JUNIOR "PROM" WAS PRONOUNCED SUCCESS

Over 200 Attend Reception to Seniors at Hotel Mishawaka Last Night.

The junior "prom" at the Hotel Mishawaka Friday night surpassed in class anything of a similar nature ever held in the city. In point of attendance and pleasure the juniors outdid all their past achievements in the line of entertainment. It was the juniors' reception to the seniors of the high school, and it was attended by 200 young people. The girls wore pretty white costumes and their partners were groomed to the acme of male perfection. Of flowers there was an abundance; in fact, it was stated that all the conservatories within a radius of 10 miles of Mishawaka had been depleted for the occasion. It was evident from the profusality with which the juniors blew themselves that they were real sports when it came to handing the girls something unique in the line of a real good time. The hotel was given over to the young folks for the night, and they appreciated the courtesy of Mr. DeVault. The high school faculty acted in the capacity of chaperones. The dance hall and the rotunda were tastefully decorated with the high school colors, while flowers were plentifully scattered around. The Ragpickers' orchestra of South Bend supplied music for the dancing, which was carried on with much zest until supper was announced at midnight. This was a recherche six-course meal and was served on the terrace garden amid myriads of vari-colored incandescent lights, which, with the attractive costumes of the girls and the flowers, formed a setting fit for the artist's brush. The grey dawn of the morning was approaching when the last of the boys had turned their steps homeward from having seen their particular girl to her home in safety.

The committees which carried out the arrangements of this annual affair were: Decorations, Wilbur Gartner, Robert Mackelburg; programs, Martha Nelsonger, Robert Mackelburg; reception, Arthur Hunt, Wilma Zimmerman, Florence Burnett.

TWO MEN ARE HURT

Saloon Men Injured as Result of Free-for-All Fight.

Frank Ernst, owner of a saloon at 113 N. Main st., Mishawaka, and his bartender, a Mr. Keister, were seriously cut about the face last night when three foreigners ended a dispute by grabbing empty beer bottles and throwing them around the saloon.

The three men had entered the saloon earlier in the evening and were drinking together when an argument ensued as to who should pay for a round of drinks. The men then began throwing the bottles which injured Ernst and Keister.

When the police were called they chased the foreigners to the west end of town but did not catch them.

COLONEL PLANS HURRAH VISIT FOR LAST HOUR

Among the men who believe this will take place is Walter C. Brown of Ohio, who already is on record as saying that if they have to do so the progressives will accept Justice Hughes.

Hughes Boom at Standstill.
The Hughes movement was at a standstill today, but it will be rejuvenated tomorrow with the arrival of Gov. Charles S. Whitman and the New York delegation. Whitman is expected to issue a statement soon after his arrival showing why Justice Hughes should be named and also insisting that he will accept when nominated. Efforts of the "favorite son" and Roosevelt boomers to eliminate Hughes from the race on the declaration by him through his secretary, that neither Frank Hitchcock nor any one else was authorized to represent him in Chicago, helped instead of hurt the Hughes movement.

BELIEVE 5,000 WERE LOST AS VESSELS SANK

Official dispatches state that the engagement lasted from 12 to 20 hours and was a running fight. One of the eye witnesses of the battle, Capt. Hunt of a steam trawler, described how the fleeing German ships rolled southward at top speed while the British ships, guided by their searchlights, rained shells around the fugitives.

SEES SEVEN MEN OF WAR.

"There were seven big German men of war in the part of the fleet I saw," said Capt. Hunt. "It was about 10:30 o'clock on Wednesday night and the ships were traveling at what I reckoned to be nearly 30 miles an hour. The British ships were following about 200 yards behind the fugitives. The searchlights were turned full upon the German ships and shells were being poured from every gun. The noise was deafening and the men of war were completely enveloped by dense clouds of smoke which rolled from the funnels and from busy guns."

"So dense was the coal and gunpowder smoke and so thick was the weather that despite our nearness we could see only the dim outlines of the warships."

"The fog and darkness was pierced by the red glare of the big naval guns."

"Around the German ships huge columns of water rose high in the air like geysers, as the shells from the English men of war fell around them."

"Two of the German dreadnaughts caught on fire and we could see smoke rolling up through her superstructure in the lurid glow. The flight and pursuit was on at top speed when the vessels got beyond our vision."

