

NEWS OF THE GRADUATED PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS OF SOUTH BEND

EDITED BY THE PUPILS

Perley School and St. Joseph's Academy Only Schools That Submit Essays on World's Fair

All but a few of the essays this week were not so very well or thoughtfully written. In the first place there were only about half as many sent in this week as usually are submitted—probably because the writers are not very well acquainted with the plans for the world's fair and did not take time to look up anything about it.

Next week we shall write on "My Favorite Story," in which you must name your favorite story, whether it is long or short, give the name of the author and tell why you like it.

The prize winners for this week and the essays taking the first three prizes are as follows: First Prize, $1.00—Margaret McClane, St. Joseph's academy, 7th grade.

Second Prize, two tickets to the Orpheum—Catharine Zeiger, St. Joseph's academy, 7th grade.

Third Prize, two tickets to the Auditorium—Viola Fetters, Perley school, 7A.

Fourth Prize, two tickets to the Majestic—Florence Felix, St. Joseph's academy, 7th grade.

Fifth Prize, two tickets to the Colonial—Sareita Bohn, Perley school, 7A.

Sixth Prize, two tickets to the Surprise—Mary Rose Butler, St. Joseph's academy, 7th grade.

Honorable Mention—Leona Susan, Cecelia Vennet, Genevieve Smith, Ruth Kroeger, St. Joseph's academy.

By Margaret McClane, St. Joseph's Academy.

There are many reasons why I should like to see the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, lasting from Feb. 20 to Dec. 4, 1915.

It would be a great pleasure to travel from South Bend through the different states to the beautiful land of California where flowers bloom the year around and fruit abounds, and birds sing from the tree tops.

The Golden Gate is another thing of interest and the 11 main exhibit palaces which are devoted to machinery, mines, manufactures, varied products, agriculture, metallurgy, education and social economy, fine arts and horticulture; to see every state and territory here as 49 foreign countries represented there, each one in its own style.

To see the world's fair would be in my mind an event never to be forgotten and then the homeward journey and dreaming of the beautiful sights I had witnessed.

By Catharine Zeiger, St. Joseph's Academy.

There are a great many reasons why I would like to attend the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, lasting from Feb. 20 to Dec. 4, 1915.

Some of the girls from the high school class never so eagerly perused their histories as during the past week—in search of suitable names to assume for the colonial party to be given by the freshmen in honor of the graduates.

Our soda-less cook has once again resumed her dignified station after an absence of several days. Too much soda?

Just a reminder—432,000 seconds until lent begins.

The music pupils are glad to welcome back their teacher after a week's absence caused by illness.

Perhaps it is a blessing that the ice has melted, noticing the number of "limblets" put out of commission.

Some of the girls from now on are daily expecting word from some unknown count or other titled relative asking them for a six months' or so visit in order to apply their knowledge of history of foreign lands.

Many of the high school students attended the benefit dance at St. Joseph's hall Wednesday night.

Steamed fish garnished with fresh sprigs of parsley and served with cream butter sauce was prepared by the domestic science class.

All the sophs sympathize with Marie Joyce, the soda-less cook, who has been suffering with a bad cold and toothache.

We are afraid the sophs are getting the "big head" because this is the second time they have been complimented on their "pep."

Famous sports of the past are walking amongst us now, and at every corner one may expect to collide with a George Washington, a Patrick Henry or a LaFayette.

Our history lessons are daily becoming more interesting and by the time we have finished the renaissance and Italian cities we feel that we will surely have accomplished something worth while.

If we may judge by the haste with which Zulma and Snookums rush with a text book to their teacher anxious for a recitation they are not only relentlessly pursuing knowledge, but are also in training for future marathons.

Whether Helen was practicing some of the dramatic effects of Shakespeare or solving how some in "dry water" we are uncertain, but that she lay prostrate on the floor Tuesday morning we are positive.

Wonders will never cease. The latest one the academy has met with is the disappearance of Elizabeth's colonial dress and quilted skirt from its hiding place behind the bookcase.

The German class is progressing as well as can be expected for it seems there is only about one real German in the class.

