This County's Oldest Preacher.
Rev. Andrew Peterson of Donaldson was calling on friends in Plymouth Wednesday and this reminds us that he has been preaching longer at one place than any other man in Marshall county. He has been pastor of the Donaldson Swedish church 26 years and it is not necessary to say that he is a good man and an able preacher. His work speaks for him.

The Fourth at Bremen
Bremen never does things by halves and their old fashioned patriotic celebration of the 4th of July was a grand success. The crowds, the floats and the banner and amusements of every kind made Monday a gala day for the live town in the northeast part of the county.

Mrs. Becker and Daughter Here.
Mrs. Abe Becker and daughter Jeanette of Chicago are visiting friends at their former home here. They are guests of Mrs. E. C. Martindale. Mrs. Becker is an old resident of Plymouth and she and Jeanette will be warmly received by their many friends here.

Grounds for Suspicion.
The bill to which Senator Gore so strenuously objected in congress gave the secretary of the interior and the president authority to ratify contract made by individual Indians. As these contracts involved $3,000,000 profit and as Ballinger is secretary of the interior, there would seem to have been grounds for the senator's suspicions—especially after it had been intimated that it would be worth $50,000 to himself not to oppose the bill.

HOW TO CELEBRATE FOURTH OF JULY

Hon. Charles Kellison Wants a Sane, Patriotic, Intelligent Observance of Nation's Anniversary to Perpetuate Rights of All the People.

As I sit here in my office on this fourth day of July 1910—the one hundred and thirty-fourth anniversary of our political birth and as I look out into the deserted streets where the silence is only broken by the explosion of an occasional fire cracker, or the hoarse cry of him who calls "back for the ball game," my memory involuntarily goes back to former years, and I find myself comparing the present with the past and the question unbidden presents itself, has the spirit of real patriotism departed from the American people?

We hear no more, at sunrise the national salute of thirteen guns and the old anvil is silent as the sphinx. We hear no more, the thrilling soul-stirring music of the sheepskin band, the parade of mounted men, the voice of him who reads in solemn tones the Declaration of Independence and the fervid oratory of the speaker of the day who recounts the glories of the past and fires the hearts of young and old with lofty sentiments of liberty and human rights.

We see no more the respectful and intelligent bearing given to all the public exercises, the rapt attention of the old and middle aged to the words of the speaker, who pours forth all the energies of heart and soul on the inspiring theme of love of country and the rights of man.

We see no more those manifestations of gratitude for the heroic services of the brave men who strove in the days that tried men's souls against the mightiest nation in the world, for the liberties and institutions we enjoy, but on the contrary we see slowly creeping into our national life what seems to be a spirit of indifference and a love of mere amusement supplanting these graver and more serious things.

Strange, isn't it? Are political liberty and free institutions so old and common-places that their blessings are to be despised on the very soil where they first saw the light of day and in less than a century and a half from the hour of their birth?

We have a fairly authentic history of the social, political and industrial condition of the masses of mankind, extending backward over a period of four thousand years. During all of that time until quite recently, there existed not in all the wide world a single government or state of society in which the rights of the masses, the common people, were in any manner safeguarded and protected by law.

Prior to the age of authentic history, there is every reason to believe that the condition of the masses was still more wretched and deplorable.

From the days when the children of Israel were compelled to make brick without straw, under the taskmasters of the Pharaohs, down to the days of serfdom and feudalism in western Europe, it is the same old story of exploiting the masses for the benefit of the privileged and ruling classes.

The spirit of equality was buried in the breasts of its votaries and liberty skulled in the shadows and in darkness.

The world was without the semblance of free popular government and liberty was but an empty name.

Scarcely more than four hundred years ago, America a virgin continent, lay basking in God's sunlight inhabited by savage aborigines and separated by an almost impassable waste of water from the Old World, where the wretched toiling king-ridden and priest-ridden millions were practically enslaved in both mind and body and where kings, emperors and a dissolute nobility sucked the life blood from the veins of the toiling masses.

A few men only, the more thoughtful and intelligent of their number began to awake from the darkness of the middle ages. For the first time in history, men began to question the doctrine of the divine right of kings, and the right of one class of men to lord it over their fellow men and to rule them without their consent.

Those who had received this new revelation from heaven, were largely in the minority, and any attempt on their part to have put their new born principles in practice in their native lands would have resulted in certain persecution, confiscation of property and death.

Accordingly these lovers of political and religious liberty, these pioneers of enlightenment and progress, these heralds of the dawn of Freedom's Day, cast their longing eyes on the far distant shores of the New World and thus began that second and very of the past.

Are kings and emperors to be reincarnated in free America under the specious guise of judicial power and constitutional construction?

Are wigs and gowns to become the emblems of despotic power in the future, as were the scepters and crowns of kings in the past?

No. A thousand no's, for when the masses of the people realize and understand the existence and evils of industrial slavery and judicial usurpation, as they realized and understood the existence and evil of chattel slavery in its day, they will rise in their might and crush these monsters just as they slew the dragon of chattel slavery of old.

Let no man, or set of men, flatter themselves that the American people will forever stand meek and dumb before their shears, and open not their mouths.

Even now, as I write, the forces are gathering that will eventually put to flight all the exploiters of the people.

There is no day in the American calendar so sacred and so holy as this, the natal day of the Republic.

When that day shall have been transformed into a day of thoughtless frivolity, of brutal sport and publicly sanctioned revelry it will be a day for the oppressors of mankind to rejoice for it will be a desecration of the grave of every revolutionary soldier and patriot.

No nation can long endure and preserve its patriotic traditions while neglecting to retell the story of its patriotic founders to the rising generation.

Whether that story is well or badly told, is not of great importance, no style or manner can rob it of its charm and eloquence.

May the thinking men and women of this community and the land, be forcibly reminded of these truths and of the fearful responsibility that rests upon them of educating their children and the youth of the land in the principles upon which this government was founded.

May they resolve in their hearts that the next anniversary of the Nation's birth shall be fittingly and becomingly celebrated in every community, regardless of what some may think or see fit to do on that day.

May they make the pledge now that they will do what is in their power to keep the fires burning on the altars of the American liberty and hold the day sacred to the cause of human freedom.

For these things, the 4th day of July stands, and these are the things that ought to be taught every boy and girl in the nation in this holiday.

To Play Here Sunday.
The Laporte ball team has been engaged to play here next Sunday. This club is exceptionally strong and 2 weeks ago our boys defeated them on their grounds. It remains to be seen what they can do here. The Laporte team has hired Bergman, the great pitcher of Rogers Park, Chicago to help them win the game next Sunday, but the Plymouth team, if everything goes right is strong enough to defeat any non-professional team without hiring extra help. The game next Sunday will be a battle royal.

His condition is very serious.

A large crowd of the neighbors and family for miles around came to Twin Lakes to help celebrate the fourth. While this was the first yet it was a gala time and every one expressed as having had a fine time. It is nice to have something of the kind in the neighborhood occasionally to renew friendships. Perhaps next year we will celebrate at Twin Lakes again. At least we expect to
