News from apparently good authority says that Mr. Cleveland will select the following chief officers to direct his campaign: Chairman of the national democratic committee, W. C. Whitney; chairman of the executive committee, Wm. F. Barry, of Pennsylvania; secretary, George E. Parker, of New York.

Terrific Storms.

BOONVILLE, Mo., June 27.—The most terrific and destructive wind and hail storm ever witnessed in Cooper county passed over the central portion of the county yesterday afternoon. The wind was from the north, blowing in gusts from its foundation and partially blown down, as was also that of S. C. Markland. Small outbuildings and fences were blown down, stacks of hay, straw and stock trampled. In many places the wheat was actually cut down and trampled by the hail. The fruit trees were stripped of their fruit and other trees of their foliage and some were blown down. The town of Boonville was in the path of the storm, but seemed to have escaped it. The storm passed to the west of the town, and did not strike the earth until a mile east of it, thus doing very little damage there. At the model farm of Charles E. Leonard the damage was great. Fences and trees were blown down, flocks killed and his splendid orchard almost ruined. Forty-two of his horses were killed, and several other animals done in. In several windows the hail passed through in several and window panes and broke the inside sashes. The storm was from the north, and traveled from northwest to southeast.

CHICKS OF SOLID ICE.—The most severe hail storm ever witnessed in this county at about 7 o'clock Sunday night. The 2500 head turnout was in the track of the storm, which was about 100 yards wide. The smothering hail was so heavy and fell so fast, that it completely demolished the railway station carried away and some four or five stables wrecked. Fortunately the storm missed the hotel, and the village was left with only a few houses damaged and no person injured. What harvest is in progress, and numerous acres of crops were lost. The damage in Henry county is variously estimated at from $100,000 to $200,000. Some farmers are nearly ruined by the storm. This city was just south of the storm's course.

Used Dynamite.—Elijah Lloyd, a wealthy mine operator, committed suicide at Joplin. His family were visiting in Kentucky. The housekeeper heard a loud report near the house at 5 o'clock. Mr. Lloyd's dog barked and ran to the house and stable. The body was found in a room on the second floor. It was a small building used as an office by the mine operator. The dynamite was found in a box in a room with one stick missing and a coil of fuse with a piece cut off. On the floor were several matches. EDWARDS STONE, who claims to have started to walk from San Francisco on February 23, last, to make a transcontinental essay, arrived in New York city on the 25th and reported at the Police Gazette office at noon.
