Clever Features in This Frock

By La Racontuse.

For general street wear the gabardine and satin trotter frock is both smart and practical, and the simpler the better, for with ordinary wear a dress is sure to show the wear and tear. A particularly smart frock is featured in navy gabardine and satin. The satin predominates, being featured in the upper part of the full skirt which has a clever trick of a scalloped border. The long sleeved bodice combines to a greater extent the gabardine and satin features, a "jacket back" which terminates in a double belt effect in front. A wired organza collar and vest lends a bright note and touches of head embroidery afford smart trimming. A velvet and felt sailor is becomingly worn.

A table prettily appointed in garden flowers, with yellow and white satin streamers from the center to the place favors. A miniature cupid marked the place of the bride-to-be. The club presented Miss Omer with a beautiful cut glass celery dish. Mrs. Edward Tucker, 625 N. Scott st., will entertain Tuesday evening for Miss Omer.

The Cosmopolitan club was pleasantly entertained Thursday evening by Miss Verna Lanz, 408 E. Paris st. The evening was spent in sewing and refreshments were served during a social hour. A contest at which Miss Jeanette Shinville won the favor was a feature of the evening. The next meeting will be held with Miss Jeanette Greening, 613 Sherman av., in two weeks.

Mrs. Louis Landick and Mrs. A. W. Moose pleasantly celebrated their birthday anniversaries Thursday with a 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of the former, 448 Lincoln way E. The table decorations were of asters and cosmos, and covers were placed for 17. The luncheon was followed by social diversions with music. The out-of-town guests were Mrs. Burst and daughter of Grand Rapids, Mich., Mrs. Ashler of New York City, and Mrs. Crull and daughter of near Osceola.

Going Shopping?

The News-Times Shopper's Guide Contains Some Valuable Suggestions.

Women Should Make a Study Of Bargains

By Sue D. O'Nym.

To be able to shop intelligently, to be able to bring to bear upon the problem of selecting materials a sum of certain knowledge, increases the pleasure as well as the efficiency of the housewife in the pursuit of her duties. A little certain knowledge would save bargain hunting from being either a joke or a tragedy, into which it sometimes resolves itself.

A woman too often expects of a bargain what it makes no pretenses at offering. Just as many times a bargain is more advantageous than she realizes.

Take the matter of linens for instance. Several of the local stores are offering them as bargain prices just now—the best linens that are made. There is a reason back of every sale. There should be back of these. And this is doubtless it.

There are two methods of bleaching linens, the grass and the snow. The grass bleached linen comes onto the market usually in November or December. When the merchants make a point of linen sales in the fall the probability is that they are clearing their shelves of stock to make room for the purchases of early winter.

Material Imported. Most of the material sold as table linen is imported. There are three leading suppliers—the Irish, Scotch and German. Austrian and French being included under the latter. The Irish is considered the best and is the most expensive. It ranges in price from 75 cents to $1.00 a yard. One merchant is offering five patterns 60-inch fully bleached Irish linen damask of the 75 cent quality for 59 cents.

The German linen runs from 50 cents to $1.50; the Scotch, in the bleached form, from 50 cents to $2.00. A fine thread damask may not be a superior wearing fabric. The weight is the criterion. The best fabrics are not too fine, firm but soft and heavy with a little sheen, with a more elastic leathery appearance are better.

The German damask has a closer, harder twisted thread than the others, making it a very durable linen. The Germans enter less to variety of pattern and there are produce less showy cloths, but they are very durable and therefore less expensive.

In selecting a pattern a medium size pattern, as the tulip, is very satisfactory. It is a matter of taste to a great extent. Large patterns are more effective than small but the latter are good for late autumn when so well liked as to become stock patterns, as Scotch flower, Irish snowdrop and German checkerboard.

Time is Opportunity. The time is also opportune for buying floor coverings. Some of the stores are holding openings in this department while others are playing up rugs and carpets in their window displays. A little knowledge will go a long way in taking advantage of special prices in carpeting.

Of the different grades ingrain, as everyone knows, is the cheapest. It is loosely woven but wearing qualities are surprising. The only objection to it is that it is difficult to secure pleasing colors. Tapestry comes next in value, resembling Brussels on the right side, but having a canvas like reverse color on the side only. Brussels carpeting is heavy with colors on both sides. It wears excellently and generally proves best for ordinary use. The Brussels carpet is a heavy pile carpet and is called velvet carpets as the Axminster and Wilton. The Wiltons wear admirably and are very satisfactory in colors and patterns.

Smaller, cheaper colors and indefinite designs are more artistic, cheaper and more serviceable than the opposite. One should endeavor to secure a generally pleasing effect in a carpet, so that when wearing qualities are desired will be made attractive without one's being especially conscious through what means the effect is produced. A carpet with striking pattern and color which arrests and holds attention is not pleasing.
