

ADMITS SLAYING RIVAL FOLLOWING FIGHT OVER GIRL

John Riale, Cook at Oliver Hotel, Confesses to Murder of Mike Raemo.

Mike Raemo, 30 years, Italian, houseman at the Platner cigar store, was shot to death at 12:15 Friday morning at the east end of the LaSalle av. bridge. His assailant, John Riale, 23, a cook at the Oliver hotel, confessed to the crime at police headquarters at noon Friday. Riale, 5-foot-10, collected, admitted to the police the attack upon Raemo, the culmination of a long standing grudge. The pair were rivals for the favor of a blonde woman of the Italian quarter of the city. Raemo's successful wooing resulted in a fist fight between the pair two weeks ago and had blood had existed since that time. A short time prior to the attack Friday, Riale, according to his own admission, told his rival they had met for the last time.

Raemo had reached the end of the LaSalle av. bridge, presumably on his way to a party at the Oliver hotel, when his assailant, armed with a .32-caliber Ivers-Johnson revolver, came up to him from behind and emptied the revolver at him.

Two bullets entered Raemo's back, embedding themselves in the body. One of the bullets bored its way through the lower part of the heart. Two other bullets struck Raemo in the left arm, both shots passing through the arm above the elbow.

Three Five Shots. A total of five shots, fired by Raemo's assailant, it was told by neighbors who rushed from their homes after hearing the shooting. Raemo was found face downward in a dying condition and he was rushed to the Epworth hospital in the police ambulance. At the Epworth hospital he was pronounced dead by a physician who made an examination of the wounds.

The city's Italian section yesterday paid final tribute to Michael Raemo, victim of a lover's feud, as he lay asleep in death on his casket.

Throughout the day a continuous procession filed in and out of the little room where tapers threw rays of light across the pallid coverlet and the little crucifix that testified to his religion. Little groups of shawl clad women and swarthy men in foreign voices, hushed by the presence of death, commented upon his untimely death and the fate of the self-confessed slayer in the city jail.

Among the mourners came a young woman, blond and comely to gaze upon the features of the dead man. It is whispered that she stopped, startled at the couch where the dead man lay, and casting a last lingering glance at the pallid features, rushed from the establishment. It is rumored that perhaps she is the woman connected in the story of love which led to his death. Some think perhaps she was the sweetheart that indirectly caused his death, and she is the woman whom she came to look for the last time upon her lover, and being overpowered with grief rushed away.

But who was the blonde woman? Officers wonder.

Cites "Clique" Hatred. The possibility of following up the black hand which originated the attack in Riale's confession to Asst. Chief of Police Cassidy and Sergt. Benjamin Roberts. Riale, the officers claim, told them that it was the customary practice in Italy for a group of friends of a victim to meet at the residence of the party regardless of what happened.

He initiated, the officers said, that Raemo's "gang" in this vicinity would "get" him if he had not been captured by the police. He explained this system to the officers. It is said, by citing the alleged rivalry and hatred existing between the factions in southern Italy and the organizations in the northern part of that country.

He is alleged to have stated that these two groups of Italian people continue to band themselves together after reaching American soil. The custom which originated in the foreign country have been continued in the United States. He also told the police, it is said, that in his native land the people "take the law in their own hands" when they get into trouble.

He further stated that the threats made by the dead man also increased the enmity which had grown rapidly between them during the past few weeks. The officers declared they believed that Riale's associates were the ones that encouraged him to "have it out" with Raemo.

The chief of police stated that the police attempt to gather more evidence in the case ended with the signed confession of Riale. He stated that the evidence secured before the admission of Riale together with the information contained in the signed statement made by him.

BOOSTERS FOR SOUTH BEND

HAROLD E. HERR, Secretary of the Herr & Herr Co., active member of the South Bend Advertising Club.

was sufficient to hold him for the action of the grand jury. He declared that the officers did not make any attempt to learn the identity of the "blonde woman" in the case who is said to have been the real cause of the trouble which ended in the slaying.

