

EXPECT FALL OF TROTSKY-LENINE

Final Crash of the Bolshevik Government Only a Matter of Days.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—"The final crash of the Trotsky-Lenine regime may be delayed some weeks, but it is inevitable."

Official information received here thus summarizes the situation in Russia. The closing act of the red drama is already under way, according to reports from military attaches and special agents. Only the "inertia" of the anti-bolshevik groups has permitted the present Moscow government to remain alive beyond Sept. 15, one official who has made a special study of the situation said. The bolshevik organization, the reports say, has been so poor at the foundation in the confidence of the masses, that only a push was necessary to start the fall. This push has been lacking because there was no efficient cooperation between the anti-red leaders and in the absence of initiative or ability on the part of any one of them to start the forward movement.

Denikine Advances.
Gen. Denikine's advance toward Moscow, the campaign of attrition waged by the northwest Russian volunteers and the stiffening of Admiral Kolchak and his Cossack allies, the reports say, have furnished more than the hoped-for pressure. "A continuation of this pressure by any one of these forces, for one week will finish the matter," declares one military expert. "The British alone, through their assistance to the northwestern group operating in the Estonian sector, can turn the trick."

This officer is frank in his belief that Great Britain has been the only one of the associated nations to lend concrete aid to the anti-bolshevik leaders. Not only has Great Britain bolstered up the Denikine line with tanks and ordnance, he pointed out, but British warships have participated in the advance on Petrograd by shelling the red forces at Kronstadt and its defenses. A strong force of veteran aviators is assisting the fleet. Official dispatches today did not report the fall of Petrograd, which, however, was announced in Paris.

Of Minor Importance.
The fall of Petrograd, however, is considered of minor importance as compared with the results of Denikine's advance. Moscow can be isolated and captured at any moment. It is thought, if the leaders of the southern army and his assistants decide upon a concerted attack, but the objective now seems to be the Saratov-Belashow-Pensa triangle of communications which controls the vast Ural region. Should Denikine arrive at Saratov, on the Volga, officials here say the entire southeastern empire of the bolsheviks will fall into Denikine's hands without a further blow. That would result in the isolation of all the bolshevik forces west of Moscow with the exception of a thin supply line through Perm.

While a collapse of the bolsheviks is regarded as due primarily to economic factors, leaders here claim that opposition from the outside has been necessary because of no organized opposition within Russia capable of unseating Trotsky and Lenin.

Official reports from the Ukraine, once a stronghold of the reds declare that it is now almost wholly anti-bolshevik.

"The entire Ukraine will be free of bolshevism by spring," without outside assistance, says one government dispatch received here.

Although the red armies still number more than 500,000 men, counting reserves, the necessity of dividing the forces into so many widely scattered groups, the increasing effect of the impaired morale and the lack of efficient cooperation from the interior due to the collapse of industrial life, military experts here do not consider that figure as indicating anything like the true military strength.

