

GAYNOR'S SON IS PROSTRATED BY FATHER'S DEATH

Young Man Who Accompanied New York Mayor On Death Journey Has Not Slept or Eaten Since Sudden Tragedy

BODY IN STATE AT LIVERPOOL TOWN HALL

Lord Mayor Tenders First Official Honor to Memory of the Late American - Lusitania Will Be the Funeral Ship.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Sept. 12.—The deathship Baltic, of the White Star line, bearing the body of William J. Gaynor of New York city, arrived in port at 4:25 this morning, bringing fresh details of the famous American's death.

Officials of the consular office in Queenstown visited young Mr. Gaynor and later viewed the body of his father, which has been temporarily prepared and lay in a state room.

When Mayor Gaynor embarked for a sea voyage on Thursday, Sept. 4, it was known that he was physically run down.

Officers of the Baltic, it was learned here, repeatedly asked Mayor Gaynor if they could not perform some special service for him but the sick man would reply: "If you treat me as well as you treat others, I am only a passenger like the others, I am content."

The morning of Mayor Gaynor's death the sick man seemed in better spirits than usual. He walked the deck for some time in the warm sunshine accompanied by the small son of one of the passengers.

Shortly before 1 o'clock Rufus Gaynor went below to look after his father's luggage and returned to find his father huddled up in the deck chair.

Plans for funeral. Plans for a public funeral to be held probably on Monday, Sept. 22, will be made Friday by the board of estimates.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Rufus Gaynor, son of the late mayor of New York, sent the following message by wireless telegraph to the Associated Press yesterday evening.

"My father, Wm. Jay Gaynor, died on board the White Star liner Baltic at seven minutes past one o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. His death was due to heart failure. He was seated in his chair when the end came.

"I was on the boat deck and went below at the lunch table to tell my father that his lunch was ready. He had been taking his meals in one of the state rooms and was seated in his chair apparently asleep. I shook him gently but he did not respond.

"During the voyage his health had steadily improved and his nervousness had decreased noticeably. He took a great deal of interest in the run of the ship day by day and was particularly interested to know just where the Baltic was when the chart was posted in the companionway each noon.

was turned upward to the sun; his hands were clasped beneath a steamer rug. His life on board had been very quiet. He kept much to his cabin. Occasionally he walked the deck with his son. He became the champion of a little son of one of the families and they spent much time together in the warm sunshine.

The plan of transferring the body to the liner Cedric on a tender was abandoned. A grim coincidence in this connection was that Mr. Gaynor had planned to return on the Cedric.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Sept. 12.—All plans for the immediate shipment of the body of the late William J. Gaynor to New York were made here today by the U. S. consul. The Baltic was scheduled to arrive this evening at 7 o'clock with the body of the dead American on board.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York city, voyaging over sea on the steamer Baltic in the hope of regaining his strength to enter the three-cornered municipal campaign as a candidate for re-election, died suddenly on the Baltic as the steamer was within a few hundred miles of the Irish coast Wednesday afternoon.

The first official honors to be paid to the memory of the late Mr. Gaynor occurred here. The Lord Mayor of Liverpool today ordered that the town hall, appropriately decorated in mourning, should be tendered as the resting place of Mayor Gaynor's body until such time as arrangements for its removal to New York are made.

Later dispatches from his son, Rufus W. Gaynor, who was his father's only traveling companion, gave details which showed that the end had come with shocking suddenness.

The death of Mayor Gaynor automatically transferred the office of mayor to Col. Ardolph L. Kline, a republican, president of the board of aldermen. Col. Kline took the oath of office late today and his first official act was to call the board of estimates together to lay plans for the public funeral services of his predecessor.

While messages of sympathy from local politicians and other officials all parts of the country poured into the mayor's office in the city hall and the mayor's country home at St. James, L. I., the heated municipal campaign came to a sudden stop, although many of the candidates were held to review the sudden change which Mayor Gaynor's death made in the general situation.

Plans for a public funeral to be held probably on Monday, Sept. 22, will be made Friday by the board of estimates.

