CENSORS LISTEN TO PETITIONERS

Negroes Object to Three Parts of "Birth of Nation"—No Action Taken.

Protests against the showing of the motion picture "The Birth of a Nation," were registered by a number of prominent colored people of the city board of censors held Wednesday night in the council chamber. No definite action was taken by the committee, the matter being left until more investigation of public sentiment had been made. If allowed, the film will be shown here some time in December.

The main protest registered by the colored people present at the meeting was that the film depicts the lower side of some of the more degenerate types of negroes, and is an injustice to the race in general. It was also pointed out that race riots and bitter racial feeling has developed in several cities where the film has been shown, including Philadelphia and other large cities.

Particular objection was made to three scenes in the picture play. One of the scenes depicts an attack on a young white girl by a negro servant, which causes the girl to commit suicide. The other two are concerned with the improper relations between members of the two races.

Although no vote has yet been taken, it is believed that the board is in favor of letting the picture show here. It is possible that some of the objectionable scenes will be deleted.

DECLARE EXTRA DIVIDEND

Quarterly Returns on Studebaker Stock Payable Soon.

An extra one per cent in addition to the regular dividend of 1-1/2 per cent on the common stock has been declared by the Studebaker corporation. The regular quarterly dividend of 1-3/4 per cent has also been declared on the preferred stock. In their statement the directors express the belief that the extra one per cent of the common stock will be regularly declared hereafter. The dividend on the common stock will be payable on Dec. 1 and that on the preferred stock at the close of business on Nov. 20.

Charles Muesel and Mrs. Filley Keep Secret Two Months.

It has become known to friends of Charles A. Muesel and Mrs. Daisy Filley that the couple were secretly married on Aug. 4 at St. Joseph, Mich. Mr. Muesel confirmed the report of the marriage Wednesday. Mr. Muesel is in the grocery business in this city and is a director in the South Bend Wholesale Grocery Co. Mrs. Muesel is connected with the millinery department of the Ellsworth store.

SALE INCOMPLETED

The Martin garage, S. St. Joseph st. and E. Jefferson Blvd., reported to the police department Wednesday night that a stranger attempted to sell them a large automobile tire, thought to have been stolen from some garage or off from some car. The man entered the garage about 9 o'clock, and tried to sell the tire. Seeing a policeman in the garage, he hurried out and made his escape. The tire was recovered, and is waiting at the police station for its owner to claim it.

Good Will Week—

Why It's Needed

History of Orphans' Home is Filled With Deeds of Charity.

I have been asked to give a history of the Orphans' home to help the Good Will week this month. To write a history of this home would be a greater work than anyone could accomplish in a few days' time. Indeed a book could be written of the children that have entered this home and gone from it to new homes. It was 33 years last May since it was organized, quite a span of the lives of the women that had this broad vision to help the dependent children, those that are left to the care of the public. Four of the charter members are living, and three of them are active members. Mrs. Tabur Ham, Mrs. A. Ney, Mishawaka and Mrs. J. M. Studebaker and Mrs. E. S. Reynolds of South Bend. Mrs. Reynolds asked last June to be placed on the honorary council because of ill health she was no longer able to do active work. The board did so at the annual meeting. Mrs. Reynolds has been a good friend to this home. She has given not only hard work, good advice, but most generously with her means. It was she that gave the playgrounds and the equipment which has been such a joy to the children, and many other ways she has given of her means to help carry on the work. This home was organized in the basement of the Methodist church, Mishawaka, by a group of interested women of the W. C. T. U. in the month of June 1882.

From this group, a board of managers was elected. The name given this new institution was Orphans' home association of St. Joseph county. A suitable house was rented in the west part of Mishawaka. The furniture for this house was very simple, donated by the newly elected board and interested friends. The first inmates were five little girls brought from South Bend, the oldest five years.

In 1884 six more counties were solicited to send their orphan children to this home. The following counties: Elkhart, Kosciusko, Noble, Miami, Steuben and Union. The contract read that the commissioners were to pay the home 25 percent per day for letting the children stay when sick, and burial in case of death. This brought more children under the care of the women managing this institution, and yet they wished to do a greater work.

