Honoring Miss Helen Burke, whose marriage to William Casper Kohn of Indianapolis will take place next month, Miss Gertrude Greenleaf, 122 E. Paris st., entertained a tea Thursday afternoon. Miss Freda Hershovitz assisted in receiving 35 guests between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock. Presiding at the tea table, lovely with its silver basket of Ophelia roses and pink tapers, in silver holders, were Miss Frances Salinger, Mrs. Frances Harrington and Miss Ann Sparks. The out-of-town guests were Miss Esther Burke of Rockford, Ill., Mrs. Fannie Kohn of Philadelphia, Pa., and Miss Ann Sparks of St. Louis, Mo. This afternoon, Miss Kathleen Gaultfoyle, 620 W. LaSalle av., will be hostess at tea as a courtesy to Miss Burke and to Miss Florence Guthrie, a bride of the early spring.

The Kappa Phi Sigma sorority met at the home of Miss Julia Boyer, 515 N. Wood st., Thursday evening. During the business session, an election of officers was held, resulting in the appointment of Miss Kathryn Faulkner, president; Miss Julia Boyer, vice-president; Miss Nina Hutchinson, secretary; Miss Gretchen Miller, treasurer. The remainder of the evening was spent socially and a two-course luncheon was served to nine members. The sorority will be entertained on the evening of March 9 at the home of Miss Kathryn Faulkner, 526 W. Colfax av.

Acts two and three of the opera, "Shenewis," were presented by the Music department of the Progress club at the club house at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Miss May Applegate read the story of the opera while Mrs. Walter Fasenacht and Mrs. Russell Miller had charge of the musical program which was as follows: Vocal duet, Mrs. Elmer Essex and Mrs. Walter Fasenacht, accompanied by Mrs. Russell Miller; vocal solo by Mrs. Essex; vocal solo by Mrs. Rodney Talcott; cello solo by Miss Nellie Woolman, accompanied by Miss Lillian Anderson. On March 9 the department will present Act one of the opera "Fairland."

Mrs. F. C. Koor, 824 Park av., assisted by Mrs. Donald A. Himes, Mrs. Floyd Deahl, Mrs. Alfred Malin and Mrs. Homer Robinson, entertained at a 1 o'clock luncheon the members of the Quatorze club Thursday afternoon. Yellow tulips and freesia formed the attractive decorations for the table at which were seated 13 guests. Mrs. D. F. Fry reviewed the chapters of the study book and the remainder of the afternoon was spent socially. The club will hold an afternoon meeting on March 9 at the home of Mrs. Fry, 1660 Woodward av.

The fifty-eighth annual reunion of the Knights of Pythias was observed Thursday evening at the regular family night meeting which was held in the Tribune auditorium. J. A. Swygart, chairman of a committee of 25 members, reported on the proposed new home. Elton Crapanza gave several vocal selections followed by vocal numbers rendered by the Amphion quartet. The remainder of the evening was spent socially.

Mrs. C. J. Gaskill, 406 E. Monroe st., assisted by Mrs. Ernest Ulbrich and Mrs. Earl Yost, entertained 17 members of the Thursday club at a Washington tea Thursday afternoon. Spring flowers and small flags were used effectively in decorating the house. The program of the afternoon consisted of five-minute talks by the members on "Our Presidents." The annual banquet of the club will be held on March 9 at the First Christian church at 7 o'clock.

The St. Joseph Valley Grange held an all-day session at Beyer Hall Thursday. Dinner was served at noon to 100 guests, following which a Washington program was given which was in charge of V. Nicar. P. M. Jackson gave an interesting talk on Washington, and Mr. Nicar read a paper dated Jan. 4, 1800, which contained a notification from the senate to the house of representatives and to John Adams, of the death of Washington, which occurred Dec. 14, 1799. Musical numbers concluded the program.

Mrs. James Varier, 263 S. Lafayette, was hostess Thursday at a 1 o'clock luncheon, the guests being the members of the Mothers' club. A crystal basket of tulips formed the centerpiece of the table at which covers were placed for 18 members. The club will meet again in two weeks, the place to be announced later.

The Nonpareil club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. F. O. Brownell, 623 N. Main st. Twelve members were present and current events followed the business session, at which plans were made for a St. Patrick's supper to be given at the home of Mrs. Arthur Conklin, 124 N. St. Louis blvd., on the evening of March 15. The next regular meeting of the club will be held on the afternoon of March 9 at the home of Mrs. Fred Wagner, Lincoln way, E.

