THEATERS

THE COSTUME WORN BY "PEG."
 The suit which Florence Martin wears in the first act of "Peg of My Heart" is the most prized article of the actress' extensive wardrobe. All last season while playing "Peg" during the Boston run, Miss Martin was dissatisfied with the suit she was wearing, as it did not strike her as being exactly the proper one to faithfully "dress" the part portrayed. While rehearsing in New York she made the rounds of the department stores on the lookout for something more appropriate. In one of these stores, standing in front of the cases containing the latest imported creations, she saw a slip of a girl in a dark blue serge coat and skirt. The girl was gazing with longing eyes at the beautiful gowns far out of her reach.

It did not take Miss Martin long to make up her mind that the shiny, but neat looking suit on the young stranger was exactly what she wanted. A few moments of conversation and an exclamation of surprise and joy from the girl were followed by a trip to the dressing room, accompanied by a saleswoman. Twenty minutes later the girl appeared in a beautiful new creation, her face beaming with joy, no doubt the happiest girl in New York. Miss Martin, happy in the possession of the much desired suit for her first act, hurried to rehearsal.

If you see her at the Oliver Saturday you will see the clothes that she bought from the New York girl.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.
 The fascinating narrative in "Blazing Love," the picture drama in which Virginia Pearson is appearing at the Auditorium today, is based on a common life problem. Margaret Walsh and Arthur Graham are engaged to be married. The latter goes on an Arctic trip with Russell Barridan, an unscrupulous explorer. Six months later Margaret receives word of Graham's death. Urged on by her father, she marries one of his business associates much older than herself. During the 10 years of her married life she develops into a fashionable society woman. She meets and becomes attached to Stephen Bond and her husband, realizing he is much too old for her to care for, kills himself. After a year she marries Bond, who is really younger than she. After 10 more years she has become a middle aged woman while Bond is in the prime of young manhood. A young, pretty girl, Joane Clark, comes into their lives and she and the husband become fond of one another. Margaret, realizing this, plans to do just as her first husband had done for her, so one morning her lifeless body is found lying across her bed.

The story is a powerful one and many scenes depicted are sensational in the extreme. "Animated Nooz," a cartoon comedy, and the Selig-Tribune of current events are also on the bill. Tomorrow is Metro day and Mme. Petrova will appear in a five part drama entitled "Playing With Fire," a picture that has just closed a run at the Ziegfeld theater, Chicago, where it has been exhibited at 25 cent prices.

AT THE LASALLE.
 One of the biggest features shown at the LaSalle this season will be seen today in "The Race" with central Victor Moore, late star of the George Cohan musical successes, and daring Anita King in the leading parts. The picture forms a thrilling comedy drama founded upon Miss King's recent transcontinental automobile trip, which she made absolutely alone. Last summer, Miss King, who is an enthusiastic motorist, was convinced that she could make the long drive in an automobile unattended, and on Sept. 1 she left the exposition grounds at San Francisco carrying messages from the mayor of that city to Mayor Mitchell of New York. Her entire trip was filled with thrilling incidents, many of which are incorporated in this photo-drama and were filmed at the exact locality in which they happened. Mr. Moore plays the frivolous son of a wealthy automobile manufacturer who incidentally meets this young "chauffeure" and there is consequently unfolded a most charming romance, together with blood-curdling episodes which keep up the interest. "Dross and Diamonds," a two part drama with Emory Wehlen and Howard Estabrook, as well as the Hearst's comic cartoons and war events, will also be shown.

"The Closed Road," an exceptionally strong story produced by the World Film Co., will be shown at the LaSalle on Thursday. House Peters and Barbara Tennant are seen to a splendid advantage in the leading roles. The story is not burdened with a moral lesson; it is not designed to improve or instruct, but amply serves its purpose when it thrills and entertains through five of the most engrossing reels seen on the screen for some time. Travel pictures from the Kleins studio will also be shown.

AT THE ORPHEUM.
 Final performances will be given today of the current bill at the Orpheum which features the Metropolitan dancers, McConnell and Simpson in a comedy sketch, Patrick Barrett in songs, the Troy Comedy Four and Lawrence and Hurl Falls, acrobats.

Beginning Thursday, Rogers, Pollock and Rogers will occupy the principal position on the program with a farcical skit entitled "Bobby." The story concerns a rural comedy character and the scene is laid back stage of a theater devoted to musical comedy. The piece abounds in laughable situations. Thomas P. Jackson and company will present a comedy act entitled "A Letter from Home" in which a strain of sentiment is prominent. The Bottomley troupe will introduce novelties in acrobatics, the three Moran sisters, typical beauties, will offer a high class musical and singing novelty, and the Dohertys, comedians, will complete the bill.

AT THE COLONIAL.
 Metro has scored again with an unusual and intensely interesting feature picture in "Black Fear," a five-part photodrama which will be seen at Colonial today.

This picture was produced by the Roife Photoplays, Inc. for the Metro program, upon an elaborate scale, no expense being spared for either sets or in the quality of the artists engaged. An all-star cast, including Grace Elliston, Grace Valentine, Edward Brennan and other prominent artists of the stage and screen were used to make "Black Fear" one of the sensations of the season in Highland.

"Black Fear" contains a gripping story of the fast increasing cocaine habit among a certain class of people in New York city. This vital, yet somewhat difficult subject is treated in a masterly manner, and there is an interesting love story running through the plot, that is absolutely novel and new. The production contains many big scenes including one made in New York's Chinatown, a huge ballroom scene, the death of a man who topples out of the fourth story of a pretentious home in Riverside dr., a faithful reproduction of New York juvenile court, and a thrilling scene in the supreme court. "Black Fear" is easily the sensation of the season, and a production that causes people to remember it long after they have seen it on the screen. Miss Elliston, who heads the stellar cast, makes her screen debut in this production. As the creator of the leading female role in "The Lion and the Mouse" and other Broadway stage successes, she is known to a host of theatergoers.

Have You Tied Down the Governor?

Once upon a time there was an engineer in charge of a splendid engine. It did good work, but because it did good work he thought it could do better. He thought he could safely violate all mechanical laws. He took chances. He tied down the governor. Engine and engineer were blown to atoms. His wife takes in washing. His children depend upon charity.

Now I want you to take this lesson to heart. I want you to apply it to yourself. That is the value of all life's lessons—the personal application.

Are you trying to get out of your body and brain more than nature designed them to do? Are you annoyed by the warnings that are Nature's safety valve? Have you tied down the governor so you won't hear them—put on greater pressure—defied all of nature's laws—and expect to get away with it? You won't.

You can't avoid diseases by shutting your eyes to the symptoms of disease. If you ignore the warning signals of nature, sooner or later disaster will overtake you. Suppose you break down a nervous wreck, what will become of your family? Have you ever thought of that?

I could fill pages telling you of symptom after symptom which to the mind of the specialist clearly points to nervous breakdown. Symptoms that you ignore, treat lightly.

But I can tell you a much simpler, plainer, clearer way how to avoid nervous breakdown.

If you are not in PERFECT HEALTH—if you do not enjoy the health you once possessed, consult me.

Over 21 years a physician; 16 years a Specialist, as my Post Graduate work and clinical experience attest. I am not a "so-called," "make believe" or "phony" Specialist.

Don't let false pride or money matters keep you from getting well, as I have a system by which you can begin treatment and pay as you can. Everything confidential. I AM THE POOR MAN'S DOCTOR AND AM PROUD OF IT.
