TELLS HOW EAST DEALS WITH POOR

Miss Ada Hess, Civic Expert, Says Schools Maintained by Free Will Offerings.

Various methods and means employed in settlement work in eastern cities, principally Rochester, N. Y., and New York city, was explained before the Woman's Civic league at Melville hall last night by Miss Ada Hess, civic expert of Rochester. Miss Hess' lecture was explanatory of the successful results that have been achieved in the work among the poor in some of the larger cities.

According to Miss Hess, the house-keeping centers in Rochester are doing great work for the poor and foreign element of that city and is progressing in its purpose of uplifting the people and bettering home conditions. Prominent among the movements in the settlement work in Rochester is the industrial school where youngsters are cared for during the day while their mothers are employed.

Donations Keep School. The school is maintained by free will offerings and donations and the children are taught in all branches, including domestic science and manual training work. The younger children are fed during the morning and afternoon in addition to the regular noonday meal.

The school city of Rochester has a woman called the school visitor, a semi-truant officer. Whenever a boy or girl leaves school it is her duty to visit the home, ascertain the conditions there and the real cause for the child's remaining away from the schools. Ofttimes she can arrange to place the boy or girl in a different line of school work better to his or her liking and capabilities.

The school buildings of Rochester are not used for the community center meetings as they are occupied practically every night during the fall, winter and spring months by students taking work in the night schools. Special buildings are set apart for the settlement work and the community meetings.

Woman Visits Homes. Another important phase of the settlement work is carried on by a woman who visits the homes and arranges scientific schedules by which families of limited means can live upon their incomes. Classes in domestic science in the public schools aid greatly in figuring out these problems.

PREACHES SALVATION AT RESCUE MISSION

Rev. T. J. Parsons Speaks of Greatness, and Cost to Mankind if Neglected.

"The Great Salvation," was the subject of the sermon preached by Rev. T. J. Parsons, pastor of Quincy Street Baptist church, last night at the City Rescue mission on Jackson blvd. He raised the question of how we shall escape the devil if we neglect to accept the great salvation.

"Salvation is great in its cost, as the Son of God gave to the world of sin that the people might be saved. He was taken from a kingdom of glory and placed in the sinful world to suffer and die the death of the cross for sinners," said Rev. Parsons.

"The salvation is great because it saves not only the soul but the body and spirit as well, saving the sinner who is physically and mentally weak, making him a man worthy of God."

"This great universal application is free to every soul, no matter what his life may be. Whether he is an aid to society, a church worker or a sinner, all are treated alike in the kingdom of God."

"We don't need angels, nor do we have to blaspheme Christ to lose our souls. All we need to do is to neglect to accept the salvation of God and we are lost."

SEEK SIGNERS ON DIXIE ROAD ROUTE

Marshall County Men Out With Petitions Prepared by Motor Club.

Plymouth business men and the farmers in the western section of North township, Marshall county, are being sought by Marshall county commissioners and other men interested in the welfare of the Dixie highway, so that they may sign the two petitions prepared at the meeting of the Northern Indiana Motor club at Lapaz Tuesday night for the construction of the seven and one-fourth miles of the Michigan road which extends through North township.

H. W. Armstrong, secretary of the motor club, was in Plymouth Thursday to aid in the work of procuring signers for the two petitions, which were prepared under the "three-mile" state road construction act of the last legislature. The stretch of road through North township was designated by officials of the highway as being the "worst stretch of road in Indiana" and was the only stumbling block in the path of routing the new highway along the Michigan road.

Sixteen signers to each of the petitions were procured at the Lapaz meeting, and as the names of only 50 men are required, it was thought that it would take a short time to get the work started. The farmers of the western portion of the township were reluctant to take a hand in the construction of the road, it was said, because it extended along only the eastern side of the township. However, when William Hupp of this city, John J. O'Keefe of Plymouth, and other speakers, stated that the officials of the highway were considering a shift which would take the road through Rochester and Bremen, the cooperation of the entire township was secured.

