Mr. and Mrs. Hauck entertained a company of friends informally Sunday evening at their home, 813 Cushing st., as a farewell.

Mrs. F. L. Sims gave a paper of unusual merit Monday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Current Events department of the Progress club. The subject of the paper was "Vocational Training in the Home" in which she said that parents should cooperate with their children's hobbies, because these childish hobbies may be indicative of the inclinations or talents which may determine their future means of livelihood. Illustrating, she enumerated examples of successful business men and women of the day whose hobbies in childhood developed into their life work. The department will meet again in two weeks when the program will be in charge of Miss Thekla Sack.

A social hour followed, during which refreshments were served by the hostess. Mrs. Ada Nave, N. St. Joseph st., will entertain the society March 8.

The annual reception of South Bend Commandry No. 13, Knights Templar, was held Monday evening in Place hall. Over 300 people enjoyed dancing and cards. Those on the reception committee were: Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Page, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shidler and Mr. and Mrs. Paul N. Prasse. The hall was decorated with large flags and streamers, and in the east end of the hall was the emblem of the lodge in green and red electric lights. The leading officers of the commandry are: R. G. Page, eminent commander; J. W. Shidler, generalissimo; Paul N. Prasse, captain general. Messick's orchestra furnished the music, G. W. Kerner leading the grand march. An elaborate banquet was served at the close of the evening.

Members of the Young Women's Home Missionary society were entertained in the friendship parlor of the First M. E. church Monday evening. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. J. M. Sartin, Miss Christine Franz, Miss Maud Heath and Miss Isabelle Kennedy. Miss Isabelle Kennedy was leader giving a talk on "The Red Man". Ellsworth Children Give "Recital;" Object: To Buy Picture Machine

When J. C. Ellsworth awakened from a nap the other Sunday afternoon he heard sounds of unusual activity down stairs. When he had descended the stairs half way he was confronted by his young son, flushed with excitement and energy.

"What's the matter, Frederick?" asked Mr. Ellsworth curiously.

"I've got 55 cents!" answered the young man triumphantly.

"Fifty-five cents?" exclaimed his father. "Why where did you get that?"

"Why we're having a music concert down here, father. Come and see."

And Mr. Ellsworth "went and saw."

The music room was where he went, what he saw was a company of strangers occupying several rows of chairs which had been arranged in front of the piano.

Some famous singer was carolling forth from the victrola and behind the piano bench stood Misses Phyllis and Helene Ellsworth, aged respectively four and nine, presiding over a punch bowl from which they were serving lemonade.

Nonplussed, Mr. Ellsworth sought the audience for explanation and discovered one familiar face. It was that of C. A. Lancaster who with his wife and several of his goodly sized family was present and thoroughly enjoying the situation.

"We've been here an hour or more," he laughed.

"Oh, have you?" answered Mr. Ellsworth, and if his greeting lacked something in enthusiasm, it was because he wasn't altogether certain that his senses weren't playing him false.

"Why, yes," continued Mr. Lancaster. "We saw the sign out in front so we thought we'd come in and see what was doing."

"Sign? What sign?" queried the impromptu host, still more puzzled.

"Why the sign announcing your musical," replied Mr. Lancaster with forced seriousness.

"Helene, if you know what Mr. Lancaster is talking about," commanded Mr. Ellsworth, addressing his young daughter, "go and get that sign."

Helene slipped out the front door and from the front steps carried in a little red-framed slate upon which was scrawled:

MUSICAL CONCERT INSIDE ADULTS 5 CENTS CHILDREN 1 CENT.

"We wanted to make some money to buy a moving picture machine, father," explained Frederick simply, when brought to account.

And, aside from the fact that the concert at the First Presbyterian church next door to the Ellsworth home probably lost a portion of its audience owing to the nearby competition; and apart from the injury done to the mahogany piano bench which served as the lemonade stand, there have been no ill effects from the "musical concert." For Frederick's explanation was a "real" excuse.

Autograph Albums Are Fad of Royalty

Queen Amelie of Portugal Possessor of One of Most Interesting Records.

Autograph albums are greatly favored by those who live in palaces and are of royal blood. One of the most interesting of these albums is that of Queen Amelie of Portugal, in which are recorded the views of scores of "personages" upon one or more of three questions which the album contains.

These questions are: I. "What sort of men do women prefer?" II. "What qualities does woman look for in man?" and III. "Do women love ugly men?" In answer to the third question the tsarina wrote: "Yes, I think there are women who admire ugly men—if they are worthy of admiration." Queen Margarita of Italy, in answer to the same question, said: "From 15 to 20 a woman loves a handsome man. From 30 to 50 a woman admires a handsome man, but after 50 she worships the man whatever he may be."

Princess Hum of Battenberg, the mother of the queen of Spain, has also given her views on this subject. "Many ugly men are amiable, without doubt," she wrote, "but many handsome men are so, too. But a man who has nothing but his fine appearance has only a little chance of obtaining the heart of a large-minded woman."

Queen Amelie herself has subscribed her opinions. She wrote, with reference to the qualities women looked for in man: "In man, beauty is certainly a gift as great and noble as in a woman, but beauty would not prevent him from being the most desirable of beings, such as the man of bad renown, the man who laughs at women or who in her own presence is not comme il faut."

Queen Mary records her opinion, briefly. The quality she most admires in a man is that of modesty, she says.

Brook Trout Will Be Used In Search of Cause for Goitre

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Feb. 9.—Brook trout are being made the "goats" in the goitre test of the Goguc lake and Verona well water, used in Battle Creek for drinking.

The test is being made by the Calhoun County Medical association.

Numerous cases of goitre in and around Battle Creek aroused the physicians to action. It is known, they say, that goitre is often found in fish. They accordingly decided they would place fish in huge tanks of the two kinds of water and observe the results. The theory is that the thyroid glands are affected by the water, and that their enlargement causes the affliction known as goitre.

A goitre census of the city will be taken to find out the exact number of cases here. Physicians have prepared special census cards. They are asking Albion, Marshall and Kalamazoo physicians to take a similar census for purposes of comparison.

TELLS OF SIN'S EFFECTS

Child Loses Characteristics When He Grows Up a Sinner.

To illustrate his subject and make it more impressive Rev. John S. Burns, pastor of the Trinity Presbyterian church, took his child with him to the George Cutter Co. factory Monday noon when he gave a talk to the employees on the subject, "Child Likeness."

"A child like this," said Rev. Mr. Burns, "has four characteristics which it loses as it matures if it gets into the wrong environment, they are, naturalness, peaceableness, humility and trust, all of which leave the child that grows up a sinner."

Public Music Class Will Elect Tonight

Many Singers Are Expected to Join at Meeting at High School Auditorium.

South Bend's only "music-for-all" class will hold its weekly meeting in room 114 at the high school tonight, when permanent officers will be elected. Since the class was organized some time ago by Mrs. Frank M. Smith, the membership has increased to 50 people, and it is expected that this number will grow considerably with each succeeding meeting.

"It is hard to find any city the size of South Bend in the country that does not have a common class where music lovers can go and expand their vocal chords, but this has been the condition of this city in the past. With the talent already shown in the few meetings held, it is believed that good work will be the result."

A concert will be given in the spring by the club and there is room for every singer in South Bend in the chorus. The concert or cantata will be "Paul Revere's Ride," by Carl Busch, an Indiana artist. The club will take up oratorical work as well as singing.

"The object is to bring out talent that would otherwise be lost," said Mrs. Smith. "We have a great number of artists of world fame who, if they had never had the chance to try out their voices would not be known today."
