

SOCIAL AND OTHER INTERESTS OF WOMEN

Society

Miss Jessie Carter, the popular leading woman with the Wright Hunting-ton players in South Bend last season, and Ewing Studebaker Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Riley of this city, were married Monday night at the Buckingham hotel in St. Louis. Three hundred guests, among them many socially prominent in South Bend, Chicago and St. Louis were present at the ceremony.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor of the hotel which was beautifully decorated in green and white. The couple stood beneath a bower of bride's roses. Rev. Z. B. T. Phillips, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church, St. Louis, read the service.

Miss Carter was attended by her sister, Miss Louise Morton Carter, as maid of honor and her two cousins, the Misses Mayhew and Louise A. Carter, as bridesmaids. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Franklin S. Riley, as best man, John F. Reynolds and J. Lawson Midgley, were groomsmen.

The bride wore a wedding gown of white crepe metier trimmed with pearls and rose point lace. It was made with a full court train lined with silver. She carried a bouquet of orchids. Her attendants were handsomely gowned to emphasize the color scheme of white and green.

Charles Kunkel and E. R. Kroeger, heads of St. Louis musical conservatories, played the wedding march and Charles Kalb rendered a violin solo during the ceremony.

A wedding reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Riley left during the evening for a wedding trip through the west. On their return they will be at home at Independence, Kan., where Mr. Riley will be employed in connection with oil interests of his family.

Miss Carter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Alexander Carter, 3692 W. Pine boulevard, St. Louis. Mrs. Carter is a teacher of singing at the Kroeger School of Music and at Forest Park university. Miss Carter also is an accomplished musician. The presents from wealthy relatives and friends of both bride and bridegroom were placed on view at the hotel after the ceremony.

The collection represented a fortune and many individual pieces are worth thousands of dollars. Among them was the present Mr. Riley had made for his bride.

It was a diamond brooch, set with a circlet, manufactured after his own design at a cost of several thousand dollars. Among the gifts were a solid silver service and dinner set, tea set, cut glass and scores of individual, silver pieces.

Miss Ruth Hickey entertained with a hostess shower Monday evening, complimenting Miss Helen Hancock, whose marriage to James Joyce, of Tulsa, Okla., will take place Wednesday, Sept. 24. The members of the San Social club entertained with an auto party and supper Monday evening, complimenting Mrs. Fred Probst, of Chicago, Miss Margaret Berce of Danville, Ill., and Miss Emma Nabicht of this city, whose marriage to Floyd Catterly of Great Falls, Mont., will take place soon. The party drove to Sister lake near Dowagiac, Mich.

RULE OF BEAUTY IS THREE-FOLD

Improve Your Mind, Be Natural, Keep Youthful Figure, Says Mary Young.

BY LILLIAN LAUFERTY.

"This world is so full of a number of things" that—according to Mary Young—we ought not to set placidly by, being "as happy as kings", but we ought to start boldly campaigning for a wide and general knowledge of the number of things there are to know and be. Almost any clever woman will tell you that beauty is brains or charm; but not every clever woman can impress you with her personal willingness to study and strive toward the self-same goal that she is indicating for you.

Now, Mary Young—late hard-working and dearly beloved leading woman of the Castle Square Stock company of Boston, and present very natural and very charming heroine of "Believe Me, Xantippe", at the Thirty-Ninth st. theater, has never feared work, effort and the constant routine of study, rehearsal, produce that marks the career of the stock actress. At present, with the unusually "simple life" marked by but six evening performances and two matinees a day, Mary Young is studying languages in order to improve every shining hour to the utmost.

"A little personal pulchritude plus a great deal of brains makes beauty things count—while a vast amount of mere prettiness plus no cleverness, no accomplishments and no animating intelligence, may make a pretty picture, but it can never represent a glorious woman who is a lasting delight.

An Example.

"Last spring I attended a dinner at which one of our great prima donnas was present. On one side of her sat a French diplomat and at her other hand was an Italian nobleman. First she would animatedly chat with the Signor and talk to him with charm and ease. Her animated cleverness fairly illuminated her beauty. Her brilliancy made her glowing, vital and dazzlingly lovely; while the less clever woman, even if of greater actual beauty, faded and paled before this woman with the gift of tongues and keen interest and insight into humanity and national characteristics.

"I am using two hours of every morning to master French and German," added Miss Young with a whimsical smile. "Of course, I don't expect dazzling beauty to result—but I do confidently expect to gain in human insight through the ability to converse with men of other nations in their own languages—and I expect a vast field of literature to open before me.

"Parlor tricks are a great asset to the girl who would be charming—a bit of recitation, an ability to play—if not Greek, at least the music of the day—a gift of graceful dancing, or the charm of a sweet singing voice. This, the world is full of a number of things—and the girl who desires beauty must make sure that she has the setting for the jewel. If you are too lazy to take advantage of all the chances of improvement that life offers, even if you have been dowered with good features, you will deprive them of animating soul and illuminating expression.

"Beauty would, if I stopped to formulate and tabulate them, be three-fold, I think. Improve your mind, cultivate your natural gifts and discover a few unsuspected talents to polish. Then I expect for rule two, BE SIMPLE AND NATURAL. That means be well-bred too. For nothing less well-bred than the present fad for artificiality, for make-up, unblushing applied, and for bold and daringly immodest costumes could be confuted up in a welsh rabbit dream. It is so hard to find the real human individuality of a woman who is hidden behind several layers of powder and paint. She looks cheap, and middle-class, if no worse, and so I feel that simplicity and naturalness are able lieutenants to brains in the army that goes with flying banners to win Beauty.

Reserve Force.

"And the reserve force in woman's beauty-hut is: Preserve a youthful, graceful, supple figure. Don't let fat accumulate. Fat is the white woman's burden. This is my method of fighting it: For breakfast I have a cup of black coffee and a piece of toast; for lunch—NOTHING; and dinner is a fairly simple, sweetless meal. It took me a year to learn to live a lunch-less life. At first I used to eat a few crackers to tide myself over the instantly hungry, aching void time, but at last I have learned not to miss the joys of lunching.

"Oh, everything worth while in all this world of numberless things seems to demand a struggle, but the need for your pains makes it all so 'worth the struggle', doesn't it?" concluded Miss Young, with the dear little smile that like her very evident mental power illuminates her piquant, mobile brunette charm into a very worthwhile type of beauty.

DR. THOMSON'S EYE TALKS (TALK NO. 175.)

Delay.

Delays are dangerous always, but especially so when your eyes are giving trouble. There is no such a thing as outgrowing a defect of the eyes. If there is an irregularity of the focus it will always remain. The eyes will always be working harder than they ought. The longer this is continued the worse they become. If you wait too long, even lenses will do no good. The sooner you give them attention the more benefit you will receive and the less you will have to wear glasses. In nearly every case of weak eyes they could be entirely relieved by wearing glasses for close work, if begun in time. After awhile it will be necessary to wear them constantly. It is vastly better to wear them a part of the time now than to wear them all of the time a few months from now. It is better to use them once in a while than to wear them all of your life. See to it TO-DAY.
