Missourians Invited To Fish Hatchery Dedication

The State Fish Hatchery to be established at Sequoia Park, near Springfield, Mo., will be dedicated Friday, October 1st. The arrangements are under the supervision of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce, and the program will include an address by Governor F. D. Gardner, who will speak in the afternoon.

The Governor's address will be followed by a big fish fry, when fish and other eatables will be provided for everybody free of charge by the Chamber of Commerce. In the evening there will be an elaborate entertainment, replete with novel features.

Committees of the Chamber of Commerce have been busy for several days upon the various features of the entertainment, and the Refreshment Committee has estimated that 5,000 fish will be required to serve the throng expected to attend.

Dr. T. T. Umbarger, chairman of the General Committee, has announced that every Missourian is invited, and delegations are expected to motor to Springfield from almost every town in the Ozark region.

The establishment of the fish hatchery is certain to increase the advantages already enjoyed by the Ozark streams as fisherman's paradise.

Just What She Needed.

"I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets some time ago and they proved to be just what I needed," writes Mrs. Volta Bankson, Chillicothe, Mo. "They not only relieved me of indigestion but toned up my liver and rid me of backache and dizziness that I had been subject to for some time. They did me a world of good and I will always speak a good word for them."

Besides bringing up seven children of her own, Mrs. Katherine Glover, colored woman of Springfield, Ill., has taken twenty-one others to care for fifteen of them negroes, five whites and one Mexican. Mrs. Glover has to work for her living, but she says she does love babies.

Notice To Live Stock Men

The Missouri State Board of Agriculture, in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture, has mailed to each farmer in Ste. Genevieve county, a live stock listing blank, if reported by the Farm Census as owning one or more purebred registered live stock.

The state and county lists of pure-bred live stock breeders, including the number that each farmer has to sell, will be distributed all over the state and nation, sent to live stock associations and clubs seeking to buy pure-bred animals, and especially to calf club and pig club committees.

A Missouri Live Stock Directory will be published, carrying free the names and addresses and marketable surplus of the breeders reported from Ste. Genevieve county, and the other 113 counties of this state.

The FAIR PLAY to-day announces to our readers that in case any farmer owning registered live stock has failed to receive a blank for free listing, or has lost his blank, may obtain another by addressing the "The State Board of Agriculture, Jefferson City, Mo."

ACT QUICKLY

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in time of danger. In time of kidney danger, Doan's Kidney Pills are most effective.

Plenty of Ste. Genevieve evidence of their worth in this vicinity.

Xavier Naeger, farmer, S. W. 4 mi. Zell, Mo., says: "About three years ago I was bothered with my back. I was weak and tired. There seemed to be a dull hurting over my kidneys that was pressing down on them. My kidneys didn't act as they should, the secretions passed too often and were dark in color. I saw in the paper how someone I knew had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good success so I tried them. I used two boxes and I haven't been troubled since."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Naeger had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

REVERE MEMORY OF MACEDO

Negro Patriot Said to Hold the Chief Place in the Hearts of Cuban Masses.

Graves in the cemetery of Santiago de Cuba are family affairs, built of cement and six or eight "stories" deep, so that the coffins are set one above the other, as their time comes, in perfect chronological order, writes Harry A. Franck in the Century.

Over the top, commonly a bare three or four feet above the grass, is laid a huge stone slab, preferably of marble, with immense brass or nickel rings at each corner by which to lift it, and space on its top for a poetic epitaph to each succeeding occupant. As in all Spanish countries, the tombs of all but the wealthiest inmates are rented for a term of years, at the end of which time, if the descendants fail to renew the contract, the bodies are tossed into a common graveyard, to make room for those of greener memory.

Martí, the Cuban "Father of Liberty," is buried here, and Estrada Palma, promoted from humble pedagogue in an American school to first president of Cuba. But neither holds the chief place in the heart of the Cuban masses. That is reserved for Macco, the negro general killed just before the dawn of independence during a foolhardy scouting expedition in the woods of Cuchamal, in company with a bare half-dozen soldiers.

Cuban "Memorial Day" is observed throughout the island with much sponting of poetry, and laying on of flowers, on December 7, the anniversary of Macco's death at the hands of the Spaniards.

HAS SUPERB WATER POWER

That of British Columbia Is Said to Equal Five Nisgaras in Its Possibilities.

The potential water power of British Columbia, experts declare, is equal to that of five Nisgaras. Pouring down from the mountains comes enough water to develop 3,000,000 horse-power. Niagara falls, when all the water that is available on the Canadian side has been harnessed will produce only 650,000 horse power.

Only 123,000 electric horse power is now developed by the plants supplying Vancouver, New Westminster and the towns in the vicinity. This power turns the wheels of mills and factories, propels the street cars of these cities and provides lights for the streets and homes. If the entire wealth of British Columbia in water power were harnessed it would be sufficient to provide power, light and heat for 40 cities the size of Vancouver and New Brunswick combined. With this cheap power available, economists predict that some day the province will become one of the greatest manufacturing centers of Canada.

Fine Tune Will Live.

Probably the majority of churchgoers will agree with the vicar of Well-Inghorrough in his refusal to allow the church bells in his parish to ring on "Tipperary" in honor of the great peace, for in these matters one must of course draw the line somewhere.

Yet, when the vicar asks: "If 'Tipperary,' why not 'Tommy, Make Room for Uncle'?" the analogy is not very apt. "Both songs, it is true, are not—well, classical music." But the glorious associations of "Tipperary" have raised it far above such criticism; and though the famous tune may never reach the height of a church hymn, it is, nevertheless, likely to go down to posterity as the immortal "Marsellaise" of the Old Contemptibles.—London Chronicle.