The sophs seem to be at a standstill in algebra for the problems they are solving now seem to be stickers. The English exercises "falling from a bicycle" afforded much amusement when read as many of them were real occurrences to the readers.

Those who "stood up" longest in the spelling test on Monday were C.

turned on and we all called out, "Surprise!" The color scheme was red and white. In the center of the table was a pot of tulips and at each place were place cards, red paper hearts with pictures outside and limericks inside. Here were lots of good things to eat too and after the party we all went to the Civic club.

The Franklin school had visiting day Wednesday.

We had a lesson on the Philippine Islands Thursday. Five cents was charged for admittance.

KINDERGARTEN. We made Valentines last week.

ROOM ONE. Dorothy Peeter celebrated her seventh birthday Saturday.

ROOM EIGHT. The seventh grade drew pictures of Katrina Van Tassel from the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

ROOM SEVEN. We had our regular drawing lesson Thursday.

ROOM SIX. The fifth grade is learning a new poem, "The Day is Done," by Longfellow.

ROOM FIVE. The fifth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM FOUR. The fourth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM THREE. The third grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM TWO. The second grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM ONE. The first grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

By Viola Fetters, Perley School.

I should think it would be a glorious sight to see all the different countries which are represented there with their different products and manufacturing industries and their dress and mode of living which is so different from our own; to see the different state buildings and the products and manufactures of each state; to see the Liberty bell which was taken to Chicago in 1893 for the world's Columbian exposition.

I would like to see the state of California with its beautiful scenery and the Golden Gate and Santa Barbara.

It would be as good as an education to see the beautiful mountain scenery on the trip going and coming and I would enjoy it a great deal, too.

By Catharine Zeiger, St. Joseph's Academy.

There are many reasons why I should like to attend the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, lasting from Feb. 20 to Dec. 4, 1915.

Some of the girls from the high school class never so eagerly perused their histories as during the past week—in search of suitable names to assume for the colonial party to be given by the freshmen in honor of the graduates.

Our soda-less cook has once again resumed her dignified station after an absence of several days. Too much soda?

Just a reminder—432,000 seconds until lent begins.

The music pupils are glad to welcome back their teacher after a week's absence caused by illness.

Perhaps it is a blessing that the ice has melted, noticing the number of "limblets" put out of commission.

Some of the girls from now on are daily expecting word from some unknown count or other titled relative asking them for a six months' or so visit in order to apply their knowledge of history of foreign lands.

Many of the high school students attended the benefit dance at St. Joseph's hall Wednesday night.

Steamed fish garnished with fresh sprigs of parsley and served with cream butter sauce was prepared by the domestic science class.

All the sophs sympathize with Marie Joyce, the soda-less cook, who has been suffering with a bad cold and toothache.

We are afraid the sophs are getting the "big head" because this is the second time they have been complimented on their "pep."

Famous sports of the past are walking amongst us now, and at every corner one may expect to collide with a George Washington, a Patrick Henry or a LaFayette.

Our history lessons are daily becoming more interesting and by the time we have finished the renaissance and Italian cities we feel that we will surely have accomplished something worth while.

If we may judge by the haste with which Zulma and Snookums rush with a text book to their teacher anxious for a recitation they are not only relentlessly pursuing knowledge, but are also in training for future marathons.

Whether Helen was practicing some of the dramatic effects of Shakespeare or solving how some in "dry water" we are uncertain, but that she lay prostrate on the floor Tuesday morning we are positive.

Wonders will never cease. The latest one the academy has met with is the disappearance of Elizabeth's colonial dress and quilted skirt from its hiding place behind the bookcase.

The German class is progressing as well as can be expected for it seems there is only about one real German in the class.

The sophs seem to be at a standstill in algebra for the problems they are solving now seem to be stickers. The English exercises "falling from a bicycle" afforded much amusement when read as many of them were real occurrences to the readers.

turned on and we all called out, "Surprise!" The color scheme was red and white. In the center of the table was a pot of tulips and at each place were place cards, red paper hearts with pictures outside and limericks inside. Here were lots of good things to eat too and after the party we all went to the Civic club.

The Franklin school had visiting day Wednesday.

We had a lesson on the Philippine Islands Thursday. Five cents was charged for admittance.