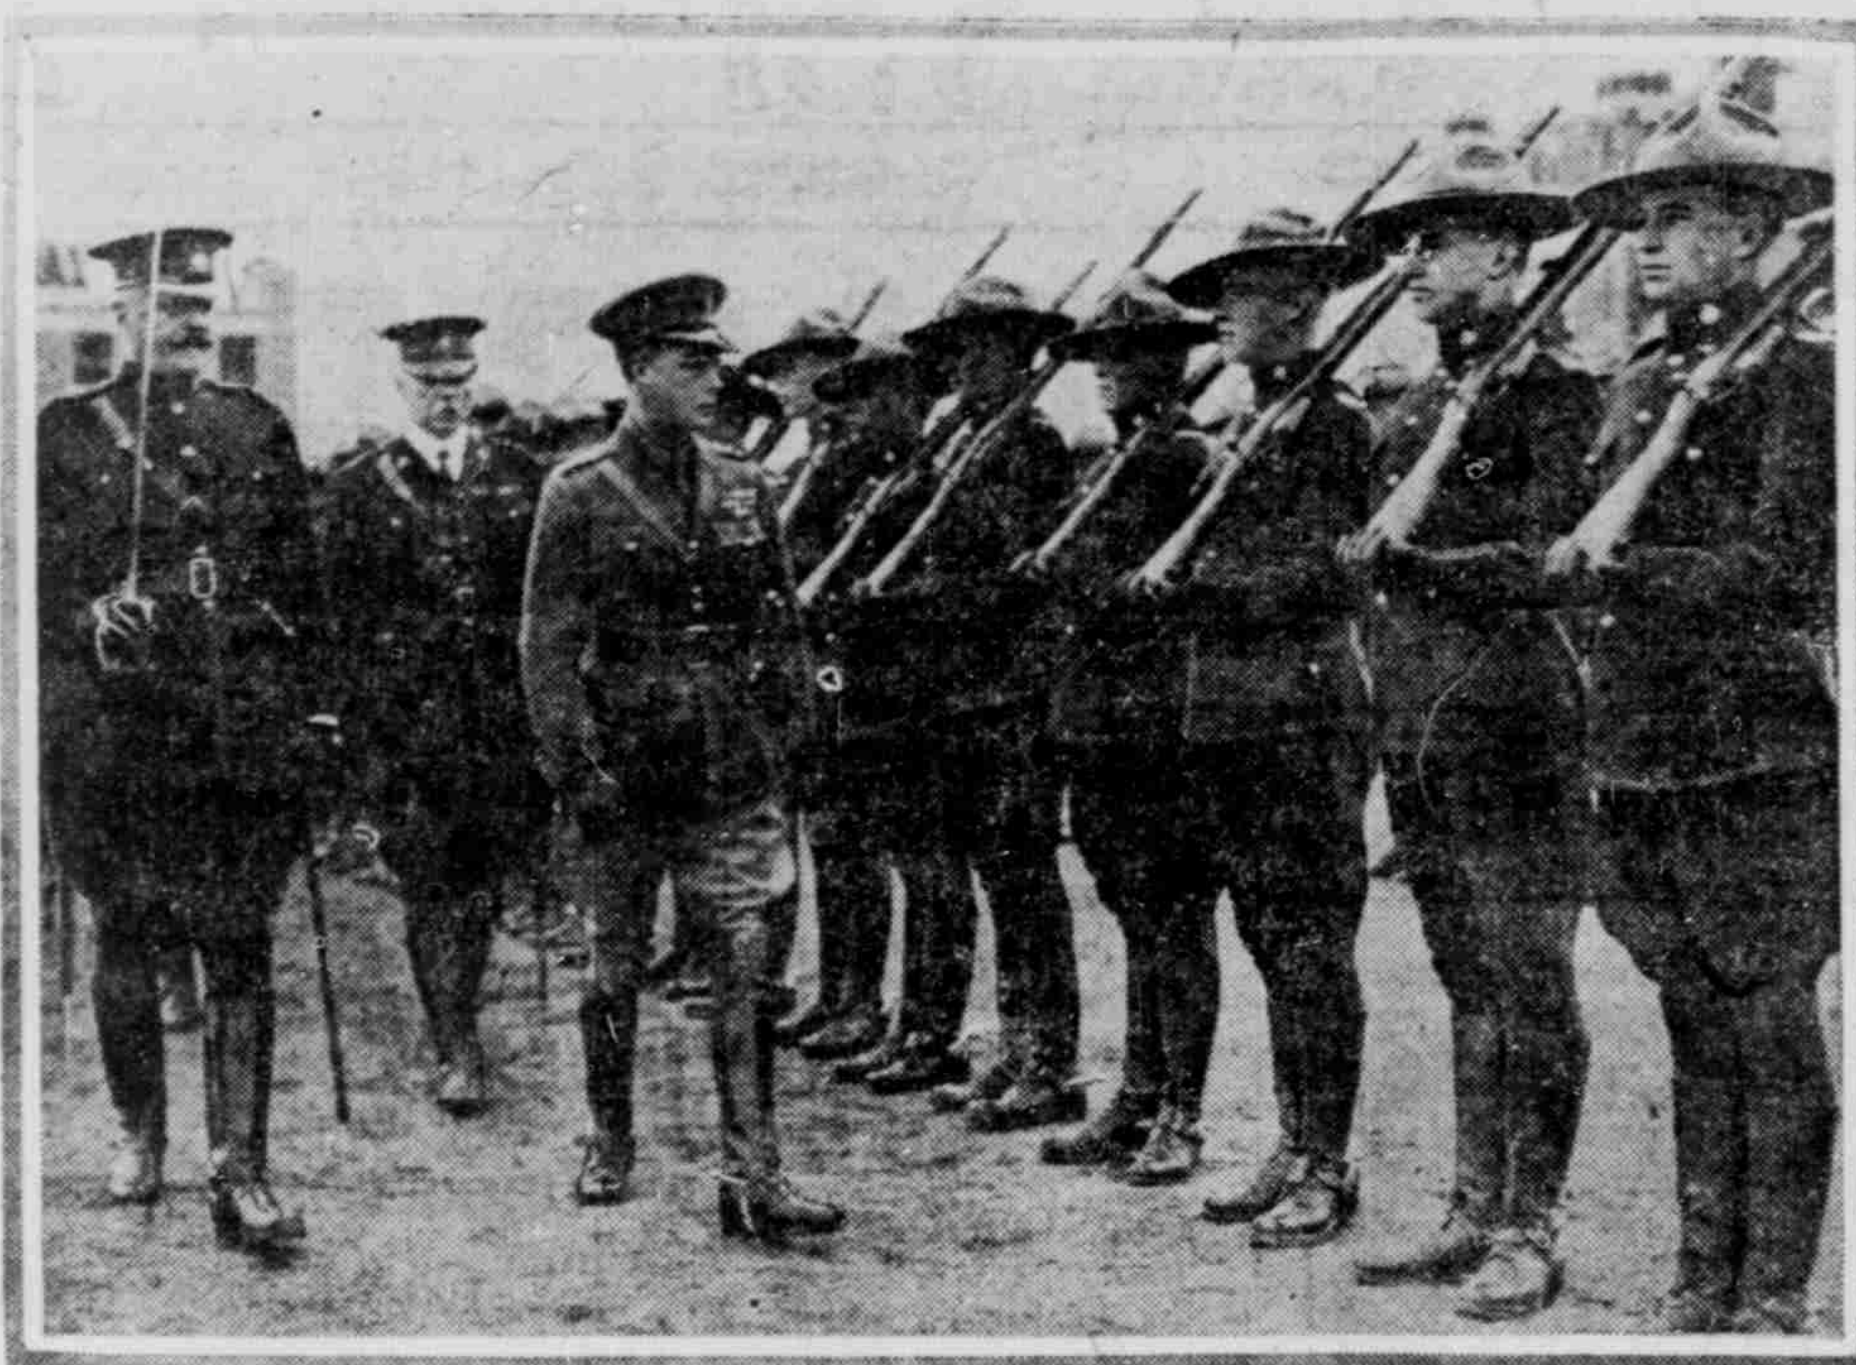

Desertions en masse have been reported by reliable observers from one front, Chinese mercenaries being organized into rear guards to prevent disaffected units from marching home.

EVANGELIST MINGES IN STIRRING ADDRESS

The man who cannot conquer self a failure, no matter how great his other successes may be," said William John Minges in a stirring address Sunday night at the Indiana Avenue Christian church, where he and his company are in a great revival. Minges was in fighting trim and deadly in earnest, and when he entered upon his sermon, "Conquering Self," he was more apparently impressed with his work as an evangelist than ever before in South Bend. The boisterous, gambler, the drunkard and the lust monger he pictured as going to hell and being dumped in the garbage can.

One of the most remarkable services was the women's meeting at 2 o'clock. For nearly two hours the large crowd of women listened intently and cheered him as he handled the social evils from the ballroom to the brotherhood. No services will be held this evening, as it is rest day for the evangelist and his workers. The subject for tomorrow night will be "Tenting Toward Sodomy." It was announced that the next meeting for women and girls will be held next Thursday evening after school and Mrs. Minges will deliver the address.

RED CROSS GIVES REPORT OF WORK

Head of Organization Gives a Complete Summary of Activities.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The first complete picture of the activities of the American Red Cross during the war is given in the report of the war council of the organization headed by Henry P. Davison, the first installment of which was made public today.

It shows that between May, 1917, and February 28, 1919, the American Red Cross received a total of $400,000,000 for relief work, $283,500,000 of which came from war drives. Of that sum $41,332,337 in securities and $52,763,944 in supplies remained available in February.

Beginning the twenty month war period with an available relief fund of $2,134,904 and a membership of 886,194 adults, the organization built up its membership to 20,000,000 adults and 11,000,000 juniors. Membership drives alone during the war period brought in $42,000,000.

War Fund.
Proceeds of the two war drives went into a war fund to be used exclusively for war relief and interest earnings accruing added $2,766,463. It was estimated that more than 42,000,000 persons contributed to the second drive.

