

STATE NEWS.

C. Bepel, an old resident of Sedalia, attempted suicide on the 1st inst., by drinking an ounce of laudanum, but was restored by physicians.

A lot of 24 hogs, 13 months old, and averaging 300 pounds, were not long since in Saline county.

The married ladies of Hannibal have organized a "Come Home Husband Club." Broomsticks figures among the means to come home.

A move is on foot in Mexico to establish a joint stock company, for the manufacture of plows and other agricultural implements on an extensive scale.

Hickory county and Oregon county have appointed delegates to the State Convention and instructed for Wilson for Governor.

Col. John M. Glover and Thomas L. Anderson are making speeches as candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress.

The St. Louis Times proprietors will send a complimentary office on northwest corner of 10th and Olive streets, St. Louis—the most prominent place in the city.

An exchange says that Mrs. R. Gratz Brown is a winning lady. A more interesting question just now is, whether Mr. Gratz Brown is a winning gentleman.

Last Friday, Gough's Mill, situated 5 miles south of this place was burnt to the ground. Loss about $1,000.

A horrible murder occurred in Holt county last week, in which one John Hughes murdered his brother-in-law, David Fitzwater. The murder is said to have been entirely unprovoked, the murderer having lain in wait for his victim for three years past.

A runaway horse in Sedalia a few days ago, dashed through the glass doors of a restaurant, producing panic among customers and smashing things generally, to the tune of $200 worth.

The Soda Springs Fair offers $450 for the best band to play before them this fall.

The murder at Granby last week says the Neosho Journal, makes the tenth homicide in Newton county within a year, including the two men hung by Lynch law in Seneca.

There is a man in Randolph county who has a foot so large that his shoes are 17 1/4 inches long and 17 inches around the instep.

The light of the Centralia growth mind, Stevens the great "medicine man," retires from his columns in a farewell, that in the way of rhetoric is truly "killing." Henceforth his undivided attention is to be given to his "pressing professional duties."

A wild man was captured in Pike county one day last week. He was entirely unknown to any one in that part of the county, and had been wandering in Salt River township for several days. He would give no account of himself, and was taken to Bowling Green and confined in the jail.

The Trenton Times, of June 27th, says: "Mr. C. A. Evans, of this city, purchased a pair of Holstein cows, of Monroe county, Mo., for which he paid $400 each, a few days since. Some of the old fogies laugh at the idea of paying $400 for one calf. Mr. E. is one of our most successful stock growers, and will soon demonstrate to 'scrub' stock growers the wisdom of his purchase. The calf weighs 60 pounds."

STATE TREASURER. We have noticed in several of the most influential papers of the southwest, the name of H. W. Salmon. He is mentioned in connection with the State Treasury. We depart from our rule in regard to notices of candidates, in this case, to give an unqualified endorsement of the gentleman for several reasons. First, we know him to be thoroughly competent, and long—as an accountant and court reporter, and as a well known and successful financier in his own business. Second, he was through the late war, a faithful and able soldier, who was always to be found at his post, and who was known and esteemed by hundreds of Missouri confederates. We do not claim to be a stickler for equalization through the State, but of those who look upon the rebel element in this State, as an important one in the Democratic party. It is an active element. Its members are men in the prime and vigor of their manhood, men of decision and firmness of character, of whom we have seen many rebels. And they are men who are bound together by sacred ties of affection, hard-ship, and danger, and who are ready to stand by each other to the death. We claim that this element deserves respect, it deserves consideration, and we hope that the southwest, which often throws its united strength into the scales, will do so in this case, and ensure the nomination of a gentleman who will do honor to the ex-rebels of Missouri.

Latest From Baltimore.

We give below the latest dispatch from Baltimore, taken from yesterday's K. C. Times:

BALTIMORE, July 8.—There can be no doubt now as to the action of the National Convention. The enthusiasm for Greeley and Brown is uncontrollable. The Missouri Policy will not be adopted. The East, North and South are solid and enthusiastic for the nomination of the Cincinnati ticket. The Missouri delegation is the center of attraction.

Greeley will certainly be nominated on first ballot. Wednesday morning. Three-fourths of the delegates are now pledged. Antifreeites are very scarce. A meeting is called for to-day by Blanton, Duncan, Gen. Mosby, Toombs and Henry A. Wise, to issue an address or protest to the Convention against the nomination of Greeley. About half the Pennsylvania delegates, with scattering members of the Delaware, Oregon, California and Ohio delegations are now against Greeley. Mosby says he will not vote for Grant in any event. Hoffmann, Belmont, Blair, Johnson, Jeff Davis, John Cochran, Johnson, McClelland, McCook and General, and Senator Thurman are here, and hard at work. Democratic clubs from New York, Philadelphia and Washington are here in force, and fifty thousand visitors are expected to be present.

The demand for an out-and-out nomination is irresistible. The Pennsylvania delegation, when trouble is expected, voted to-night 90 for Greeley to 8 against it. The second vote was unanimous for Greeley.