TWENTY GUARDS PLACED AROUND COLEBROOK JAIL

Thaw Will be Arraigned Today, as His Attorneys Decide to Drop Their Petition to Have Him Set Free.

JEROME DENOUNCES ONE OF CANADIANS

Twenty-five Men Who Have Been Working Against New York Attorney, Follow Thaw to New Hampshire.

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 12.—Twenty-five Canadians, several of them opponents of William Travers Jerome, after his arrest in Coaticook, Quebec, last week on a charge of gambling and others from Sherbrook, where Harry K. Thaw received such an ovation in court, have followed the fugitive across the border into New Hampshire and revived with their coming the intense partisan feeling so evident while Thaw was in the dominion. Jerome denounced one of them in public Thursday.

Their presence in Colebrook enticed what was otherwise a typical Thaw day for those who have been following the erratic course of Stanford White's slayer since his escape from Matteawan on Sunday morning, Aug. 17. There was no court proceeding. Thaw's arraignment being put off by mutual consent until 10 o'clock Friday morning; and Thaw's lawyers apparently thinking him safer in the custody of the sheriff than at large, abandoned their attempt to release him on a writ of habeas corpus.

The guards about Thaw's hotel were increased Thursday night from 12 to 20. All were armed and under the direction of Chief of Police Charles Kelley. The chief appointed his first deputies Wednesday after hearing stories that officers from New York might attempt to spirit Thaw away. He augmented them in the afternoon by a contingent of 10 men from the idea of snatching Thaw from Jerome's hands and at the same time rebuking high dominion officials responsible for the Thaw deportation Wednesday morning.

Groups of Canadians stood about the hotel corridors and on the street corners throughout the day and closely followed Thaw on the way to the jail made from his room. The first of these was to the barber shop; the second to the office of his chief counsel, Thomas Johnson.

Two automobiles, engines running, stood at the curb in front of the office all the time Thaw was within. This so alarmed the police chief that he and his men completely surrounded Thaw when he was brought down and escorted him to the hotel.

Jerome's denunciation of the partisans from Coaticook occurred in the Monckton house where Thaw is housed. The man, who interested himself in working up evidence against Jerome on the gambling charge of which he was accused, asked to be introduced to him. Jerome looked him over coldly and then spoke acridly and bitterly of his experience in Coaticook, naming the man as the ringleader. There was a moment of strained silence, then Jerome turned his back.

