GERMAN OFFICER IS HELD AS SPY

Richard von Miller Attempts to Take His Life After Being Arrested.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The attempt to a reputable German naval officer and spy, Richard von Miller, commit suicide while under arrest near Denver Thursday, and the discovery in his papers of a letter bearing the signature "E. 414 Julian st., Waukegan," promises to reveal an international intrigue.

The address mentioned in the letter is the residence of the family of the late Circuit Judge Charles Whitney, whose daughter's name is Ethel, and whose son is Fred B. Whitney, president of the Lake Submarine Co. This concern, which is being shipping scores of submarines to England, has aroused the bitter enmity of the pro-Germans.

Denies Knowing Man. Fred B. Whitney is supposed to be in Los Angeles now, but his sister, Miss Ethel Whitney, returned only Tuesday from a visit to Denver, where von Miller has been stopping. She denied Thursday night that she knows von Miller or that she knows anything about any intrigue in which he might be involved or what might be directed against her brother or his business.

"I never heard of any of this business before; I cannot understand why a letter bearing such a signature should have been found on a man of whom I have never heard," she said.

Jumps from Train. Ostensibly von Miller was not arrested in connection with any international affair. Dispatches from Denver merely state that he was accused of passing fraudulent checks in Denver and that he had been arrested at Salt Lake City. On the way back to Denver, accompanied by an officer, he leaped from an express train. The Denver police, knowing nothing of the significance of the letters, later found on him, interpreted this as an attempt to kill himself.

"If von Miller is concerned in any really important matter connected with the Lake Submarine Co., it may have been instead a desperate attempt to escape. The Denver police say that von Miller is also known as 'Robert Ingersoll Miller' and 'Rhode Island Miller of Washington.'"

POPE TO MOVE FOR PEACE

Will Urge Rulers to Agree to End Warfare Soon.

ROME, Aug. 6.—Pope Benedict XV will launch a great campaign for peace in Europe at the next consistory held at the Vatican.

This probably will take place between the end of August and the middle of September.

In addition to the cardinals taking part in the consistory, bishops from the largest cities of Europe will be invited to come here and participate in the great council which will issue a peace appeal to every belligerent nation.

PRESENT FASHIONS INFLUENCED BY WAR

"JELICOE" HAT & MILITARY CAPE.

Just as khaki has become the fashionable color for men in the war zone, so have military trappings appealed to the women. This picture shows one of the most fashionable costumes turned out in a famous London shop. The hat is called the "Jelicoe" because it resembles the chapeau worn by Sir Admiral Jelicoe, the hero of the British North sea fleet. The cape is in keeping with the hat, being of a military cut and color, dark blue. Fluffy laces and volles have given way to the more substantial materials in women's clothes and garments are now designed with more of an eye to their serviceability than appearance.

J. C. Messick of Goshen visited Friday at the home of his nephew, Dr. A. R. Messick, 503 Portage av.

A WONDERFUL PICTURE. "Hypocrites," which comes to the LaSalle next Monday for three days, is spoken of as a terrible arraignment of hypocrisy in all walks of life.

IVANGOROD FALLS IN TEUTON HANDS

Russian Troops Are Withdrawn After Bridges and Forts Are Destroyed.

from Novo Minsk, another from Brest Litovsk and others from Radom, Lukow and Lublin.

Three separate armies were in front of the city, but an official dispatch from Vienna indicated that it was the Austro-Hungarian army under Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, that first entered the stronghold.

Russ Blew Up Forts. Before retreating the Russians blew up the forts which had not already been reduced by the mighty howitzers of the Teutonic forces.

News of the important victory at Ivangorod heightened the patriotic fervor that had been aroused yesterday by news of the capture of Warsaw. The city is gay with flags and pictures of the German generals in Poland are displayed everywhere.

Praise for the Bavarian troops, who entered Warsaw yesterday morning is upon the lips of all. In the meantime, however, it is plainly evident that the gigantic operation in Poland are far from finished. It is the plan of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Field Marshal von Mackensen to pursue the retreating Russians relentlessly and give them no rest. This is shown by the fury of the fighting south of Ostrolenka, where the armies of Gen. von Scholtz and Gen. von Gallwitz are driving toward the railway junction of Ostrow, North of Cholza, the army of Field Marshal von Mackensen is pushing northward in the direction of Brest Litovsk along the Bug river.