Thirty-three members of the Circle of Mercy met at the home of Mrs. Mary Flanagan, 714 Forest av., Thursday afternoon. Following the business session the remainder of the afternoon was spent socially. On the afternoon of March 9 Mrs. Thomas Miller, Marietta st., will be hostess to the circle.

Mrs. E. M. Brown, 128 LaPorte av., assisted by Mrs. Frank Carpenter, entertained the members of the Home Workers' class of St. Paul's Memorial M. E. church Thursday afternoon. After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed. On the afternoon of March 23, Mrs. George Meadmore, Cottage Grove av., will entertain the class.

The Circle of Service of the First Baptist church held an all-day session at the church Thursday. Dinner was served at noon to the members and their husbands, covers being placed for 30. The day was spent sewing and at the business session plans were made for an Easter tea and an apron sale to be held the week following Easter. The next regular meeting of the circle will be held March 20 at the church.

The Harmony Reading circle met at the home of Mrs. Benjamin Mitchell, 919 E. Madison st. Mrs. C. H. DeFrees read the first chapters of "Helen of the Old House" by Harold Bell Wright, and in a contest the favor was won by Mrs. Charles Hall. The circle will be entertained on the afternoon of March 9 at the home of Mrs. J. Marquis Van Buren st.

The Ideal Embroidery club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Oscar Bayman, 567 Riverside dr. Eight members were present and the afternoon was spent at needlework, after which a social hour was enjoyed. The club will meet on the afternoon of March 9 at the home of Mrs. William Burch, 1st st., River Park.

Miss Mildred Runyan, Osceola, entertained the Young Men and Women's class of Ardmore Heights church at a Washington birthday party Wednesday evening. Eighteen members were present and music and games were enjoyed. In a

Will Address Local Women Monday

Mrs. Agnes Carroll Hayward, who will address the Women's Chamber of Commerce on Monday evening, Feb. 27, at the regular monthly dinner of that organization, is the western representative of the Frank Presbury Advertising agency of New York, the largest organization of its kind in that city. Mrs. Hayward is the only woman in the Chicago advertising world in the capacity of executive representative of an agency. She was formerly associated with Libbey's and Swift's as a dietitian and developed formulas and recipes which are used by these firms in preparing many of the products which are bought in our staple-goods market.

She not only developed the formulas and recipes but she saw to it that the copy advertising for the food products was interestingly written and attractively illustrated. With this very splendid foundation for an advertising education, she is in a position to buy space in periodicals that will pay best for her clients, and she has many of them in the western territory. She is a member of the Women's Advertising club of Chicago, being chairman of the Educational committee.

Mrs. Hayward's subject for Monday evening will be "Women, Incorporated," and she develops her subject most interestingly and instructively for her hearers. She believes that women should avail themselves of the privileges given them by franchise and that they should work for the ultimate good of women in the business world. She is neither a radical suffragist nor a "bolshivist," but she stands for the very highest thing in business for women.

The regular meeting of the Auten W. R. C. was held Tuesday evening at the old court house with 12 members present. One application was received and two initiations. An open meeting will be held next Tuesday in honor of Washington's birthday.

Mrs. R. E. Long, 911 W. LaSalle av., was hostess to the members of the Modern Priscilla club Wednesday afternoon. In a guessing contest the favor was won by Mrs. L. Miller. The afternoon was spent with needlework and luncheon was served to 11 members. In two weeks the club will meet with Mrs. G. A. Reum, 429 Cottage Grove av.

The Cabaret committee for the League of Women Voters' luncheon to be given Monday, from 11:45 until 2:30 o'clock at the Tribune auditorium, announces that a four-piece orchestra from the LaSalle theater will play. Harold Bowden, tenor of Notre Dame university will sing; Miss Mary Joe Miller and Miss Lillian Von Brandt, with partners, will give special dance numbers. Prof. Gates and partner will give a professional exhibit of cabaret dancing and Little Miss Maxine Eaton will give a solo dance. The guests will be served at small tables, which will be reserved through Mrs. L. S. Fleckenscher, Mrs. George Phillips, Mrs. J. E. Neff, Mrs. T. Swartz, and Mrs. E. L. Hummer. Tickets may be obtained at the Grace Shop.

South Bend Grove No. 36, Woodman Circle, gave a card party Wednesday evening at W. O. W. hall. The prizes were won by Mrs. Mary Tracy, Mrs. Lloyd Blake, A. K. Kinsley and A. Stewart. The circle will meet at the same place March 8.