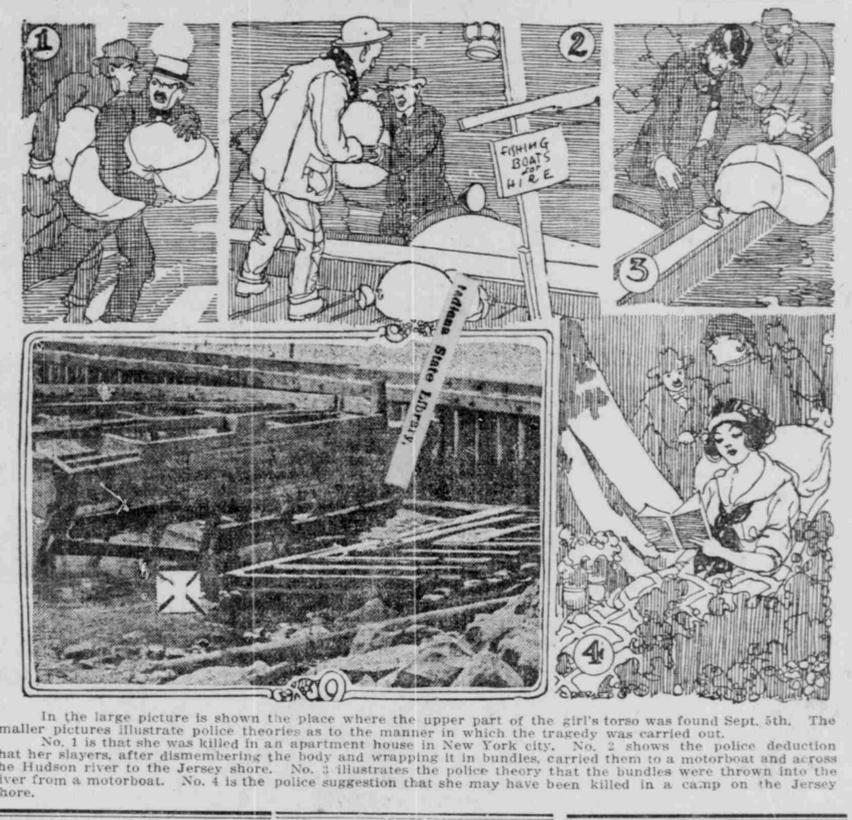

Thaw's progress down Main st. to his lawyer's office Thursday afternoon drew the population of the entire village and environs to the scene. Every available vehicle in town was pressed into service; windows along the way were black with heads. Thaw, head erect and smiling, walked beside his chief counsel, who was surrounded by a small boy of the village; ahead fringed a small yellow dog, yelping delightedly. From a second story window a small girl tossed Thaw a bouquet of sweet peas. But there was no cheering.

Unless more delay intervenes Thaw will be brought before Justice Carr in the morning on the complaint that he is wanted in New York for conspiracy. Conroy, Coaticook lawyer, will ask that he be remanded until a requisition warrant can be presented to Gov. Folger, and that he be removed to the county jail at Lancaster. Then will begin the real fight against extradition. In preparation for this, Thaw has retained still another lawyer. He is N. E. Martin, ex-mayor of Concord, a leader in the state democracy and a close associate of Gov. Folger. He arrived in Colebrook Thursday.

Atty. Gen. Tuttle was still here Thursday night. He declined to discuss reports that the government would refuse to honor any requisition papers signed by Martin Glynn as acting governor of New York.

"My whole time," said the attorney general, "has been devoted to assisting in the preparation of jury cases in relation to Mr. Thaw. I have not been claimed any part of my time and attention. I see that one paper reports that I have been in conference with Mr. Jerome. This is an error. I have not met the gentleman and am not at present informed of his plans. Any duty of mine in this matter will not begin until some request from the governor commands my service."

Scene of Murder Mystery Which Has Stirred New York

In the large picture is shown the place where the upper part of the girl's torso was found Sept. 5th. The smaller pictures illustrate police theories as to the manner in which the tragedy was carried out. No. 1 is that she was killed in an apartment house in New York city, that her slayers, after dismembering the body and wrapping it in bundles, carried them to a motorboat and across the Hudson river to the Jersey shore. No. 3 illustrates the police theory that the bundles were thrown into the river from a motorboat. No. 4 is the police suggestion that she may have been killed in a camp on the Jersey shore.

JAPS DEMAND APOLOGY AND MONEY IN NOTE TO CHINESE

PEKIN, Sept. 12.—The existing tension between the Chinese and Japanese governments over the demands of the Japanese in connection with the killing of three Japanese citizens at the recent battle at Nanking between federal and rebels, was heightened today by a preemptory note from Tokio asking for an immediate acceptance or refusal.

The demands include: Payment of $1,000 indemnity to the families of the three slain men; summary punishment of the Chinese officers responsible for the shooting; a public apology by the Chinese government to the Japanese government; a personal apology by Gen. Chang Hsun, the federal commander at Nanking to the Japanese consul and the parade of Gen. Chang Hsun's troops before the Japanese consulate as a sign of abjection.

These demands are in the hands of the cabinet. There is a force of 2,000 Japanese marines at Nanking and the Japanese consulate there is protected by a battery of quick firing guns, while there are five Jap warships in the harbor.

SEEKING LAD AS HEIR OF ESTATE

Simon Joseph Worthing is Thought to be Working in the Northern Part of State. Somewhere in northern Indiana Simon Joseph Worthing, 18 years old, may be working for a small pittance, although he is an heir to valuable property in Missouri.

Local police have been informed of the efforts being made by Mrs. Lavady Chasteen, 145 Bright st., Indianapolis, a sister of the lost boy, to find him. For nine years she has been following up every clue.

