Blazing the Trail

It is simple enough to do a thing after someone has shown you just how it shall be done. It is easy to follow where someone has led, but

All glory and just reward to the leader.

The News-Times, never so self-sufficient as to let go by unheeded the valuable example of experience, and always on the jump to offer its constituency more for its money, leads in the adoption of the eight-column size, admittedly the ideal both for reader and advertiser.

The News-Times was quick to recognize that the interests of its readers, as well as its advertisers, were advanced by the simplifying of its Classified Advertising ("Want-Ad") columns. And just as surely as streams pouring down the mountain side, and joining cut the river bed where the cutting is easiest, the advertising public will follow the same lines of least resistance.

Notre Dame News

Thanksgiving day was truly a day of thanksgiving at the university. The students attended a solemn high mass in the university chapel at 8 o'clock at which the president, Rev. John Cavanaugh, was celebrant, and he was assisted by Frs. Schumacher and O'Brien as deacon and sub-deacon, respectively. The services were closed with the song "Holy God," which was sung by the entire student body. At 12 the usual Thanksgiving feast was served in the various refectories, and then permission was granted to all. Many of the students came to South Bend to hear the reports of the Texas game, while others journeyed on foot to nearby towns.

Peter P. McElligott, a prominent lawyer of New York city, and a graduate of the Notre Dame law school in 1901, is the latest donor to the botanical library at the university. He contributed a collection of books which were printed in the state of New York as well as numerous pamphlets and reports gotten out by Cornell university. Mr. McElligott has risen from the lowest ranks to one of the highest in New York, being a member of the assembly. At Notre Dame he worked his way through college and was a student in St. Joseph hall and in his last year a student of Brownson. Since he left Notre Dame he has contributed many books to the Brownson library, to the botanical collections and to the biological department.

Louis Herblin of the New York Sun was at Notre Dame yesterday getting material for the big feature edition which the Sun will get out next August. Mr. Herblin has charge of the department of the Sun which is devoted to educational institutions. The edition which was gotten out last August attracted much attention throughout the country and is now in book form. The editor left last night for Chicago to attend the meeting of the International Federation of Catholic alumni which is now in session in that city.

Movies at Notre Dame are becoming so popular with the older students that it has been decided to continue the shows every Wednesday evening throughout the school year. At first the pictures were shown to the smaller boys residing in St. Edward's and Carroll halls, but owing to the many requests from the older students, it has been decided to throw Washington hall open every Wednesday evening to the entire student body. The entertainments are given by Fr. Joseph McGuire of the chemical department.

Political Gossip

Traveling Salesman Speaks.

"What do you think of Wilson's chances for reelection?" queried the Political Writer of the Traveling Salesman.

"What do you mean as to that;—personally?" The grip toted switched from an after-dinner cigar to a quill molar-cleaner and turned half round in his chair in the Oliver lobby.

"No,—from your travels and meetings with business men on your 'beat'—you know, we call it 'beat' in newspaper circles, as do the 'coppers.'"

"That's a hard question to answer, but if you'll ask me about business conditions generally I'll have my sentence prepared and I'll be news to you if you've been swallowing some of the gaff being distributed by anti-democratic and anti-Wilson propagandists." He smiled broadly.

"Then it isn't business depression?" The Political Writer was hopeful.

"Sure not,—same song's been sung ever since the first time a democratic president happened to be elected about the time a panic was due. They forget the script of Rooseveltian days.

"And 'lis'en,—stand-patism may be mighty disastrous to a certain seeker after reelection. You know this policy of 'what was good enough for father is good enough for me.'" He pointed a convincing finger. "The song is forgotten in everything but politics.

"Then there's Bryan. He says he won't oppose Woodrow and that their differences are purely personal, which is a poor rejoinder. Bryan might go out to defeat Wilson as candidate in another party."

"You don't think he'd form one?" The Political Writer felt like edging for the nearest exit.

"No,—not that, but there's the prohibition cause, you know, and while William J. isn't generally appreciated, according to his version of his own policies, there might be enough strength in Bryan's candidacy to defeat Wilson."

"But Bryan wouldn't do anything for the detriment of his party,—"

"O, no! Neither would Teddy Roosevelt do anything to overthrow his former running mate. Politics puts the fist in pacifist, you know!"

"I see in your column where Jim Fry of Fort Wayne is mentioned as the next Democratic chairman," writes a local democratic leader to the Gossip, "so to it and more power to you." He goes on to picture James F. as the best organizer in the state of Indiana and a man worthy of the office for which the "boys" about the state seem to have slated him.

Already a scramble among ninth district democrats is in prospect for Congressman Martin A. Morrison's seat. He announced in a letter to W. R. Dunham, district chairman, that he will not seek renomination. J. C. Herron, Kokomo lawyer, is expected to be one of the candidates for Morrison's seat.

Morrison, in his letter asserts it is probable his position on a number of measures that will come before congress at the coming session will not be in harmony with the ideas of many democrats in his district.

Morrison was first elected to congress in 1908. In 1914 his plurality over Fred W. Purnell of Attica, republican, was 971. He is now in Washington.

Southern Michigan promises a lively congressional campaign in 1916, as well as a heated county race in Berrien county, just across the Indiana line. E. L. Hamilton of Niles is representative from the fourth district, and has been for many years. However, people close to the Niles man say he has entered his last political fight, regardless of the statement to the effect he would seek William Alden Smith's senatorial toga. Some such agreement was understood in 1914 when Berrien's young men got behind Hamilton. C. M. Ryno, Benton Harbor's doctor-mayor, is bent on the congressional race, but there is a doubt expressed as to his desire to win in the primaries so much as to use his candidacy as a means to another end—a foreign post. Ryno studied medicine abroad and seems to think of Europe as a great place for future research. He has been strongly identified in republican politics for years, and is a comparatively young man. As to Hamilton's again seeking office, a fear is expressed that his health will not permit further political activities.

It was entirely proper and commendable for Sen. Kern to tell the Pittsburghers how proud Indiana is of its great president, Benjamin Harrison, and its two vice presidents, Charles W. Fairbanks and Thomas R. Marshall, but in order to make the list complete, should he not have included Schuyler Colfax and Thomas A. Hendricks? — Indianapolis News.

Sen. Sherman says he is in favor of a preparedness that will insure an everlasting peace in this happy and prosperous land." Such preparedness would certainly heap honor on its author and no doubt be welcome, but "everlasting" is pointed to by folks who heard the statement as a mighty long time.

Fence building for the next mayoralty campaign here seems to be on in earnest.