One mile and a quarter of road in the center of the township will be constructed by popular subscription. Several prominent Plymouth men and farmers in the vicinity of Lapaz have stated that they would aid in various ways in the construction of this stretch which must be completed before the three mile sections at each of the township are started.

GET REDUCTION IN INSURANCE RATES

Will Apply Only to Public Buildings, Contents Being Excepted—Protest Leads to Cut.

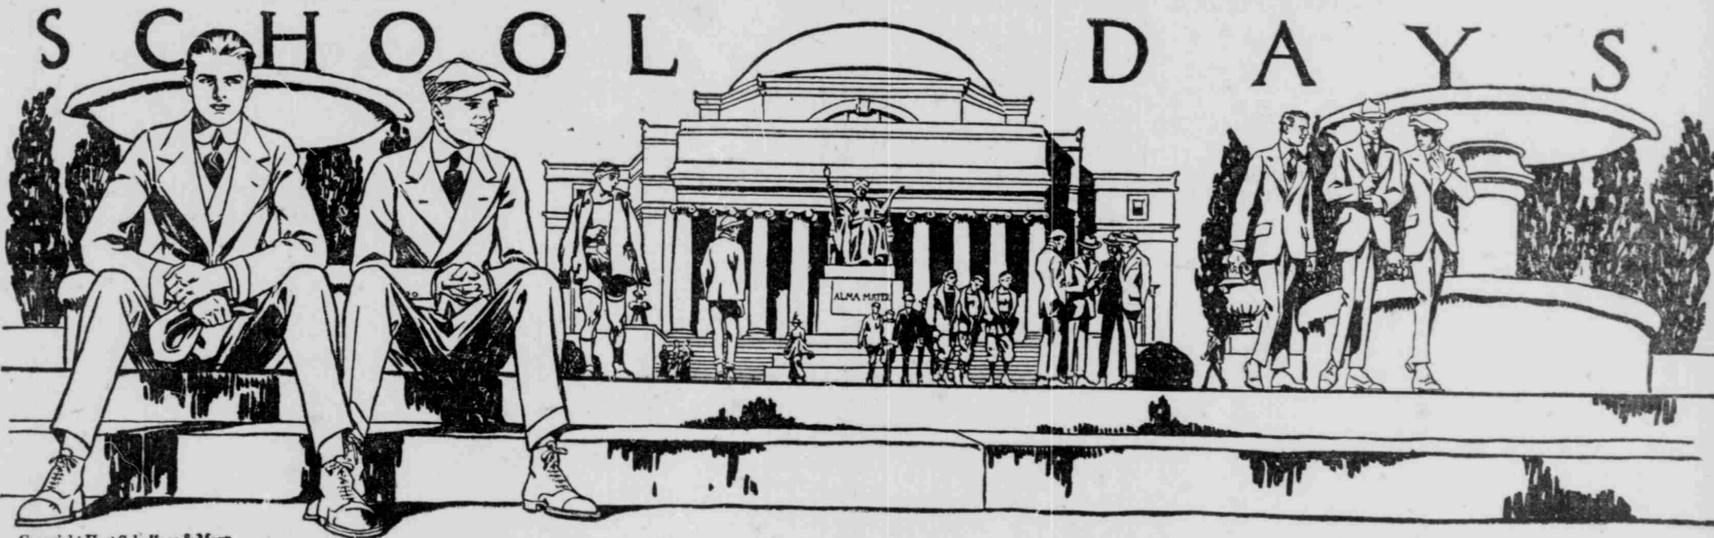

Mercantile buildings in South Bend have received a 20 per cent reduction on insurance rates that were published on or before Aug. 27, 1915. This reduction will apply not only to dwelling houses but also to all public buildings of brick and frame structure with contents excepted; such as churches, libraries, jails, asylums, court houses, hospitals, almshouses, reform schools and infirmaries.

Protests have been made in this city against the rates on buildings which lead to this reduction, according to A. D. Hall of the Indiana inspection bureau of this city. The insurance companies have been making a reduction after the quotation has been made by the bureau and for this reason the bureau has lowered the rate so the company will not make such a reduction.