In 1889, the institution was reorganized under the name of Children's Aid society of Indiana, but the board of managers have always retained the name of Orphans' home. It is, however, incorporated under the name of the Children's Aid society of Indiana and Orphans' home, South Bend and Mishawaka.

In 1899, with the help and encouragement of the good people of Mishawaka and South Bend, the board of managers bought the Lang property, 15 acres. The house on the property was used for the administration building and a frame house erected on the grounds east of this, was for school dormitory and nursery. These several years, in 1901 plans were made to erect the present home, that stands as a monument to the women that have given time, strength and money to this noble work.

The late Mrs. Dempster Beatty was president of the board of directors during the years of buying the Lang property and erecting the new building, and no small part of credit is due Mrs. Beatty for this advanced step in the work. A woman of great executive ability and determination helped the board to undertake this formidable piece of work.

The home has been sheltered in this new building eight years. The number of children cared for varies from 175 to 200, with better equipment and efficient work has been done for the children. A good grade school which is under the school board of Mishawaka, manual training for the boys, sewing and home-making work for the girls, gardening and farm work for both makes the educational equipment almost complete.

A board meeting is held at the home the second Tuesday of each month, beginning at 10 a. m. and lasting until late in the afternoon. There are 18 directors, nine from Mishawaka, the same number from South Bend; from these, the officers are elected at the annual meeting. There is very little change in the personnel of the board from year to year, only by removal on the cities or death is a change made. The board has recently created a waiting list, on which at present, there are two names, Mrs. George Cutter and Mrs. E. H. O'Hara. All business of the home is taken up at these meetings of the board. Reports are given by the children and, also, a report of the visitor for the month.

A well equipped hospital is the latest addition to the home grounds made by the gift of Mr. and Mrs. George Wyman. Mr. J. M. Studebaker has always been a good friend; one of his latest gifts is a carry pure spring water from the ravine to the house, which has done much for the good health of the children. The Messrs. E. G. and F. G. Eberhart have been most liberal to this home. The largest gift from one person was given by Mrs. Minerva Stocker Good. The bequest made by her enabled the directors to clear the property of a heavy debt. The board of directors are grateful for the many gifts that have come to the home through the 33 years, and it has made possible the making of these boys and girls into better citizens of the state of Indiana.

As to what we did with the money received from Good Will money last year, it went into the general fund, to help pay the deficit that comes at the end of each quarter, between the income from the counties and the expenditures of the institution, which includes, provisions, clothing, repairs and service. What they receive this year will be used the same way.

What do I think of the federation? It is the very best, and most helpful organization that has ever come to South Bend. Never have all workers in the city come together and cooperated as they have the last year, and our only wish is that the one who will be asked to contribute this year, will feel inclined to give more than they did last year.

Mrs. LaFayette LeVan.

WILL ARRANGE FOR MUNICIPAL PARTY

Christmas Party to be Held This Year. Committee to Meet.

First steps in the arrangements of South Bend's second municipal Christmas tree festival will be taken when on Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock a meeting of the Christmas tree committee will be held in the office of F. B. Barnes, municipal recreation director. Just what plan will be followed to procure the tree and its decorations and in the arrangement of the program, this committee will decide.

Visitors at the farm will be shown a meeting of the hogs in the modern sanitary pens, the fattening yards and the dipping vats. The sale will be in a steam-heated pavilion which seats 1,800 people.

PLAY WRITTEN BY FR. CARROLL IS GIVEN

"The Ship in the Wake" Will be Presented Again Tonight and Friday Night.

"The Ship in the Wake," a play written by Rev. P. J. Carroll, pastor of St. Joseph's church, was presented for the first time Wednesday night by the members of the St. Joseph Dramatic society at St. Joseph's hall. It will be presented again tonight and Friday night.

