THE AGE OF NEW THINGS.

We are living in an age of new things. New thought are all around us. They are coming so fast we can hardly digest them. A celebrated French doctor states that the cures of the future will be mental and spiritual cures, and that the expression, "all the ills the flesh is heir to" will be obsolete. Suffering from fever, headache and all the germ diseases, will be a thing of the past, for everything of that kind will have been conquered by science. We will go to the doctor with a case of worry or fear, or imagination, or even, as the French doctor says, "a bad case of unrequited love," and we will get a prescription, and with a dose or two be cured. We know that today there are many who believe we are already reached that time, but they do not look at it from a medical doctor's standpoint. Yesterday a woman in a shop advised me against buying a gown of a certain color, because it was antonistic to my nature, and so would affect my happiness. Later in the morning a woman selling me a hat told me of the effect certain colors had on her. Not so very long ago we would have thought both women were a little crazy if we had been confronted with any such thought while shopping. Yet, is it not a fact, we are effected by colors? How common it is to hear a woman say: "I always have a good time in that gown," or a man: "I like this room, I can rest here, or study."

In this hurrying, rushing life, we do not give enough time or thought to the subtle things that are really effecting our lives. Some of us are more easily affected than others. It depends entirely on what kind of nature we have, and how materialistic it is. The larger part of what exists cannot be seen or felt. As we are unconscious of a clock that is in a room, until our attention is attracted to it and then the ticking seems so loud it will keep us awake at night, so there are existing forces we are not conscious of, but which we will recognize when our finer senses are developed. Some dangers we will recognize as factors in our lives influences not known or thought of today. If we cannot agree with the French philosopher, Henry Bergson, who denounces all who deny that telepathy is the most natural thing in the world, and is as much a fact as electricity, and will eventually be brought under control; if there are many thoughts and things we cannot believe in, we must progress, and not cling too much to old ways and thoughts. Like the trees, we should shed our old leaves, realizing that "unless we give up the old leaves there can be no new and beautiful ones in the spring. It is only the tree that is dead that has no new leaves."

COLLISION IS REPORTED

Man Whose License Was Revoked Files an Appeal.

Following the report of E. W. Fox, 118 E. Fox st., that his automobile had collided with a tea and coffee wagon at the corner of Vista av. and Caroline st., Sunday, it was discovered by the police department that his license had been revoked by the secretary of state following three convictions in city court. Fox, who drives a jitney bus, told the officers he had entered an appeal, making it possible for him to continue driving under the old license until action had been taken.

SAY, WHAT IS LIFE?

Say, what is life? You who have lived so long.

Is life a pleasure, or is life a song? A song it might be, merry or quite sad.

Some measures often dreary; others glad.

Say, what is life? You youth of tender years—

Does life to you mean hope, or means it fears?

'Tis hope, I think, puts obstacles away.

Fear can not touch us ere we gain the day.

Say, what is life? You with a heart so young—

'Tis doing each day what e'er we've begun.

'Tis helping others who have gone astray.

Lending a helping hand to guide their way.

To clothe and feed the needy, and console

The sorrowing and suffering, that's life's goal.

In living show the spirit of good will, Else wherefore live? Others our place could fill.

Faith, hope and charity make up life's song

Giving our mite to help the world along.

Helping the weaker in this world of strife

Doing the best we can—yes, that is life.

Bad verse this is I'm willing to admit; But though 'tis bad I'm not ashamed of it.

I did the very best I could, you see, To show what living really means to me.

The spirit of good will I've tried to show,

That spirit which unchecked helps all to grow.

And you who can write better far than I.

Before you laugh at this, suppose you try.

BIRTHS.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lepore, 1319 S. Carroll st., a son, Nov. 10.

Enameled Brass

For the Bathroom

Fixtures Are Attractively and Easily Cleaned.

Other Novelities.

The newest and most easily cleaned bathroom furnishings are made of brass finished with a coat of white enamel. Though in appearance this ware looks much like the ordinary enameled ware, it is finer and smoother. It is made by a recently discovered process of applying the enamel to the polished brass, and it is said it will not crack or peel off. To keep it clean, all that is needed is to wipe it off with a damp cloth, says a New York Sun contributor.

All the usual bathroom fixtures formerly made in glass, porcelain, enamel and nickel are to be had in this new ware. Besides, there are towel racks made in one solid piece, enameled ends holding opal glass rods. There are frames for glass shelves of all widths and lengths, soap dishes, bathrobe hooks, perforated tops for toothbrush mugs and a combination rack for two soap dishes with a toothbrush holder between.

For a person who prefers nickel and glass there are many attractive novelties. There are nickel mounted glass towel racks finished with handsome cut glass balls and glass shelves on nickel brackets besides other serviceable combination pieces.

New cabinets are of various sizes, hang against the wall and have folding mirrors. These cabinets are especially desirable in bathrooms where space is of first importance. The mirrors may be infolded at any angle giving the best light.

Though the preference for all white bathrooms is so strong that it almost amounts to a mandate, there is one article of furnishing wherein color is not only permissible but may be pleasingly decorative. This is furnished in the new bath mats. These are of linen of American grown flax. They are woven in the United States, though at present it is claimed that the best grades are colored with dyes from abroad. These rugs may be had in several shades of blue or red and in browns and yellows.

There are clothes hampers of natural or enameled wicker and of practically every shape and size. One serves as a table. This is of wood with wicker, either enameled or natural, and may be had with a glass sheet on its solid wooden top.

All chairs, stools and tables intended for the bathroom use have cork cups on the legs not only to render them noiseless when moved about, but to prevent marking the white or delicately colored tiled floor.
