The New Elevator.

The new Linkenhelt elevator is now enclosed and its mammoth proportions make quite a change in the landscape about the Lake Erie depot. The new building is of modern design and construction and will have nearly as great capacity as the other two put together. It has been many years since D. A. and D. E. Snyder had an elevator and bought grain on the site now occupied by the new structure and there have been many changes since then, not the least of which is the acquisition by the Vanderbilts of the old I. RAILROAD IS ARROGANT

Pennsylvania People at Council Meeting Monday Night Make Arbitrary Demands Concerning Crossings—Other Business.

The city council gathered about the long table Monday night with the at one end, the clerk at the other and mayor every seat occupied by its proper incumbent. The monotonous grind of regular municipal business was gone through with conscientious deliberation.

The Plymouth Hook and Ladder company asked permission to remove the large and heavy extension ladder from their truck, for the reason that it is seldom needed and is a constant burden and impediment. The committee on fire department will investigate.

A large number of citizens filed a petition for a 4-inch water main on West Pierce street to the Brownlee bridge and this was referred to the waterworks committee. Another petition asked that a quantity of dirt to be removed in excavating South Michigan street be used in the improvement of Horace and Schuyler streets and the street commissioner was empowered to use his discretion in the matter.

The several officials interested were authorized to purchase certain supplies necessary for the new water mains and crosswalks, and a sewer was ordered to be constructed between Walnut street and the Vandalia railway south of the Washington school.

A batch of bills amounting to $1,695.08 were allowed and ordered paid, and the finance committee reported that this would reduce the funds in the treasury to $552.82, a dangerously small sum, indicating the near approach of a period of borrowing.

The question of certain sidewalks on Michigan and Laporte streets in the business section, which walks do not extend to the curb, was discussed and the city attorney was directed to investigate the legal phases of the case and prepare a resolution or ordinance compelling such walks to be widened and to present the same at an adjourned meeting of the council to be held Thursday evening.

The tax levy for the current year was fixed as follows:

For general purposes,	$1.00
For waterworks bonds,30
For schoolhouse bonds,02 1/2
Total	1.32 1/2
On each male dog,	$2.00
On each female dog,	5.00
On each poll,	1.00

The total of the levy last year was $1,201, making an increase of 12 cents.

W. W. Hatch & Sons informed the council that their contract for paving North Michigan street is now fully performed and asked that the work be accepted. They also presented a bill for paving the street intersections, amounting to about $6,000, and asked that it be paid. The council decided that the bill ought not to be considered until the city commissioners make their assessment list for the entire improvement and that the job should not be accepted until the contractors remove the sand from the surface of the paving and a proper inspection is had.

The star performance of the evening was that of Superintendent McKim, of the Pennsylvania railway, who appeared for the purpose of showing the council some things about the needed street crossings over that company's line in this city.

He said, did Mr. McKim, or practically said, that the citizens of Plymouth don't know anything about what they need, and if they did know it should cut no ice for the reason that some eastern states have some laws, the application of which to this particular case was not made quite clear.

Mr. McKim had some estimates, made by the company's engineer without any opportunity for examination by anybody on the part of the city, and these estimates he laid before the council apparently with the idea that the magnitude of the figures would stagger the members and end the business then and there.

A subway at Center street, said Mr. McKim, would cost $8,500; one at Walnut street, under five tracks, would cost $17,000, and one at Third street, under two tracks, would cost $7,500, or under four tracks, $12,000. He did not suggest what it might cost to construct grade crossings at any of these points and protect them by watchmen, as is done in every other sizable city his railway passes through, and in this omission Mr. McKim was wily.

"Now," says Mr. McKim, "we will construct subways at Center and Third streets, at a cost of $16,000, of which we will pay $11,000 and the city $5,000, and the crossing at Fifth street is to be abandoned and closed."

Somebody suggested Miner street, but that was met contemptuously with the inference that there is no necessity for a crossing there and nobody wants it.

Just why the city should not have

EPWORTH HERALD ON ANARCHY

Methodist Organ Denounces "Yellow Journalism" and Its Cartoons.

The Epworth Herald, the Rev. Dr. J. F. Berry, editor, which is a weekly Methodist paper with a circulation of nearly 150,000 and goes all over the world, printed the following editorial in its issue of Sept. 21, under the caption, "Making Anarchists."

"It is now clear that Czolgosz is not a lunatic, but an anarchist. It is said that he learned his anarchistic sentiments from Emma Goldman. That woman has done much harm. But it is more probable that this man, whom every American loathes, got some of his education from certain daily papers which are widely circulated in centers of our population. The cartoons in these papers are only a trifle more dangerous than their editorial utterances. They array class against class, and promote a bitterness which logically ends in open and destructive violence. Every wild-eyed socialist, every blatant anarchist reads these inflammatory sheets with delight. He is strengthened in his war against all authority. He concludes that his industrial and political vagaries are indorsed in places of influence. It is no wonder we have anarchy in New York and Chicago. Indeed, it is a wonder we do not have more of it.

"We do not risk much in asserting that the murderous Czolgosz had filled his head with this sort of incendiaryism. His act was that of a man with a diseased brain, and the utterly illogical idea that social inequalities can be changed by murder of rulers. The publication of these damnable cartoons has no excuse in disease or ignorance. They are incendiary attacks against law and order by persons intelligent enough to know the wrong, but reckless of the results of such inflammatory and diabolical incentives to do evil.

"In view of the murderous assault upon the President we wonder what the publishers of the Chicago American, the New York Journal, and the Detroit Evening News think of the teachings of their papers during the past few months. Such papers should be compelled to cease to incite hatred against men who have attained prominence in commercial and political life, or be suppressed. The liberty of the press is one thing. Unbridled license to promote the spirit of anarchy is another."

Ball-Wise.

The marriage of Alpha J. Ball, of the firm of Ball & Co., to Miss Agnes C. Wise, of Chicago, took place Wednesday morning at St. Matthews Catholic church, Chicago, Rev. J. F. Flood officiating. The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of white silk, and was attended by Miss Edith Hueston of Chicago, Dr. Edward J. Ball of Valparaiso, acting as best man.

Breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, 21 Fairfield Avenue, after which the young couple left for Cleveland, where they will visit for a few days, and from there they will go to Buffalo.

Mr. Ball is the youngest son of Philip J. Ball and Catherine Ball, was born in Plymouth and is one of the most popular young business men in the city. A long and happy married life, it is hoped, awaits the young couple.
