NO FURTHER VACATION FOR PREST WILSON

Protest to Great Britain is Prepared But Will Not be Sent Until German Case is Further Progressed.

BERLIN, Via Amsterdam, Aug. 30.—Eleven days have now elapsed since the sinking of the liner Arabic, but the admiralty has received no official word that it was destroyed by a German submarine.

By John Edwin Nevin, WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Prest Wilson has abandoned definitely any further vacation plans at this time.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Prest Wilson has abandoned definitely any further vacation plans at this time. He is marking time today, while waiting for Germany's formal disavowal of the deaths of the Americans lost with the Arabic and for a formal protest from such a disavowal cannot occur in the future.

The administration has accepted Germany at her word. The president confidently expects that not only will he soon receive a formal disavowal of the Arabic attacks, but that Germany will reply specifically to his last Lusitania note accepting the American viewpoint that submarines must obey existing international law.

Plans Another Move. In addition to formally protesting against the British order in council and the placing of cotton on the contraband list, the president is expected to prepare another "simultaneous" note to England and Germany, suggesting an agreement that Germany will limit naval warfare and blockade methods.