Six Zeppelins in Fight.

The destruction of three battle cruisers by German gun fire has revived reports that were current some time ago that monster 17-inch guns were being installed upon German warships to outrange the guns on the ships of every other nation.

There were six zeppelins in the air fleet which took part in the fight, according to a dispatch to the Mail from Copenhagen. One of them is reported to have been badly damaged by British gun fire.

The presence of so formidable a British fleet near Heligoland, the German base, has aroused much speculation here.

Both fleets were reinforced before the battle ended by the Germans taking flight.

Describes Fight.
Details of this feature of the engagement are furnished by the following dispatch from Copenhagen: "The captain of the Danish steamer Naesberg gives the following account of the sea fight: "When the Naesberg was 95 miles west of Cape Hanstholm, on the northwest coast of Jutland, a few small British warships appeared, pursued by the German fleet. Suddenly the British warships turned and steamed westward, violently shelled. In a few minutes a large number of British dreadnaught cruisers appeared from the north and west. The British then began attacking the German ships, which were reinforced from the south. A violent fight raged. The sky was filled with smoke and the sea in a state of uproar. "At the last the German fleet withdrew southward pursued by the British, while several more British ships appeared, coming from the westward. The German fleet was divided in two parts, one of which escaped. I don't know the fate of the other."

It is reported that Admiral Horace Hood flew his flag on the destroyed battle cruiser Invincible, as second in command of the British battle cruiser squadron.

BRITISH DENY REPORT OF LOSS OF WARSPITE AND MARLBOROUGH

International News Service:

LONDON, June 3.—Capt. William Hall of the intelligence division of the admiralty, announced today that the battleship Warspite, which the Germans claim to have sunk, and the battleship Marlborough, which the Germans claim to have torpedoed, are safe in port. His statement follows:

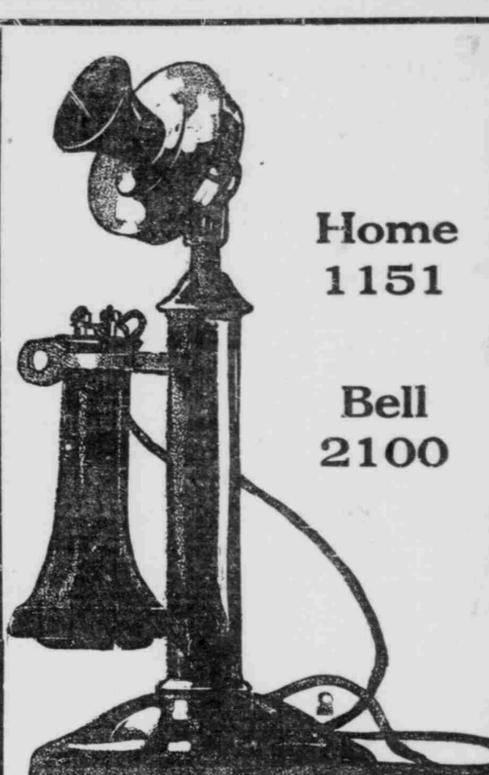

"The Germans' report of the loss of the Marlborough and Warspite is absolutely untrue. Both of these dreadnaughts are safe in harbor. The German report that the entire British battle fleet was engaged is equally untrue. A portion of the British fleet, much inferior to the total battle fleet of the Germans, engaged that fleet and drove it back into its harbor. The British control the North sea."

BRITISH GRAND FLEET SURPRISED GERMANS

Survivor of Cruiser Frauenlob Says Kaiser's Men First Thought They Had Easy Prey.

International News Service:

ROTTERDAM, June 3.—The British grand fleet was engaged in Wednesday's action, according to German naval officers arriving at the Hook of Holland, Midshipman Stolzmann, one of the survivors of the German cruiser Frauenlob, which was sunk, said that half of the German fleet engaged five British units that were sailing north accompanied by light cruisers and torpedo boats. The British ships were hopelessly outnumbered by the bigger squadron, which included some of the newest German dreadnaughts. The Germans thought the British ships easy prey, but suddenly the English grand fleet arrived and the Germans had to take flight to save themselves. A running fight of great violence then developed.
