pierce.

It is Mr. Doerr's intention to spend about $10,000 in arranging parks, sinking a domestic water well, building streets across the island and a broad, parked boulevard all the way around the place. He will cut the whole island into acre tracts.

Stevens Auditor Makes Good Showing

A comparative statement showing the earnings, cost of operation, gain or loss, and the percentage of the fees used for operation of the auditor's offices throughout the state for the year 1909, prepared by the State Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, makes a very creditable showing for L. E. Jesseph, present auditor of Stevens county, and Republican candidate for re-election.

This statement shows that of the 39 counties of the state in only 14 did the auditor's office show greater earnings in fees than it cost for all expenses of operating the office. Of these Stevens county stands fifth in point of greatest net receipts. The percentage of cost to receipts in Stevens county is 75.3 per cent. Total receipts of the Stevens county auditor, exclusive of hunters' licenses, are $8,659.80, and the total cost of his office was $6,524.85, leaving a profit to the county after all salaries and expense of the office was paid, of $2,134.95.

Not only in this particular, but in other details of his work has Mr. Jesseph made good in a manner that entitles him to a re-election to the office that he has so ably handled.

New Editor at Colville

The Colville Examiner has the following relative to a change in newspaper circles in the county seat:

Alonzo Melville Doty today assumes the management of the Statesman-Index, having purchased the stock formerly owned by A. E. Veatch, and having been elected manager by the trustees of that institution.

Mr. Doty was the editor and owner of the Delta at Visalia, Cal., for 12 years. For the last three years he has been a student at Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio. Making a trip into this section he has become impressed with the greatness of our resources and prospects, and announces his intention of staying.

The Examiner bids Mr. Doty welcome. Colville never has turned down a good newspaper man, and if Mr. Doty fills the place he will share the best to be had here.

Had Another Man's Wife With Him

From newspaper accounts published in his home town, Redkey, Ind., it appears that J. R. Roberts, who ran the Smith restaurant several months this summer, was not Roberts at all, but J. B. Andrews. He disappeared from his home in July, taking with him another man's wife. They came west and under an assumed name drifted into Newport. The woman became homesick and left for Indiana several weeks before Andrews left here. They are both back near their home town, at last reports seeking the forgiveness of the deserted wife and husband. Andrews was past 60 years old and has several children. The woman was considerably his junior and has no children.

Forest Officers Return

The offices of the Kaniksu National Forest, which has been located at Coolin, Idaho, on Priest Lake, during the fire season, are being moved back to Newport this week. Forest Supervisor Miller will arrive here by Sunday, and the work of the service will again be directed from this point.

An illustration of the cost of administering justice in Stevens county is evidenced by the bill of the county coroner for the trip from Colville to hold an inquest over the body of Joe Lukac, the Bulgarian killed in an encounter with Deputy Sheriff Thackston. The coroner's bill was $75.20.

Since last week the moving pictures at the Star Theater have certainly improved considerably. The flicker has entirely disappeared, and the light on the screen is considerably brighter and will, after the city gets its new power service, be very brilliant. Under the present circumstances, as often as the street lights become dull (and this happens very often) the picture machine is affected to the same degree. Mr. Gundlach announces a prize voting contest to run until the 27th of this month for a handsome boudoir lamp to the most popular school teacher of the city. The lamp will be on exhibition at the Star Theater.
