HOLDS EMPLOYER NOT LIABLE FOR CHAUFFEUR

Supreme Court Hands Down Important Decision in Michigan Controversy.

News-Times Special Service: LANSING, Mich., Oct. 2.—Where the paid chauffeur of an automobile owner visits his mother-in-law to spend the time waiting for his master to finish an evening engagement, he is running the car on his own hook and the owner of the car cannot be made liable for any damage which he commits.

Such in substance is the decision of the supreme court in one of the most peculiar cases it ever had before it. While the actions of the chauffeur of a car, while not on the business of his employer, have been held heretofore to be beyond the control of the employer and he not liable for them, the case which the court has just decided had some peculiar angles and the opinion in it marks another chapter in Michigan's automobile liability law.

Leo Zuckerman, a Detroit man, had his chauffeur take him down on Brush st. for a business engagement at 8 o'clock in the evening. He told him to return at midnight. McVoy, the chauffeur in the car, went to visit at the home of his mother-in-law. A few minutes before 12, in time to fulfill the date with his employer, he started for Brush st. On the way he met three men, and in order to save them walking home, put them in the car and took them home.

He lost control of the car and it went into a store owned by Frank E. Brinkman. Brinkman's place was damaged considerably and he sued Zuckerman. The Wayne county courts decided against him, holding that when the accident occurred McVoy was on his own business and not that of his employer. Hence, there was no redress against the employer.

The supreme court affirmed the decision of the lower court.

St. Joseph Blind Girl Has Many Accomplishments.

News-Times Special Service: ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Oct. 2.—Blind at birth, struggling through 27 years of darkness—St. Joseph has a miracle girl that rivals that of America's famed Helen Keller. Her name is Miss Decora H. Cottle. As personalities go she is bright, almost intensely intelligent, cheerful and actively interested in many phases of work. Miss Cottle has made a name for herself at various schools and colleges, has engaged in private instruction, has mastered several arts, and withal retained a genuine enthusiasm in doing that challenges even greater accomplishments. Miss Cottle, handicapped and denied by nature, has so successfully overcome obstacles before which ordinary individuals would stand appalled, that she seeks greater triumphs. What she now desires is a chance, an opportunity to engage in the training of others unfortunately afflicted—such as she.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 2.—United States Sen. James P. Clarke, president pro-tem of the United States senate, died at his home here Sunday. He suffered a stroke of apoplexy Friday and never regained consciousness. Physicians and members of the family, however, minimized the seriousness of his condition so that the news of his death came as a shock. Sen. Clarke was born in Yazoo City, Miss., August 18, 1854. He was graduated from the law department of the university of Virginia in 1878, and began to practice law in Helena, Ark., in 1879. His present term as United States senator would not have expired until March 4, 1921.

International News Service: ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Traffic on the Albany and Kensselsauert trolley lines and the Troy interurban line was at a standstill today, the result of a strike of about 1,000 men, including car house employees and the power plant workers.

THE CONTRAST

What used to be the strong, coherent, logical organization known as the republican party, is now, so far as its leaders are concerned, an aggregation of factions, agreeing upon no set of principles, advocating no national policy, numbering of course many wise, but many foolish persons, some guided by selfishness, some unselfish, some patriotic, some thoughtless, the only common bond of union being a willingness to pool issues to win.

This party met in convention at Chicago to select whatever candidate looked best at the last moment and whatever principles seem to promise to weather the storm until November. That is what it did. In contrast with this the democratic party, having lived through years of doubt and hesitation, with a central philosophy, sometimes more a yearning than a program, now presents a matured policy, evolved by a great leader, welcomed by his party associates as the real expression of their political ideals, and already in the full tide of demonstrating its justice and its wisdom as applied both to the domestic problems of the country and to our interests involved in the conflicts of arms that rage in the world.—From Sec'y of War Baker's address before the Ohio democratic state convention.