KINDERGARTEN. We made Valentines last week.

ROOM ONE. Dorothy Peeter celebrated her seventh birthday Saturday.

ROOM EIGHT. The seventh grade drew pictures of Katrina Van Tassel from the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

ROOM SEVEN. We had our regular drawing lesson Thursday.

ROOM SIX. The fifth grade is learning a new poem, "The Day is Done," by Longfellow.

ROOM FIVE. The fifth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM FOUR. The fourth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM THREE. The third grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM TWO. The second grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM ONE. The first grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

By Viola Fetters, Perley School.

I should think it would be a glorious sight to see all the different countries which are represented there with their different products and manufacturing industries and their dress and mode of living which is so different from our own; to see the different state buildings and the products and manufactures of each state; to see the Liberty bell which was taken to Chicago in 1893 for the world's Columbian exposition.

I would like to see the state of California with its beautiful scenery and the Golden Gate and Santa Barbara.

It would be as good as an education to see the beautiful mountain scenery on the trip going and coming and I would enjoy it a great deal, too.

By Catharine Zeiger, St. Joseph's Academy.

There are many reasons why I should like to attend the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, lasting from Feb. 20 to Dec. 4, 1915.

Some of the girls from the high school class never so eagerly perused their histories as during the past week—in search of suitable names to assume for the colonial party to be given by the freshmen in honor of the graduates.

Our soda-less cook has once again resumed her dignified station after an absence of several days. Too much soda?

Just a reminder—432,000 seconds until lent begins.

The music pupils are glad to welcome back their teacher after a week's absence caused by illness.

Perhaps it is a blessing that the ice has melted, noticing the number of "limblets" put out of commission.

Some of the girls from now on are daily expecting word from some unknown count or other titled relative asking them for a six months' or so visit in order to apply their knowledge of history of foreign lands.

Many of the high school students attended the benefit dance at St. Joseph's hall Wednesday night.

Steamed fish garnished with fresh sprigs of parsley and served with cream butter sauce was prepared by the domestic science class.

All the sophs sympathize with Marie Joyce, the soda-less cook, who has been suffering with a bad cold and toothache.

We are afraid the sophs are getting the "big head" because this is the second time they have been complimented on their "pep."

Famous sports of the past are walking amongst us now, and at every corner one may expect to collide with a George Washington, a Patrick Henry or a LaFayette.

Our history lessons are daily becoming more interesting and by the time we have finished the renaissance and Italian cities we feel that we will surely have accomplished something worth while.

If we may judge by the haste with which Zulma and Snookums rush with a text book to their teacher anxious for a recitation they are not only relentlessly pursuing knowledge, but are also in training for future marathons.

Whether Helen was practicing some of the dramatic effects of Shakespeare or solving how some in "dry water" we are uncertain, but that she lay prostrate on the floor Tuesday morning we are positive.

Wonders will never cease. The latest one the academy has met with is the disappearance of Elizabeth's colonial dress and quilted skirt from its hiding place behind the bookcase.

The German class is progressing as well as can be expected for it seems there is only about one real German in the class.

The sophs seem to be at a standstill in algebra for the problems they are solving now seem to be stickers. The English exercises "falling from a bicycle" afforded much amusement when read as many of them were real occurrences to the readers.

Those who "stood up" longest in the spelling test on Monday were C.

turned on and we all called out, "Surprise!" The color scheme was red and white. In the center of the table was a pot of tulips and at each place were place cards, red paper hearts with pictures outside and limericks inside. Here were lots of good things to eat too and after the party we all went to the Civic club.

The Franklin school had visiting day Wednesday.

We had a lesson on the Philippine Islands Thursday. Five cents was charged for admittance.

KINDERGARTEN. We made Valentines last week.

ROOM ONE. Dorothy Peeter celebrated her seventh birthday Saturday.

ROOM EIGHT. The seventh grade drew pictures of Katrina Van Tassel from the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

ROOM SEVEN. We had our regular drawing lesson Thursday.

ROOM SIX. The fifth grade is learning a new poem, "The Day is Done," by Longfellow.

