Business Girl Must Be Self-Respecting

If Efficiency is Her Watchword She Will Meet With Success.

By Beatrice Fairfax. Temptation exists mostly for the people who look for it or invite it! This is not the hard-hearted statement of one who fails to sympathize with the troubles of her own sex—rather it is a generalization to which there are indeed exceptions.

All through the world, in every walk of life, there are unscrupulous and designing men. The girl who lives sheltered and protected in her own home meets with temptation. The girl who goes down to business meets it, too, but in both cases one of two things occur—the girl who is unfortunate in the men with whom she comes in contact, or blunders on her own part invite catastrophe.

There are plenty of men in the world who are heads of prey rather than human beings. From them neither maid, wife nor widow is quite safe. But the average man is a sane, decent person, with plenty of kindly instincts and a great deal of chivalry. Such a man respects nobody more than a self-respecting working girl who invites neither impudence nor familiarity.

The Proper Way. If the girl who goes down to business goes clad in an armor of dignified self-respect, of efficient determination to do her work and do it well, and of faith in the fact that the world is built on the principle of "live and let live," she is likely to get on famously and find herself quite undisturbed in her desire to do her work.

But does the average girl go thus equipped? Doesn't she rather have a little sneaking feeling that her sex is an asset—and one she might as well make the most of? Doesn't she dress to be attractive so that even office boys will gallantly sharpen pencils and run errands for her?

Not all men imagine that the business girl is an adventuress who is looking for trouble or a shy little creature who is fair game for any man. But there are some who take this unchivalrous and contemptible attitude toward women just as there are women who warrant men in taking it.

The Temptations. The temptations of a business girl are due directly to two things—the position of the armor of some silly girls who cause more dignified ones to be misjudged, and the wickedness in the natures of some men which a dignified girl by meeting and meeting well may possibly be able to lessen in slight degree.

The girl who goes down to business willing to do her work and not to be a cry-baby, and try to take advantage of her femininity to get her off from any duties, will meet with the protection of every decent man with whom she comes in contact.

That girl makes it easier for every other girl in the business world! The men who have met her and who know what a "white honest little thing" she is, remember her and treat all other working women with a respect due to the germ of an idea that "white little thing" engendered.

There is a fine chivalry in work for women. Women owe it to one another to uphold it. Every girl who behaves herself with dignity, who does her work well and who neither looks for trouble nor becomes panicky when she sees actual signs of it, keeps that chivalry white and true.

And when she meets with difficulty she will find there are plenty of splendid men ready to answer her with protection and to give her the "benevolent" nod. It does not pay for the business girl to look for trouble. It is beneath contempt for her to invite it. If she does neither of the two, the difficulties that chance to beset her will be fairly easy to handle.