Enumerating the activities of the Red Cross during the war, the report says 371,577,000 relief articles were produced by volunteer workers; that the families of 50,000 soldiers were aided; that refreshments for 40,000,000 were served in Red Cross canteens; that 23,822 nurses were enrolled; that more than 15,000,000 men were served in canteens in France, nearly two million French refugees aided, nearly 150,000 wounded in Italy carried in Red Cross ambulances; moving pictures furnished for more than 2,000,000 American soldiers in France, French hospitals supplied with more than four million gallons of nitrous oxide and oxygen and 155,000 Italian children cared for.

Gov. Goodrich Loses Caste in Efforts to "Pass Buck" in Matter of Gary Strike

By JOHN J. CARSON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—James P. Goodrich, of Indiana, has arrived once again for a few minutes in the national spotlight and, as usual, under the circumstances which may not be entirely pleasing to the self-chosen candidate for the vice-presidency. Attention of leaders in the industrial world and leaders in the labor world, congregated in Washington for the great industrial conference, has been attracted to the Goodrich speech at St. Louis. Goodrich, as a result, will receive no invitation from the conference to hasten to Washington to advise the delegates.

The Goodrich speech evidently was not made for nation-wide publication but one utterance from the Indiana governor has been printed in part in newspapers over the country. Coming just at the time when Goodrich was called upon to beg for federal troops to appear in Gary, the speech generally has been regarded about the industrial conference as an effort to offer an alibi for executive weakness.

But when Goodrich entered into a discussion of the various phases of the uprising of steel workers in Gary and in just a few words informed his auditors that "it is not I who should be condemned but the administration at Washington," he offered himself as a target for everyone who is here now endeavoring to find a remedy for industrial ills. From hand to hand today there passed a paragraph clipped from a New York paper. The paragraph was as follows:

Calls It Impudence.
"With an important industrial center in his state depending for good order and protection from revolutionists upon the presence of the United States troops, Gov. Goodrich, of Indiana, had the impudence at a speech at St. Louis to put the blame for unrest and violence upon the president. If the governor of Indiana had assumed any responsibility in laying unrest and anarchy upon the president, he would have had no time for the picknicking excursion to the metropolis of Missouri!"

And thus Gov. Goodrich for one

REV. B. D. BECK REBUKES MINERS

Also Asks Parishioners to Contribute Freely to Welfare Organization.

Likening the miners, who are demanding a five-day week, to Judas Iscariot, betrayer of Jesus Christ, Rev. B. D. Beck, of the Grace Methodist church, Sunday denounced them for their "selfish" attitude. "They forget that public in the dream of their own selfishness," declared Rev. Beck in his sermon. "It is merely an example of the grasping spirit of the individuals in the world today."

"It is the craze for money and self-improvement and the utter disregard for public good which has caused this labor turmoil. If a man allows one sin like that to enter his life and does not immediately strive to overcome it, the sin will grow upon him and he will find himself in the shoes of Judas."

Beware of Deceit.
"Beware of the deceitfulness of riches," the clergyman warned his congregation. "Do not be a grasping tightwad or a spendthrift." Rev. Beck asked his parishioners to contribute willingly and freely to the Welfare organization in the present drive. He said that by their contributions they would show their interest in the public good, and their disregard of self for the good of others who were not so fortunate. "What are you willing to give me and I will deliver him to you," words taken from the 26th chapter, 13th and 14th verses was the text of Rev. Beck's sermon. His subject was, "How Judas sold his lord."

SAYS NOTHING TO STORY ABOUT QUITTING FORCE BECAUSE OF TROUSERS

Christian Sorwick, former policeman and traffic officer at Main and Washington sts., did not quit the police department because of the order of Chief Kline that well defined creases in the trouser legs was to be required of the members of the force. He says so himself. Mr. Sorwick asserts that he had a chance at a better job for more money with the Stewart Construction company, and he took it.

"I have worked for the city a number of years," said Sorwick last night. "and have seldom had a Sunday with my family, and much of the time have been away from home nights. Here I am getting better pay and have a man's time at home." The former patrolman assumes that someone in the police department gave out the story about his refusing to crease his trousers as a joke on him, but asserts that he had no trouble with the department on that score or any other.

MAYOR HILAN REQUESTS BAKER TO DELAY ACTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—On learning that the transport, George Washington, was anchored off Quarantine with several hundred troops aboard, who it was reported, were to take over the docks along the North river this morning, Mayor Hylan Sunday night telegraphed Secretary of War Baker, requesting that no action be taken in replacing the striking war workers until the conciliators appointed by Secretary of Labor Wilson confer with the national adjustment commission.

"I will endeavor to arrange a conference early tomorrow morning and you will be advised immediately of the results," the mayor concluded.