ROOM FIVE. The fifth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM FOUR. The fourth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM THREE. The third grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM TWO. The second grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM ONE. The first grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

By Viola Fetters, Perley School.

I should think it would be a glorious sight to see all the different countries which are represented there with their different products and manufacturing industries and their dress and mode of living which is so different from our own; to see the different state buildings and the products and manufactures of each state; to see the Liberty bell which was taken to Chicago in 1893 for the world's Columbian exposition.

I would like to see the state of California with its beautiful scenery and the Golden Gate and Santa Barbara.

It would be as good as an education to see the beautiful mountain scenery on the trip going and coming and I would enjoy it a great deal, too.

By Catharine Zeiger, St. Joseph's Academy.

There are many reasons why I should like to attend the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, lasting from Feb. 20 to Dec. 4, 1915.

Some of the girls from the high school class never so eagerly perused their histories as during the past week—in search of suitable names to assume for the colonial party to be given by the freshmen in honor of the graduates.

Our soda-less cook has once again resumed her dignified station after an absence of several days. Too much soda?

Just a reminder—432,000 seconds until lent begins.

The music pupils are glad to welcome back their teacher after a week's absence caused by illness.

Perhaps it is a blessing that the ice has melted, noticing the number of "limblets" put out of commission.

Some of the girls from now on are daily expecting word from some unknown count or other titled relative asking them for a six months' or so visit in order to apply their knowledge of history of foreign lands.

Many of the high school students attended the benefit dance at St. Joseph's hall Wednesday night.

Steamed fish garnished with fresh sprigs of parsley and served with cream butter sauce was prepared by the domestic science class.

All the sophs sympathize with Marie Joyce, the soda-less cook, who has been suffering with a bad cold and toothache.

We are afraid the sophs are getting the "big head" because this is the second time they have been complimented on their "pep."

Famous sports of the past are walking amongst us now, and at every corner one may expect to collide with a George Washington, a Patrick Henry or a LaFayette.

Our history lessons are daily becoming more interesting and by the time we have finished the renaissance and Italian cities we feel that we will surely have accomplished something worth while.

If we may judge by the haste with which Zulma and Snookums rush with a text book to their teacher anxious for a recitation they are not only relentlessly pursuing knowledge, but are also in training for future marathons.

Whether Helen was practicing some of the dramatic effects of Shakespeare or solving how some in "dry water" we are uncertain, but that she lay prostrate on the floor Tuesday morning we are positive.

Wonders will never cease. The latest one the academy has met with is the disappearance of Elizabeth's colonial dress and quilted skirt from its hiding place behind the bookcase.

The German class is progressing as well as can be expected for it seems there is only about one real German in the class.

The sophs seem to be at a standstill in algebra for the problems they are solving now seem to be stickers. The English exercises "falling from a bicycle" afforded much amusement when read as many of them were real occurrences to the readers.

Those who "stood up" longest in the spelling test on Monday were C.

turned on and we all called out, "Surprise!" The color scheme was red and white. In the center of the table was a pot of tulips and at each place were place cards, red paper hearts with pictures outside and limericks inside. Here were lots of good things to eat too and after the party we all went to the Civic club.

The Franklin school had visiting day Wednesday.

We had a lesson on the Philippine Islands Thursday. Five cents was charged for admittance.

KINDERGARTEN. We made Valentines last week.

ROOM ONE. Dorothy Peeter celebrated her seventh birthday Saturday.

ROOM EIGHT. The seventh grade drew pictures of Katrina Van Tassel from the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

ROOM SEVEN. We had our regular drawing lesson Thursday.

ROOM SIX. The fifth grade is learning a new poem, "The Day is Done," by Longfellow.

ROOM FIVE. The fifth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM FOUR. The fourth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM THREE. The third grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM TWO. The second grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM ONE. The first grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

By Viola Fetters, Perley School.

I should think it would be a glorious sight to see all the different countries which are represented there with their different products and manufacturing industries and their dress and mode of living which is so different from our own; to see the different state buildings and the products and manufactures of each state; to see the Liberty bell which was taken to Chicago in 1893 for the world's Columbian exposition.

I would like to see the state of California with its beautiful scenery and the Golden Gate and Santa Barbara.