Following is the cast of the play: Father Hyland, Ulrich Hiss; Frank Moore, Edmund Probst; Dill Foster, Edmund Luther; John Pierce, Elmer Kline; Don Wise, Harold Winkler; John Johnson, Howard Daveline; "Red" Werner, Joseph Zangerle; "Mope" Templeton, William Braunsdorf; "Spots" Bayfield, Louis Kinerk; George Kaye, Lawrence Miller; Ray Higgins, Harold Archambault; Dick Johnson, Edward Keller; Lemmon Lefnihan, Paul Berault; "Toby" Tucker, Arthur Howard; Ralph Regan, Melvin Humphrey; "Happy" Anderson, Elmer Kline; "Skinny" McCabe, Aloysius Lamirand; "Dude" Weeman, Clayton Hatchler; Frank Hewitt, Ralph Cressy; Everett Brown, Bernard McCaffery; Ernest Smithson, John Guendling; Harold Dixon, Lawrence Daveline; Eberfeldt Chesterton, Clifford Thorne; Leland Stanton, Maurice Thorne; Carl Johnson, Jerry Evans; John Maurice Thornton; book agent, Lawrence Daveline; a pilgrim in need, Ralph Cressy; little girl, Mary Joyce.

Musical numbers are given during the play by the following: Overture, school orchestra; vocal solo, Edmund Luther; violin duet, Harris McNab and Anna McCartney; vocal solo, Rose Beckerlich; piano solo, Maude Weber; vocal solo, Harold Winkler.

The scene is set in a small town, and the case of characters is made up largely of members of the Holy Name society with the spiritual director, Father Hyland. "Dude" Weeman is the one male character who does not belong to this society. He is a type of boy well known to people of the present day. His father has become rich rather suddenly, and with the inheritance of wealth his son, the "Dude" Weeman of the play, wishes to leave the associate with whom he has lived for years, in order to seek another class which he neither understands nor admires, though he forces himself to believe he does.

"Dude," accustomed to mingle with the good natured, middle class boys of the parish club, begins to take on an upish air and to spurn his old-time playmates. He is rebuffed by every one in the club, and his companions that he decides to go to a fashionable school in the east, where he may join all the "swell" clubs, meet people of a better "set," use up his money in social functions and as a result make his name for himself in exclusive circles. Warnings are of no avail to him—not even his pastor, Father Hyland, is able to persuade him to follow a different course.

The climax of the play comes shortly after "Dude's" arrival at college, when his father fails in business. His rich friends, hearing of his trouble, agree to throw him overboard without ceremony, and let him make his way as best he can. As a result he is left alone and like the prodigal son he returns to his old companions, appreciating for the first time their true worth and thoroughly realizing that wealth never made a man of anyone though it has made fools of no small number. The concluding scene is the reception of "Dude" into the Holy Name society among his own large-hearted friends, who live a simple but beautiful life.

The first Christmas tree celebration was consummated within the space of a few days. The consent of the city council was obtained, the tree was found and hoisted on the court house steps, its decoration was procured and an elaborate program arranged with a speed and success which surprised the entire community. This year the entire community will be prepared to cooperate, for the Christmas tree idea was popular and the effort toward its accomplishment will be begun immediately so that no details which might contribute to its greater success will be omitted.

Local Art Student Draws Good Will Week Cartoons

Max Wolvovsky, the young South Bend boy who is making a success of his art study at the Chicago Art Institute, has contributed to the Good Will week campaign for funds for the Federation for Social Service four cartoons which will be employed to good effect in advertising the campaign. They were made at the request of Rabbi Cronbach.

Each cartoon is 20x30 inches and each is of original design beautifully executed. One shows the face of a clock with the names of the 12 organizations forming the federation in place of the numerals. The free hand printing in this design is especially attractive. Another shows five crying babies and the inscription, "We Want Health." One of the most effective is a group of hands called "The Hands of the Needy—Will You Help?" The hands are skillfully drawn to show the work-worn, knotty hands of the laborer and the inscription, "We Want Health." The fourth is based upon the motto, "Every Step to Civilization is the Elevation of the