That the Teutonic generals' staffs have decided to try to outflank the retreating Russian army in order to prevent their escape into the swamps some distance from Warsaw is continually shown by the heavy forces of the Teutonic armies now engaged.

Although it is now apparent that the Russian commander was able to get his main army out of Warsaw the fate of the Russian forces still hangs in the balance. German strategy took into account the possibility of a successful retreat from Warsaw and it was for that reason that Gen. von Suelow was sent so far into the north. A successful encircling movement would leave no serious bar to the occupation of the Russian capital itself by the victorious soldiers of the two Teutonic empires, Bavarians in First.

The honor of being the first to enter Warsaw goes to the Bavarian troops under Prince Leopold, a brother of the King of Bavaria, who appeared before Warsaw only 26 hours before the city fell. It was under the storming attacks of the Bavarians that the Russians were forced to evacuate the strong Blonie lines, west of Warsaw and fall back within the outer fortifications. The big German guns hurriedly brought up took on a 6-inch time to effect a breach and the Bavarians again returned to the attack. But while the Bavarians and their prince won all the honors due them the real credit for the capture of the Polish capital goes to Field Marshal von Hindenburg, whose mighty blows along the Narew sealed the fate of the city more than two weeks ago, and to Field Marshal von Mackensen, whose drive through Galicia made possible the great enveloping movement which has given the Germans all of Poland.

Break Through at Blonie. Breaking through at Blonie the Bavarians advanced upon Warsaw by the Kolsh and Radom roads. The Russian garrison fell back across the Vistula bridges to Praga, an eastern suburb, and, it is believed, blew up the bridges behind them to hinder the pursuit of the Bavarians.

From Praga the Russian center is falling back rapidly upon Novo Minsk and over the plain to the north of the railway line. But at Wyszkow on the Bug and along the Russian line of retreat Gen. von Gallwitz is trying desperately to break through, seize the railway and cut off the Russians. If he succeeds this force will be trapped and cut off from its right wing near Novo Georgievsk with which at last reports it was keeping in contact. No word has been received from von Gallwitz in more than 12 hours. A little to the south the Archduke Joseph Ferdinand at the head of an Austrian army also is trying to break through.

Between the Vistula and the Bug von Mackensen continues to press forward rapidly upon Brest-Litovsk. According to an official report Thursday the Russian retreat is becoming faster. German attacks on the northern defenses along the Narew are proceeding with success, it is asserted in Berlin.

Retreat Ordered Two Days Ago. It is reported semi-officially from Petrograd that the retreat from Warsaw was ordered two days ago and that the Russian troops remaining in the capital began at that time to withdraw to Praga. Of the men left behind it is believed that those not killed fell into the hands of the Germans. It is not believed that much booty was left behind although the Germans undoubtedly will find a number of big guns left in the fortresses.

By Francis Lavelle Murray. PETROGRAD, Aug. 6.—Warsaw and Ivangorod are lost to the Russians but latest reports received at the war office indicate that Grand Duke Nicholas is withdrawing his main armies, methodically and checking attacks by the Austro-German forces on both his flanks.

Though the evacuation of Ivangorod was announced only a few hours after it was admitted that the troops left in Warsaw to protect the Russian retreat, had withdrawn, the abandonment of the Vistula river front caused no panic in Petrograd today. The public had been prepared for bad news.

The evacuation of Ivangorod was announced in the following report from Grand Duke Nicholas under date of Aug. 5 (Thursday): "Today, in view of the impossibility of Ivangorod sustaining a siege, all stores were timely and methodically withdrawn."

"On a few lines of field works west of Ivangorod, our rear guards stopped the enemy's progress for a few days, but on Aug. 4, in conformity with our general strategic plan, without sanguinary combats, our active rear guards blew up several concrete bases on which brick casements rested, destroyed the Vistula bridges and retreated to the right bank of the Vistula."