Both Mrs. Chasteen and her brother were placed in an orphan's asylum in Logansport, Ind., when they were quite young and when 7 years old their mother, Mrs. B. G. Carney, was near Peru, Ind., and given to a family named Davis. Two years later his sister saw him for a few minutes, but since then all trace of the brother has been lost from Mrs. B. G. Carney's memory. Nine years ago Mrs. Chasteen received information that her mother's brother had taken possession of a farm in Missouri, that she says in order to clear the title which Mrs. Chasteen's brother was recorded as dead. The property originally belonged to her mother, she said.

Mrs. Chasteen said she now is in possession of Monroe Dowdy, her deceased mother's brother, and one or two other relatives, and that she and her lost brother are entitled to a share in the property. In order to clear the title to the property she is making a systematic search for the missing brother.

Young Worthing is now 18 years old. Mrs. Chasteen said. They both left the orphan's home to go to families, and in that way they lost trace of each other. Mrs. Chasteen received news from Mrs. B. G. Carney, where she and her brother lived. Mrs. Carney said she believed the brother could be found without great difficulty for the four young men Chasteen believes she and her brother are entitled to near Malden, Mo. She said she had received letters from her uncle intimating that she and her brother are entitled to a share in the property.

SUES PROFESSOR FOR SEPARATION; AVERS NEGLECT

Charging that her husband was seemingly too absorbed in his work as professor of mechanical engineering to pay even the slightest attention to her, Mrs. Green has filed suit for divorce from Jerome J. Green, professor at Notre Dame university. She asks $10,000 alimony and the custody of the thirteen-year-old child. Almost from the day of marriage Mrs. Green asserts, her husband has scarcely spoken to her or taken her anywhere for entertainment. For days at a time she says he does not talk to her.

To be taken on long trips or visits and then be left by her husband is another of her complaints. A year after the marriage the couple went to Europe. On the voyage the husband scarcely spoke to the woman. Upon arrival they were entertained by Mrs. Green's friends. Then Green went to Rheims, France, to attend an aviation meet. He left her with no money, except transportation back to New York. In order to sustain herself she was forced to borrow $250. Mrs. Green charges.

Upon his departure for Rheims, Mrs. Green avers she wanted to kiss him goodbye, but that he pushed her away with the exclamation "Get out." He refused to take her anywhere and treated her, according to the complaint as a "mere convenient and necessary incubator to keep his home from smelling like a henhouse." He refused to take her anywhere to be taken anywhere he replied, it is said, "We are married. That's sort of that. The end of all that sort of thing."

Shortly following the birth of their daughter, Green took his wife to the Michigan woods. She charges he put them up in a fish lodge where the rest of the family remained. When other men forced the mother and child to flee and find a place of abode in a shack termed a dug-out, or earth hole. She and the baby slept alone here, terrified by the night storms and falling trees, Mrs. Green says. Her husband, she claims, went to Chicago during the time and attended an aviation meet. In the meantime the woman cooked for the men at the fish lodge, the complaint states.

In conclusion the complaint states that the events of three years of married life, such as the woman has detailed her health to that extent that she was ordered to England by physicians. She asserts that her husband has $30,000 in a bank, and earns $175 per month as instructor.

CANADIAN OFFICIAL WHO PUT THAW OVER BORDER

E. Blake Robertson, acting superintendent of immigration, who with four other Canadian assistants kidnaped Harry K. Thaw from his quarters at Coaticook, Que., and rushed him across the border into Vermont, where he was turned loose at Norton Mills, and finally captured by the local authorities at Colebrook, N. H. The kidnaping of Thaw—for that is what it amounts to—was nevertheless a legal process, warranted by the authority of Minister of Justice C. J. Boherty. Despite this fact, however, Thaw's lawyers declare they will have Robertson arrested for contempt of court on the contention that the arrest disobeyed the superior court order compelling Thaw's detention and production in Montreal later in the month. The matter of superior jurisdiction between the superior court and the immigration authorities, it was stated, was decided three months ago in favor of the court.
