It is said that the report of the company's auditor will show an output of cloth yardage for the month of August far in excess of any previous month during the entire history of the company and that the output of the mill for the spring and summer season of 1922 is now said far ahead.

Plan Immense Industry. Important changes were made in the management of the South Bend Woolen Co. last spring. Under the new management plans have been made and are being carried out for the expansion of the business and the acquisition of the mill and its machinery and other equipment.

The present excellent condition of the mill and the salubriousness of its product is largely due to his unusual ability and effort, according to a statement of the directors.

The plans of the company include the purchase of the 250,000 square foot preferred stock with valuable common stock rights through the Central Bond & Mortgage Co., well known investment bankers of Chicago, dealers in high grade preferred stocks. Police Patrol Carries Day's Receipts to Bank—All Extra City Cars Pressed Into Service to Handle Thousands of Persons Who Attended Yesterday—$1,900 in Race Purses Today.

By O. D. QUINLAN. Over 30,000 visitors, the biggest attendance in the history of the Interstate fair, packed the grandstand and bleachers and spread at divergent angles through the exhibit buildings and over the spacious grounds of Springbrook, Thursday night. It was a gala day for both young and old, and the fond hopes of fair officials and workers approached realization when W. Schuyler Robertson, a pioneer of South Bend, purchased the last available ticket to the grandstand shortly after noon.

The influx continued unabated through the afternoon and evening. Ticket sellers at the main entrances by actual count disposed of 10,000 tickets per minute for a period of ten minutes. This continued for several hours.

EXHIBITS AT FAIR ENCOURAGES CLUB

Horticultural Society to Open Show at Commerce Club Wednesday.

Encouraged by the elaborate horticultural display at the Interstate fair, officers of the St. Joseph County Horticultural society are highly elated concerning the outlook for flatter success of the annual show which the society will hold.

The event opens next Wednesday and will continue for three days at the Commerce Club.

Those actively identified with the exhibition explained yesterday that it was open to every man, woman and child of this county in an organized effort to give impetus to the development of the industry. More than $800 in cash prizes will be distributed and awards will be made by non-resident judges. Display plates will be furnished free by the society and all exhibits must be placed not later than noon next Wednesday. Judging will be Thursday.

To Promote Interest. Fruit exhibits by individual growers must be shown in one-half bushel baskets, which will be supplied by the organization. The best ten varieties for market use will be displayed in trays furnished by exhibitors. The same rule will apply to the best ten varieties of fruits for home use.

Prizes will be divided to cover fresh and canned fruits, Jellies, preserves, vinegars and syrups and fresh and canned vegetables. In addition, money awards will be given for the best flower displays, both in amateur and professional classes.

From the number of applications received, it is believed by officers of the organization that the show will result in promoting horticulture throughout this section on a more stable basis of expansion.

Olga Krowin, in the outstanding part of the program, is a golden shimmer, where she is dressed at all in an ideal type of burlesque loveliness. In her emotional scenes, which are as well as a beauty. Playing opposite her, Frederick Mackin, while handicapped by a severe cold, delivered blank verse lines as a scholar of the Shakespearean school.

The solo dance by Miss Vera D'Arlette in the banquet scene was most artistically done. That the human comedienne, Miss D'Arlette, is a statuesque impersonation. Mildred Walker, does not straiten the spectator more than it does, is due to the exquisite lighting of the scene and to the artistic posing of the model. She is painted like marble and in Julia, a steel blue of the niche wherein she stands, she is as cold and chiseled as any thing in an art gallery.

The engagement continues for two more performances, concluding with Saturday matinee. T. N. T.

Drinking Fountain in Sailor Lobby

The new drinking fountain in the lobby of the furniture store of Sailor Bros., North Michigan st.—the first of its kind to be erected in South Bend in connection with a retail store—is now complete and in full operation. Fred Rose, proprietor of Sailor Bros., had the fountain placed in the lobby of his store because of the almost complete lack of suitable drinking water in the downtown district of the city.

In the old days, there were many fountains placed along the curbs in the downtown streets, but these fountains were finally abandoned because they were being constantly put out of order by being run into by passing automobiles.
