

PRESIDENT BEGINS WEEK'S VACATION

Harding Cruising Aboard Yacht on First Extended Rest of Regime.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 30.—President Harding was cruising on the Atlantic coast aboard his yacht, the Mayflower, today on his first extended vacation since entering the white house last March.

After reviewing the pageant at Plymouth, Mass., Monday, commemorating the 30th anniversary of the landing of the pilgrims, the president will go to the summer lodge of Sec'y Weeks in the White mountains for a week's rest, riding horseback, golfing and climbing.

Though he will be far from the affairs of state at the Weeks' place on the mount of Mount Prospect, several miles from Lancaster, N. H., the president may find his vacation interrupted by the arrival from Washington of the proclamation of peace with Germany which is being drafted by Atty. Gen. Daugherty. Should the document be completed before the president's return to Washington 19 days hence, he will interrupt his vacation long enough to attach his signature as he did when the congressional peace resolution was rushed to him during his fourth of July week-end vacation at Raritan, N. J.

Mrs. Harding Takes Trip.

Mrs. Harding accompanied the president on the Mayflower, apparently completely well from the slight illness which prevented her going on Henry Ford's camping expedition last week.

The Mayflower is due at Plymouth early Monday. A heavy schedule has been prepared for the president which includes review of a military and civic parade in the forenoon, a luncheon, a formal address at 4 p. m., an informal dinner and a review of the pilgrim pageant at night. The party will board the Mayflower again for Portland, Maine, where motor cars will be waiting to carry the party over the mountains to the Weeks' summer place.

SMALL INSPECTS ILLINOIS ROADS

CHICAGO, July 30.—Gov. Len Small is touring through Kane county today, inspecting roads in the neighborhood of Elgin, Mazon, Frankfort and Dwight are on the governor's announced itinerary for the day.

The trip is being made in connection with plans for the awarding of contracts for state highway construction work, the governor announced. He denied that it had anything to do with delaying the serving of warrants for his arrest that have been issued in Springfield as a result of his indictment for embezzlement of state interest funds.

"It will be available to anybody who has any official business to transact," the governor said. He reiterated his intention to return to Springfield "about the middle of next week."

BEGIN WORK IN SHANTUNG ISSUE

HONOLULU, O. H., July 30.—Count Obaka has left Tokio for Peking where he will open negotiations for the return of Shantung to China, according to a Tokio dispatch to the Jiji, a Japanese language newspaper published here.

Obaka has been in attendance at the Tokio conference of Japanese ministers and colonial officials for the last month.

The dispatch expressed a belief that the proposed withdrawal of Japanese troops from Siberia will be postponed because of the recent anti-Japanese activities of bolshevist elements.

Garbled Report is Back of Row With Lord Northcliffe

London Editor is Waiting for Zealous Interviewer of New York Paper.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Lord Northcliffe, whose controversy with Premier Lloyd George is reverberating through two continents, slipped away from all the clamor and furore here today and sought the quiet of the golf links.

The British publisher left H. Wickham Steed, editor of the London Times to do all the talking for him. Mr. Steed was quite willing to talk, but he said that before he did so to any great extent, he wanted to interview the reporter for a New York newspaper who interviewed him here a few days ago.

Mr. Steed intimated that it would be a warm session.

In the interview Mr. Steed was quoted as saying that King George had said to Lloyd George: "You must stop killing my people," referring to Ireland.

And that was the cause of all the trouble, Mr. Steed said today.

"Are you going to make a statement on the matter?" the editor was asked.

"Am I?" countered Mr. Steedman. "As you Americans say: 'I'll say I am.' But I want to see that reporter first. I am waiting to hear from the paper now."

Steed said today he didn't know where his chief had gone except that he had departed for a round of golf with an old friend.

Lord Northcliffe will leave New York late today for Vancouver, going by way of Toronto.

HE BUYS CORSETS, SHE ASKS DECREE

DES MOINES, July 30.—Because a husband buys the corsets for his wife is no reason why the wife should be given a divorce, in the opinion of Judge Geo. Joseph Meyer.

Mrs. William E. Roste, rested her suit for divorce with the assertion, "I cannot even buy a corset. He does all the family shopping."

Judge Meyer dismissed the suit for insufficient evidence.

Immigration Law Bars Titled Women From Return to America

NEW YORK, July 30.—One effect of the drastic enforcement of the new Immigration law here and at other ports will be to provide a serious obstacle to the "homecoming" plans of several American women who have sacrificed their American citizenship for foreign titles, the Customs officials discovered recently. It is within the range of possibility that some of the homesick ones may have to prolong their residences abroad indefinitely for another year at least.

Under the law only 2 percent of the nationals residing here when the 1910 census was taken may be admitted in any one year hereafter. Immigration officials say the provision will be enforced against the rich and poor immigrants alike, cabin aliens being compelled to remain aboard ship along with their brethren in the steerage until Washington can rule on their admissibility under the quota clause of the law.

Quotas Already Filled.

Arrivals reaching New York or other ports after the quota is filled will be turned back. Several nationalities are already nearing their quota for the year, some having been practically filled already for this month. If any of the expatriated women should therefore arrive to find the quota for her nationality already filled by unforeseen arrivals at this and other ports there would be nothing for her to do but put engine passage back to Europe and wait for another "try" in the future.

One of the women with cause to worry under Uncle Sam's tightening restrictions is the Countess Anton Stray, who before her marriage was Miss Harriot Daly, daughter of the late Marcus Daly and heiress to a large part of the fortune which he made in copper. This couple met at the wedding of Count Laszlo Szechenyi and Miss Gladys Vanderbilt here in 1908 and were married by Ambassador Gerard, who represented the United States at Berlin up to the beginning of the war.

The count served in the war as a lieutenant of the Third Hussars of Germany and was at one time reported to have been taken prisoner by the Russians. In view of severe economic conditions in Germany since the war friends of the Countess would not be surprised to hear of her decision to return home any time.

Many Possible Victims.

Another possible victim of the law's operation is the Duchess of Croy, formerly Miss Nancy Leishman, of Pittsburgh, daughter of a former ambassador to Berlin. They were married in October, 1913, the Duke being a descendant of the ancient royal house of Hungary. In the eyes of the German law it was a morganic marriage and the young American woman's title was not officially recognized. A son was born to this couple in October, 1914.

Still another feminine title holder reported to be casting longing eyes toward her native American shores is the Countess Marie di Zoppola, formerly Miss Edith Mortimer, daughter of the Stanley Mortimers and one of the best known beauties of New York, Newport and Long Island society. She became the bride of the Count, then an Italian aviator, in June, 1919, the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's parents at Rocky Hill, Conn.

Miss Mortimer, it will be recalled, was indicted on a charge of manslaughter after an automobile she was driving ran down and killed a man, but the indictment was dismissed. Owing to the publicity of the case the couple kept their wedding place a secret until the last minute. The Countess de Laszlo, formerly Miss Constance Whitney Warren, of this city is still another former American woman who has cause to be interested in the new immigration law. She is now living in Paris. She was married to the Count in 1912, at the Warren home, No. 924 Fifty avenue. The Count's family was one of the most distinguished of French nobility.

True, any of these women would be permitted to visit their home country at any time they choose. They might even possess the "visas" incidentally. If the immigration authorities have reason to suspect any of these "visas," however, they are authorized to require the "visitor" to put up a bond which would be liable to forfeiture and the alien subject to deportation at the expiration of six months.