Locate Bullets. Coroner C. B. Crumpacker, who conducted an autopsy upon the body declared that the victim had lived at least 30 minutes after the time he was shot. Death was caused by internal hemorrhage from severance of the pulmonary artery which carries the main supply of blood to the lungs, by the .32 bullet used by the assassin. The bullet which severed the artery lodged directly in back of the breast bone. Another bullet which struck Raemo's lower back, penetrated the stomach and intestine, lodging in the front wall of the abdomen. Two other wounds were inflicted, both in the left arm above the elbow, the misdeed passing through the flesh of the arm without striking the bone. The two bullets recovered, still almost perfectly shaped, were retained by the coroner as evidence.

Raemo, who it is believed, did not have any known relatives in America, was a native of Italy, who was attending the Kreighbaum undertaking establishment where it was identified by Anton Sobek, in whose home Raemo was a roomer, Friday morning.

Sergt. of Police Roberts who was on the corner of Washington and Michigan streets when he was advised by a neighbor to investigate a murder on LaSalle av., hurried north on Michigan st. At the corner of LaSalle av. Louis Brillan, proprietor of a pool room at that corner, declared he had seen a man answering Riale's description running west on LaSalle av. and went north.

Roberts set out in a taxicab and overtook Riale at the Niles rd. on Howard st. Riale who was dripping wet because of the rain and perspiration, was walking hurriedly toward the corner of the street when he came up to him. He told at the time he had taken a girl to her home and was returning to his own home, which he gave as 812 Crescent av.

Confesses to Crime. Confronted by Brillan Friday morning, Riale, who had been arrested at the time that he had not been able to sleep since he was placed in his cell. Further questioning by the police after detectives had procured evidence which identified Riale to be the murderer, and while he promised a satisfactory answer, the young Italian, 23 years old, broke down and said he would confess all.

Riale in his confession to the police admitted he had previously confessed to Raemo in a fist fight which owing to the presence of the young Italian, 23 years old, broke down and said he would confess all.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Friday morning a man who said he was riding over the bridge shortly after daylight had seen a glittering object lying on the pavement and brought it to the attention of the police. The revolver believed to have been the instrument of death which was used against the dead man while he was on his way to his room unaware that an assassin was stealing up from behind with the purpose of killing him.

The revolver was a .32-caliber Ivers-Johnson. The hard rubber butt of the gun had been broken, one piece of the handle having been broken off entirely. Evidently Riale after finishing his successful attack, threw the revolver away, the gun striking on the pavement cracking and breaking the butt of the weapon.

The motive of the crime is probably of long standing. It is known that the men were not on friendly terms and that on several occasions they had words over a certain woman for whose affections they were both seeking. The woman, it was said by friends of both of the men, was a blonde and was known as "Kate." This name was not on friendly terms with a view of locating the woman in the case, thought to be the real motive of the crime.

The fact that the relations of the two men were anything but friendly was evidenced by a statement made Friday by Joe Aversa, a cook at the Busy Bee restaurant, 207 N. Michigan st., where Raemo usually took his meals.

Tells of Fight. "I saw Raemo strike Riale in the face about two weeks ago," was the statement made by Aversa, who told that he did not know the reason

Maj. Charles Darling, of Elkhart, in an address last night to members of the federalized machine gun battalion of the national guard in the Chamber of Commerce, spoke in glowing terms of the plan provided by the government to every complete battalion. An appropriation of between $35,000 and $50,000 to each battalion in the erection of a modern clubhouse with a gymnasium, athletic equipment, and other sports, with various entertainments for the members of the guard, was announced by the major.

Maj. Darling's address was enthusiastically received by the members of the battalion with the mutual resolve to make the membership to a point where the appropriation may be received. Added impetus to the efforts of the company to attain the necessary number will perhaps make the total a reality long before the expected time.

