"The anti-lobby bill is not perfect, but the principle is right," said some of Mr. McNerny's comment. "Very few such reform measures are perfect when they first get onto the statute books, but it is a blame sight better than the republicans could have done, and the democratic party do not need their advice on the kind of laws necessary for democratic to pass in order to promote the welfare of the party."

This was the first open offense, by any democratic leader, with reference to the anti-lobby bill. It was heard with the exception of the speech of Gov. Ralston, made to the house upon the signing of the measure. Democrats, although they had voted for the law, have stood literally side over-side by the habit of tongues put on by republican lobbyists against the measure, many of whom are now believed to have been sent to the statehouse by the republican state machine.

Some of the lobby methods employed against the bill were low enough to justify the measure, if there were no other excuse under the sun. Perhaps no law ever suggested to the legislature has been more deliberately lied about as to the tenor of its provisions than this one, nor had more vicious motives imputed to it.

A change of venue has been taken from the circuit court to the superior court in the cases of John Ramsey, John Chapman and Pierson C. Baker. The defendants are charged with selling liquor without a license, the charge growing out of the investigations of J. H. Quilhot.

Called meeting of South Bend Lodge, No. 234, E. and A. M., Friday evening, Feb. 12, at 7:30. E. A. degree. Visiting brethren fraternally invited.

Another gag of the lobbyists against the anti-lobby bill was to tell the legislators that to vote for the measure meant that they were a bunch of "weak sisters," and afraid to meet the representatives of outside interests lest they might be bribed. It was an appeal to the legislator's self-esteem, but apparently enough of them answered, at least in their own minds, that it was not so much a fear of being bribed, as it was of being misled by misrepresentation and fraud.

It took Mr. McNerny just about three minutes to disperse that group of republicans posing "lamenting the fate of the democracy in this state, warning up to a sor of bi-partisan combination to defeat the law. The plan that the group appeared to have in mind was to boycott registration, and thereby prevent the case from being heard. It happened that someone got arrested, incidentally figuring that there would be no arrests, this on the assumption that enough influence could be brought to bear to prevent such proceedings.

Lambastie the anti-lobby law promoters to become more and more unpopular, and registration more and more popular, as with a few more such defenses, the old "stand-pat" never change—prejudices, meet their Waterloo.