It would be as good as an education to see the beautiful mountain scenery on the trip going and coming and I would enjoy it a great deal, too.

By Catharine Zeiger, St. Joseph's Academy.

There are many reasons why I should like to attend the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, lasting from Feb. 20 to Dec. 4, 1915.

Some of the girls from the high school class never so eagerly perused their histories as during the past week—in search of suitable names to assume for the colonial party to be given by the freshmen in honor of the graduates.

Our soda-less cook has once again resumed her dignified station after an absence of several days. Too much soda?

Just a reminder—432,000 seconds until lent begins.

The music pupils are glad to welcome back their teacher after a week's absence caused by illness.

Perhaps it is a blessing that the ice has melted, noticing the number of "limblets" put out of commission.

Some of the girls from now on are daily expecting word from some unknown count or other titled relative asking them for a six months' or so visit in order to apply their knowledge of history of foreign lands.

Many of the high school students attended the benefit dance at St. Joseph's hall Wednesday night.

Steamed fish garnished with fresh sprigs of parsley and served with cream butter sauce was prepared by the domestic science class.

All the sophs sympathize with Marie Joyce, the soda-less cook, who has been suffering with a bad cold and toothache.

We are afraid the sophs are getting the "big head" because this is the second time they have been complimented on their "pep."

Famous sports of the past are walking amongst us now, and at every corner one may expect to collide with a George Washington, a Patrick Henry or a LaFayette.

Our history lessons are daily becoming more interesting and by the time we have finished the renaissance and Italian cities we feel that we will surely have accomplished something worth while.

If we may judge by the haste with which Zulma and Snookums rush with a text book to their teacher anxious for a recitation they are not only relentlessly pursuing knowledge, but are also in training for future marathons.

Whether Helen was practicing some of the dramatic effects of Shakespeare or solving how some in "dry water" we are uncertain, but that she lay prostrate on the floor Tuesday morning we are positive.

Wonders will never cease. The latest one the academy has met with is the disappearance of Elizabeth's colonial dress and quilted skirt from its hiding place behind the bookcase.

The German class is progressing as well as can be expected for it seems there is only about one real German in the class.

The sophs seem to be at a standstill in algebra for the problems they are solving now seem to be stickers. The English exercises "falling from a bicycle" afforded much amusement when read as many of them were real occurrences to the readers.

Those who "stood up" longest in the spelling test on Monday were C.

turned on and we all called out, "Surprise!" The color scheme was red and white. In the center of the table was a pot of tulips and at each place were place cards, red paper hearts with pictures outside and limericks inside. Here were lots of good things to eat too and after the party we all went to the Civic club.

The Franklin school had visiting day Wednesday.

We had a lesson on the Philippine Islands Thursday. Five cents was charged for admittance.

KINDERGARTEN. We made Valentines last week.

ROOM ONE. Dorothy Peeter celebrated her seventh birthday Saturday.

ROOM EIGHT. The seventh grade drew pictures of Katrina Van Tassel from the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

ROOM SEVEN. We had our regular drawing lesson Thursday.

ROOM SIX. The fifth grade is learning a new poem, "The Day is Done," by Longfellow.

ROOM FIVE. The fifth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM FOUR. The fourth grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM THREE. The third grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM TWO. The second grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

ROOM ONE. The first grade is learning the "Snowflake" song.

By Viola Fetters, Perley School.

I should think it would be a glorious sight to see all the different countries which are represented there with their different products and manufacturing industries and their dress and mode of living which is so different from our own; to see the different state buildings and the products and manufactures of each state; to see the Liberty bell which was taken to Chicago in 1893 for the world's Columbian exposition.

I would like to see the state of California with its beautiful scenery and the Golden Gate and Santa Barbara.

It would be as good as an education to see the beautiful mountain scenery on the trip going and coming and I would enjoy it a great deal, too.

By Catharine Zeiger, St. Joseph's Academy.

There are many reasons why I should like to attend the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco, lasting from Feb. 20 to Dec. 4, 1915.

Some of the girls from the high school class never so eagerly perused their histories as during the past week—in search of suitable names to assume for the colonial party to be given by the freshmen in honor of the graduates.