While gathering last night at the announcement that a machine gun and 50 rifles will be on hand next week for the drill Friday night, and at this meeting the company will undertake the first of its program of active drill. A report from St. Benjamin Harmony school Friday night, reported that the Indiana license number 212745 was recovered by the police about 8 o'clock last night when an ambulance call was received from the south side that a machine had been badly damaged and its occupant injured. The car was found in a very damaged condition apparently from crashing into a tree. One wheel was completely broken off and the engine was demolished.

A search for the driver who was reported hurt was fruitless and police believe that he had stolen the machine and fearing detection, fled.

FAILED TO MAKE CULTURAL TONES, OPERA STARS SUE

Disgusted as men, so as not to offend the Orthodox members, the women sang at one service which claimed, but stipulated that the women were to sing. A protest resulted in the dismissal of the women.

PROHIBITION DIRECTOR EXPECTED TO ACT ON LIQUOR SITUATION

Speculation and rumor among circles interested in civic problems marked the return of H. A. Minton, assistant federal prohibition director of the state of Indiana, to Indianapolis Thursday following a conference in which Harry Mathers, local prohibition enforcement officer; Floyd O. Zellison, prosecuting attorney; his assistant, A. H. Hamborski, and Mr. Minton gathered for the purpose of discussing the 84 cases now pending trial in the city court. These law violators, it is said, after being detected by state and city officials in liquor raids are released upon bonds after their appearance in the city court and postponement and discontinuation follows nearly every case.

During the past few weeks that has become so common that it has been brought before the attention of federal officials, it was said. South Bend is wondering what action will follow Minton's return to headquarters.

HENRY FORD WILL CARRY ISSUE TO AMERICAN PEOPLE

Detroit Manufacturer to "Protest as Long as Newberry Sits in Senate."

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 30.—"As long as Mr. Newberry is in the senate, I will not stop protesting against the illegal use of money in election contests," Henry Ford declared today in an interview here.

Sitting in the office of the Ford plant at Dearborn, the automobile manufacturer reaffirmed his statement of a few days ago that "he would carry the issue to the people" in every state where a senator voted to "whitewash" S. N. Newberry. Ford had just returned from a trip to the Michigan upper peninsula where he had inspected his vast timber holdings and manufacturing plants.

"I will not rest," Ford said, in response to a question, "while Mr. Newberry or any other senator who through the illegal use of huge sums of money during a political campaign hold seats in the United States senate."

"I do not want public office myself," he continued, "you could not bring me into office. I would like to see the people who have been out of jobs for three months, arrived in trucks to appear before the unemployment conference as 'human documents.'"

Under the leadership of Edwin LeDoux, who sold "slaves" in Boston, "the army" will march before the conference to show the distress caused by unemployment. LeDoux denied the men would "picket the conference."

"A man is better off for learning something about everything. You know, I never smoked much before I came to Washington, but I've learned to smoke cigarettes—not much—not many—but at the same time I have learned something about cigarettes. There are billions of them sent to Europe every year by this country and the most popular brands are these—"

PROPOSE AMENDMENTS TO G. O. P. TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Vital provisions of the republican tax bill would be eliminated if Ford had not commented on the press reports of the committee's findings. "You can say for me that as far as I am concerned, I mean every word of my telegram to the senate and will go the limit in carrying out what I said," Ford concluded.

When asked as to how the issue could be carried to the people, Ford said: "There are a number of ways in which a campaign of this kind could be brought before the people. I can't say just what I would like to be done. We must wait and see what the senate does with the report of its special committee."

This report on the Ford-Newberry election contest was submitted to the senate by the special investigating committee yesterday. Ford had no comment to make on the press reports of the committee's findings. "You can say for me that as far as I am concerned, I mean every word of my telegram to the senate and will go the limit in carrying out what I said," Ford concluded.

BANDITS INVADE CLUB, TAKE $367

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 3.—Robbers invaded the lobby of the Illinois athletic club in Michigan av., early today, terrorized 100 employees and robbed them of $367 in the day's receipts. None of the 150 guests of the club were molested.

A policeman stroked by as they fled, but was unaware that a robbery had been committed.