Mrs. John Chamberlin, 602 Cottage Grove av., entertained the members of the E. J. L. L. Euchre club Wednesday afternoon. The favors were won by Mrs. J. Chamberlin, Mrs. A. J. Raab and Mrs. E. S. Snyder. Following the games luncheon was served. The next meeting will be held March 8 with Mrs. Frank Hager, 1112 E. Madison st.

Miss Laura Wheeler, 234 E. Indiana av., entertained the S. M. M. girls of the First Brethren church Tuesday evening at a 7 o'clock dinner. Places were laid for 35 guests, the

Revelations of A Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

THE TEMPTATION MADGE
FIRMLY PUT DOWN

Mrs. Cosgrove looked at me sharply as I with a hesitancy born of my own unwillingness to broach the subject, questioned her concerning the possibility of accommodating Bess Dean in her home for the remaining two weeks of the girl's vacation.

The sweet-faced, kindly sister of Robert Savarin has grown very near to me during the summer days in which I have been a paying guest in her home, and I know that she genuinely likes me also. It is a feeling, which with her as with me, goes back to the days when I first saw her and, by a lucky accident, saved the artist's collection of pictures from the rapacious hands of the woman who pretended to be his wife. Robert Savarin's return to sanity dated from this time also, and—illogically feminine—Mrs. Cosgrove always has given me a great deal of credit for her acute reason, and that in reality she is the shadow from her idealized brother's mind.

I flushed a bit beneath her scrutiny, and she, with the directness I have found in the mountain people, the freedom which our close association has engendered, put her hand upon my shoulder.

"Isn't a question of what I can do, my dear child," she said, "but of what you wish. I can make room for her easily, if Robert doesn't object, and he wouldn't, of course, to any guest of yours. But—" she hesitated—"am I right in thinking that you are only asking this because you think you must be courteous to her for some reason, and that in reality you do not wish her to be here? For if that is the case I will tell her that I haven't a solitary place to put her. Just say the word."

Satisfactory Arrangements

How tempted I was to "say the word" I did not realize myself until afterward. But not to Mrs. Cosgrove, dear and motherly as she was, could I reveal the reason for my reluctance to have Bess Dean become a member of our pleasant mountain family. And the remembrance of the mockery to the girl's eyes as she asked me if I perhaps considered her too disturbing an element braced me to answer my hostess' generous appeal with an appearance of sincerity.

"It's awfully good of you to be so considerate of me," I said breathily, "but, really, if you possibly can put her up I shall be very glad. You see, she and I taught together for a year, and I am indebted to her for a great kindness to a dear friend of mine. I should be exceedingly disappointed if you could not find room for her."

"But I can," she said promptly. "As a usual thing, I don't take people in the farm house, but one of my bungalows will be empty today, so I'll put the twins out there and give your friend a room in the house. She might be afraid if she were alone in the cabin at night."

I reflected that I yet had to see the thing of which Bess Dean would be afraid, but aloud I only thanked Mrs. Cosgrove heartily for her thoughtfulness and went back to the seat beneath the big tree where Dicky was bending with exaggerated attention over Bess Dean.

"Everything's all set," I called cheerily as I came near them. I do not often indulge in Dicky's slang phrases, but I wished to omit nothing which would emphasize or embellish my role of delighted hostess.

"Mrs. Cosgrove can give you a room in the farmhouse, so, Dicky, suppose you run Miss Dean over to the hotel and get her luggage."

"Come Along, Madge!"

Bess Dean rose promptly to her feet, her lips smiling, but her eyes narrowing a bit, a trick I remembered when she was not quite pleased.

and forgotten her promise for the moment."

I spoke nothing but the truth in my last words, for I had seen with much quiet amusement the clever subtleties which Mrs. Cosgrove used in getting rid of persons of whom she disapproved.

Bess Dean wrinkled her nose—a comical little gesture, which is oddly attractive when she does not do it too often—and looked up at Dicky coquettishly.

"Well, if I'm to be shackled to a duenna, you must promise to come and break my chains occasionally or I'll die of ennui."

Dicky struck the attitude of a melodramatic tenor, and beat himself upon the breast with a clenched fist.

"I will rescue you as many times as a day as you wish," he declared, "but just now we'll rescue your luggage. Come along, Madge, drive your car down. The other ones await over in the garage."

My heart gave an unwelcome little throb of triumph. Dicky was not enough interested in Miss Dean's opinion of us to take the trouble to get out his new car, of which he was inordinately proud, and also, intentionally or unintentionally, had arranged for my company in the expedition for her luggage.