Happy on His Way.

In one of the Indianapolis schools recently the teacher announced to her pupils that they would study China during the afternoon, and told the children to bring various products of the country. Very excitedly a little chap rushed into the grocery store and told the grocer to give him a nickel's worth of sassafras, as he was to study China at school, and the grocer told him she must have said Indiana, but he gave him Gunpowder and Imperial mixed, instead of the good old Hoosier product, and sent him happily on his way.

A One-Funnel Cunarder.

The new Cunarder Scythia, according to an English newspaper, is to have only one funnel; for all her 20,000 tons. Time was when a liner's standing was in direct ratio with the number of her funnels. Four funnels indicated A1 rank. One famous steamship was, it is said, equipped with an unnecessary fourth funnel simply for appearance's sake. But now, it seems, the funnels are to go, for only one is really necessary.—From the Outlook.

Seals Migrate Early.

The protective measure adopted by the government for the benefit of the seals in American waters has been entirely successful, as indicated by the great number of animals seen to be migrating to the Arctic seas. The migration was three weeks earlier than usual, and an unusually large number of animals were noted on their way to the north.

New Scrap Started.

Wife (on rainy holiday)—John, let's go somewhere. I've been shut up in the house all day.
Hub—You mean shut in, my dear. You can't truthfully say you were shut up.—Boston Tribune.

SILAS' MEMORIAL

By MARJORIE PIERCE.

(© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Susan Deborah Mills Fisher Trent was exceedingly proud of her new husband, her third, as her name attested. She was a middle-aged woman, tall, thin, shrill of voice and scant of hair. What little of woman's crowning glory she did possess she drew to a tight little knob at the back of her narrow head. She knew all there was to be known about men, according to her own judgment, and felt that at last she had chosen aright.

The poor deceased Mr. Mills had been a young, rather good-looking fellow when Susan wedded him. That was when Susan was also young and her hair was not drawn so tightly back from her thin face. Mr. Fisher had been an older man, perhaps forty-five. Susan had ensnared him in the goosy net of a lemon pie when she was running a boarding house at Green Hill. Fisher simply could not resist Susan's lemon pies, and when Susan threatened to depart for Howe's Center to work at the hotel, Fisher decided that the wisest course for him to take was to marry Susan and the lemon pies, which he did forthwith.

Perhaps the pies shortened Fisher's mortal coil. At any rate, Susan was soon ready for a third attempt at matrimony. She did not even feel love to Mr. Trent. He needed a housekeeper and she needed a home. Thus the two were married.

Silant Trent was about sixty years old, slim like Susan, and somewhat bent from long hours of hoeing and weeding. He chewed tobacco and smoked. Susan did not know that he chewed, which fact only goes to show that even a woman of Mrs. Mills Fisher Trent's experience does not know all there is to be known about men. She did know that he smoked, but never was the "filthy odor" of tobacco smoke to be found in the farmhouse. Poor Silas smoked in the vast out-of-doors, and only the pure mountain air was talented.

He was afraid of his wife, not of her physical person as a whole, but he was desperately afraid of her tongue, and she made his life at home very unhappy. He was glad to escape, if possible, for a short holiday.

After about six months of married life Mr. Trent decided that he was due for a holiday and, as the circus was to visit the adjoining town, he harnessed up the colt and went to the "show."

At the circus Silas enjoyed his freedom to his heart's content.

There was a refreshment booth at the circus, so he betook himself inside and ordered a supper consisting of "hot dogs" and a glass of pink lemonade. When the frankfurters and lemonade had disappeared Silas was still hungry and thirsty, so a second order of three "hot dogs" and a pink lemonade followed the first and finally a third took the same trail. Silas was at last "refreshed" and he started home to Susan.

On the way he felt rather sick. When he arrived home he felt sicker, and soon Susan in terror called the doctor, for Silas was writhing and groaning in agony. Pains seemed to be in every part of his poor thin body at the same instant.

The doctor arrived, but Silas died. Even a doctor could not overcome nine hot dogs attacking at once.

Susan was, to all appearances, stunned by grief. How she mourned! Black crepe was not enough. Tears continually drowned her eyes till after Silas was buried. She talked of what a great love had been taken from her, and as proof of her loyalty to his memory she showed her friends a small box in which, she explained, she had placed a "memorial" of her poor dear husband. This box she wore suspended from a cord around her scrawny neck, and tucked carefully under her black alpaca waist.

All the countryside was interested in that "memorial." Everyone was curious. What could old Mrs. Trent be wearing in that box as a remembrance of her departed third?

And so on ran the rumors. The newspapers in the nearest city heard of "Mr. Trent's memorial," and reporters, eager for copy, rushed to Susan's humble cottage for information. They returned with snapshots of the much discussed box, but no information as to its contents.

No one was able to satisfy his ever increasing curiosity, and so the box with its "memorial" was the wonder and mystery of the village until the day on which Susan Deborah Mills Fisher-Trent revealed its secret.

It was not many moons after Silas Trent's death that Susan was sorely stricken with a toothache. She hastened to a dentist. She had only seven of her own teeth in her mouth, and he advised their extraction. Susan at first objected. She claimed that she was minus the necessary funds for the purchase of a set of the manufactured variety. She was about to leave the office when suddenly she stopped, fumbled at the front of her waist and produced the box in which was known to be the "memorial" of Silas Trent. Turning to the dentist she handed him the box which she had loosened from the cord, and in a matter-of-fact tone said:

"Land sakes, I clean forgot that 'memorial.' I saved them old teeth of Silas a-purpose to have 'em made over some day if I ever had need of 'em."
Thus was the "memorial" mystery solved.
