Too Much Eskimo Pie, Tide of Gold, For College Grad

CHRISTIAN KENT NELSON

CHICAGO, June 3.—Anybody'd think dipping ice cream into hot chocolate would melt the ice cream. Christian Kent Nelson discovered the way to do it, however, at just the right temperature. The result—Eskimo pie.

Until he made his discovery Nelson was a poor but contented teacher at Omaha, Ia. Today money's pouring in on him so fast that he's scared. "I want to stay human," he says.

He tried hard enough to market his idea before it "caught on." Most people he approached were skeptical. Finally Russel Stover, of Omaha went in with him. From that moment the golden tide began to rise. For Nelson, at any rate, it rose too high.

"Money! The more I see of it, the less I like it; I'd rather be with my books or back on the job as teacher again," he exclaims. He hasn't even bought an automobile.

Perhaps wealth came a bit too fast—about a year, from a shoe-string to affluence, is sudden enough to be disconcerting.

Nelson's a graduate of Nevada university. He's only 29. His father and mother are living and he has brothers and sisters. He's unmarried. When a reporter asked him, "Do you intend to take a wife?" "Maybe," he answered.

mann pointed out that there is grave danger of swamping progressive business through the burden of state and national taxation.

"Unreasonable state taxes," the speaker declared, "are far more dangerous and harmful in their effect upon individuals and industry than national taxes, for an exceedingly heavy state tax simply puts every individual and industry within its borders at a distinct disadvantage when they meet in open competition with goods which need not add to their cost of manufacture the burden of such a tax."

O. R. Ellis and Western Quick, claiming South Bend as their home, were each fined $25 and costs in Justice Rowley's court today for catching bluegills out of season. The men were arrested by Game Warden Alva Leonard while fishing at Smith Lake Sunday.

BLACKSTONE

At Studebaker's factory; at Oliver's factory; in the corridors at the High School in the J. M. S. building; in the lobby of the Oliver hotel and in almost every home in the city the main topics of conversation these days is "Reported Missing," the great picture that is now playing at the Blackstone.

"Reported Missing" stands out as the stellar screen achievement of the year. It's just one big roar, packed carefully round with smiles and chuckles. There is not a dull moment during the picture, nor a single instant when politics is lacking. It will be at the Blackstone today and Thursday. On Friday "The Girl From Porcupine" with Faire Binney featured, will replace "Reported Missing."

LASALLE

There are times when love turns to hate. And when such is the case, well, "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned."

It is about such a plot as this that Metro has built a splendid picture for Alice Lake under the title of "Hate." It's the story of the New York underworld and Conrad Nagel, who will be remembered as the outstanding figure in "Midsummer Madness," gives Miss Lake excellent support. How innocent people are often placed in jeopardy by crooked police officials and politicians, and the trail of graft they leave behind, is clearly portrayed in this stirring crook drama.

Nea Gerber in "Dangerous Paths" is at the LaSalle today.

CASTLE

With a great racing story climaxed by one of the most thrilling race scenes ever put on the screen as the plot, "Queen O' The Turf" ends its South Bend showings today at the Castle. Thursday comes Neva Gerber in "Dangerous Paths."

AUDITORIUM

Announced as the most remarkable production with which the name of D. W. Griffith has yet been associated in his "Way Down East," which opens a three day engagement today at the Auditorium theater. The screen version is based on the simple tale of plain people revolting around the love of David Bartlett and Anna Moore in a New England rural community as originally played by Lottie Blair Parker upon the stage for a decade. Griffith has em-

CO-OPERATIVE MILK MARKETING NEW PLAN CHICAGO, June 6.—(By I. N. S.)—The co-operative milk marketing movement got under way here today.

Scores of middle west farmers assembled at a meeting called by the Milk Producers Co-operative Marketing company to discuss proposals whereby they will obtain more money from their cows under the co-operative plan, the producers are claiming that they are justly entitled to 30 per cent of the price paid by the consumer.

Heretofore the producers have received an average of 50 per cent of the price paid by the consumer. The marketing company is attempting to get the signatures of 6,000 dairy producers in Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin, which must be obtained before their contract becomes effective.

The 50 per cent for the farmer plan will mean that the consumer will have to pay higher prices for milk, according to Aaron Sapiro, of New York, marketing expert and one of the delegates.

Diligence is the mother of good fortune.

Mr. Lawrence's study of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," represents the grim horsemen riding madly over the top of a cathedral, and each one of the figures, including War, Conquest, Famine and Death, was modeled with gruesome fidelity to the traditional conception of the mythical riders.

A replica of this remarkable statue has been done in a most artistic manner by lithograph art and a facsimile of same is exhibited upon the canopy of the Orpheum theater.

Inspired by the Rex Ingram production of the "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," Lea Lawrie, one of the most prominent of American sculptors recently designed a group statue in bronze of the famous riders of the Apocalypse, as a result of witnessing Metro's production of that internationally famous novel. This remarkable picture is now being shown at the Orpheum as a popular priced presentation.

Both director and sculptor have been friends for many years, their acquaintance dating from the time