Gen. Doniphan. This distinguished gentleman, whose name is so familiar to the people of the West, has been urged by his friends to allow his name to be used as a candidate for Governor at the approaching election, but positively declines. The Richmond Conservator says: "America has but few sons more competent to fill a position of trust and honor, yet with a singular persistency he has refused all solicitations to run for office, and emphatically refuses to occupy any position save that of a private citizen. A gentleman of the old school, with a reputation as a soldier and orator not confined to our own hemisphere, it would gratify thousands of the young Democracy, as well as his old friends, if he would consent to unfurl his banner for any position he might name in the gift of the people."

Every school boy in the land has read of Doniphan, and there is connected with his name such a charm of romantic heroism that, as a candidate for any office, he would excite all opposition and be elected by an almost unanimous vote. The young men of all parties would support him, and his personal integrity would secure him a hearty approval from those of his own age. We wish he could be prevailed upon to become a candidate, for there is no man who more thoroughly represents true Democratic principles, or is more highly esteemed for honesty and straightforwardness. His character as a citizen, a soldier, an orator, and a gentleman is unimpaired, and the modest indifference which prevents him from seeking public positions is in his favor. Being no office-seeker he would have no private interests to reward or personal favors to grant, and his administration of the State government would be conducted upon the broad principles of true citizenship. More than this, if we desire to compliment our Liberal friends for the aid they have given us, we could nominate no one who would be more acceptable to them.

Among all the distinguished gentlemen who have been mentioned as candidates for Governor, there is not one who more thoroughly represents the true Democratic principle, or is more highly esteemed for honesty and straightforwardness. His character as a citizen, a soldier, an orator, and a gentleman is unimpaired, and the modest indifference which prevents him from seeking public positions is in his favor. Being no office-seeker he would have no private interests to reward or personal favors to grant, and his administration of the State government would be conducted upon the broad principles of true citizenship. More than this, if we desire to compliment our Liberal friends for the aid they have given us, we could nominate no one who would be more acceptable to them.

The Vermont Liberals.—The Vermont Liberals of Vermont are up and doing, and intend the Mountain State shall give a good account of herself next fall. The central committee have issued a many and spirited address to the "freemen of Vermont," advising immediate and thorough preparation for the approaching campaign, and the calling of a convention to nominate a state ticket. The address, which is a model, fellow-citizen, that the Liberal Reform movement is an earnest one, and means exactly what its friends claim for it—an honest effort to place in power every man of ability and integrity, who will bring to the administration of public affairs a virtuous and a purely that shall result in a complete vindication of our cause and the greatest good of the whole people."

Evidently the unanimity manufacturers will have rather more than they can attend to in Vermont, as well as elsewhere. The Greeley epidemic is spreading right and left, and when it takes hold of New England so vigorously, what may we not expect from more promising sections? —Republican.

BOMBER CHALLENGED. NEW YORK, July 5.—Budd Doble, driver of Goldsmith Maid, has published a challenge, offering to trot Goldsmith Maid against Bomber's horses Dexter and Joe. Elliott, best 3 in 5, with weights up, and subject to all rules, for from $2,000 to $50,000. The race to take place at Prospect park or any Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, or New York course, the winner to be the victor. In answer to a question as to whether he intended to pay any attention to the challenge, Mr. Bomber says: "Oh, that is an old game that has been going on for ten years. I take no notice of that kind of people. You might as well expect President Grant to pay attention to the barking of a bull dog, if Jim Mace was to challenge the Rev. Dr. Tying to fight a prize fight, do you think he would do it? I own good horses, and drive them in public to show that I have the fastest horses in the world. A gentleman can own and drive good horses and not be a gambler."

A California jury, in a suicide case, lately found the following verdict: "We, the jury, find the deceased was a fool."

A detailed statement of all the divorces granted by the different county courts in Indiana last year, lately made, gives a total of six hundred and forty-three.

VIEWS OF THE HON. ELLISON S. KEITT.

(From the New York Tribune.) The following is a private letter on the political situation, from the Hon. Ellison S. Keitt of South Carolina to a gentleman in this city:

MY DEAR SIR: We have just held our county meeting, accepted the Liberal Republican platform, endorsed Greeley and Brown as our standard-bearers in the approaching Presidential contest, and instructed our delegates to the State and National convention to stand firmly by these colors and no others. To some in the North with whom we have heretofore acted it may appear strange that we should cast the past behind us, as though it were rubbish, and move up promptly to the support of Mr. Greeley, who has made war upon us for near 40 years. History gives us instance where a people have been hunted down and persecuted as we have been, if you wished to consider a Legislature for your great State, you could not go into the five Points and scrape up a rier crowd than those, with a few exceptions, who constitute the Legislature of this State. Its infamy is as wide as civilization. It consumed during the last session $1,200,000 for legislative expenses alone—three times as much as was formerly appropriated to administer the whole State Government. The State debt, which was less than $5,000,000 four years ago, is now, according to the best information we can get, $25,000,000 or more. The annual taxation now is over $1,000,000, while it was scarcely $300,000 when our assessed property was three times as great as it now is. But what is all this to the loss of the last vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns, and immured in the dungeons of the common jails—crowded in like so many sardines, and without the vestige of liberty? Here the constitution has been rolled up and laid away, and the writ of habeas corpus is no more. Some of our best citizens have been arrested without a warrant, handcuffed, marched through the streets of our towns,