AN ELUSIVE BONE.

Luz Is Said to Be Indestructible, but It Is Hard to Locate.

Much scholarship and anatomical knowledge have been employed from time to time in efforts to identify the bone luz, said by ancient Hebrew writers to be the nucleus from which the body is reconstructed at the resurrection. There are many marvelous stories of the indestructibility of luz, and the bone has been located by rival claimants to the honor of discovering it in various parts of the human skeleton.

The most careful searching of the last published and amplest treatise on osteology will not result in the discovery of the bone called luz. It will be necessary to go to the Frankfort edition of the "Theatrum Anatomicum" of Caspar Bauhinus (1621) for a description: "It is stated by Hebrew writers to be a bone which cannot be destroyed by fire, water or any other element, nor be broken or bruised by any force. Its site is in the spine from the eighth vertebra to the femur.

"We read that the Emperor Hadrian once asked Rabbi Joshua, the son of Chanah, how God would resurrect man in the world to come. He made answer, 'From the bone luz in the spinal column.' When Hadrian asked him how he came by this knowledge and how he could prove it the Rabbi Joshua produced the bone so that the emperor could see it. When placed in water it could not be softened; it was not destroyed by fire, nor could it be ground by any weight; when placed on an anvil and struck with a hammer the anvil was broken in sunder, but the bone remained intact." Hieronymus Magius represents that, according to the Talmudists, the real bone is near the base of the skull, whether it be in the base itself or in the spine. Vesalius writes that this ossicle is described by the Arabs as resembling a chick pea in size and shape, and Cornelius Agrippa describes it as "magnitudine clerici mundati" (the size of a shelled pea). Different anatomists have held it variously to be the sacrum, the coccyx, the twelfth dorsal vertebra, one of the Wormian bones in the skull and one of the sesamoids of the great toe.—London Lancet.

LIFE OF THE WORLD.

Traditions That It Will Last Only Six Thousand Years.

There is a general and widespread notion, which the curious investigator will find scattered throughout both medieval and modern literature, that the world will last 6,000 years from the date of its creation as inscribed in one of Martin Luther's books reads as follows: "Elijah, the prophet, said that the world had existed 2,000 years before the law was given (from Adam to Moses), would exist 2,000 years under the Mosaic law (from Moses to Christ) and 2,000 years under the Christian dispensation, and then it would be burned."

In the Etrurian account of the creation (by Suidas) there is a similar tradition, "The Creator spent 6,000 years in creation, and 6,000 more are allotted to the earth."

In the black letter edition of Foxe's "Acts and Monuments" (1632) there is a whole sermon given with the 6,000 year limit of the earth's duration as a text.

Some writers contend that the "six days" referred to in Holy Writ really mean 6,000 years and that the "seventh day" is a type of the coming millennium, or "Sabbath of a thousand years." The palmist says, "For a thousand years are in thy right as yesterday" (Psalm xc. 4. See also II Peter iii. 8).

Strange Middle Names.

Taking the writers at hazard, we find Doyle with Conan and Chesterton with Keith as a second name. Finero has the unusual Wing, and the D. of W. D. Howland stands for Dean. Behind W. W. Jacobs lurks the second name Wynmark, which is strange, and J. K. Jerome never mentions the strange "Klappa" that is indicated by his second initial. Rider Haggard is frank with his curious name, and possibly Mr. Pett Ridge is the frankest in using both his names, which are his own and also belong to a hilltop at the southwest corner of England.—London Chronicle.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Ada Rohan, the actress, is by her own confession a devotee of Balzac and Thackeray.

Miss Johanna Redmond, youngest daughter of the Irish leader, is developing into a playwright, showing in her work many of the brilliant characteristics of her distinguished father.

Mme. Nina Dimitrieff, the distinguished Russian soprano, is a woman of rare presence of mind. She once quelled an angry mob that had assembled in an Italian opera house to wreck the performance.

Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, niece of J. Pierpont Morgan, is the first American woman who has ever had the distinction of christening an English battleship. On March 30 she performed this service when the Dreadnought Monarch, the largest fighting craft ever built in the Tyne, was launched, widow Princess David Kawanakoa, widow of the late Prince David and mother of the last of the royal Hawaiian line, has been singularly honored by a command—the only one issued to any American citizen—to attend the coronation ceremonies next June. Her husband was the brother of Queen Liliuokalani.

The Royal Box.

King George V. of England is one of the greatest stamp collectors in the world.

Queen Mary's coronation fan, which will be presented by the Worshipful Company of Fanmakers, will be composed of the finest houston lace, mounted on yellow tortoise shell brought from India. The long mounts will be inlaid with gold.

The threat that he would never visit Denmark as long as King Christian lived made years ago by the czar of Russia is recalled by the news that he has made plans for an extensive European journey which will include the country which King Christian's death made free to him.

Sporting Notes.

Milwaukee high schools will form a baseball league.

Swimming will be taught in the Philadelphia public schools.

Jackie Clark may quit the bicycle game for aviation sport after this season.

H. J. Handy, the Chicago long distance swimmer, has returned to the game after nearly a year's lay-off.

Bob Fowler, the Cambridge (Mass.) athlete, who has probably run the greatest distance in practice and competition of any of the long distance men of this country, is ready to continue again this year.

Town Topics.

They are now calling Macon the Atlanta of central Georgia, and that's some compliment too.—Brunswick News.

If New York allows Madison Square Garden to be torn down New York ought to be ashamed of herself.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

Edinburgh's population has increased only 2,780 in the last decade. The Scottish Athens seems to be inclined to live on the memories of its past greatness as a capital, first of politics and then of letters.—New York Tribune.

Train and Track.

Death of 610 persons by street car accidents in fourteen cities of the United States is reported for the year 1910, and the list is not complete.

Expenditures for maintenance of way and structures in 1910 for the railroads of the entire United States showed an increase of 11.3 per cent over 1909.

A new book of instructions published in nine languages has just been issued by the Pennsylvania railroad for the government of employees working on or about the tracks.

Recent Inventions.

Recently invented suspenders are broadened at the front to resemble a vest, making two garments in one.

To keep dishes from sliding down in a dishpan while they are being washed a California woman has patented a pan with a circular projection upward from the bottom.

A machine to turn out concrete roofing tiles in the same way that terra cotta tiles are made, except that baking is unnecessary, has been invented by an Indiana man.

Judicial Rulings.

A California judge has ruled that poker is not an American game. All right, then; it's an American industry.—Detroit Free Press.

A Missouri judge says that it is lawful for a man to spank his wife. There are a whole lot of things which are lawful, but not safe.—Rochester Times.

English Etchings.

The British museum contains 2,700 complete Bibles in all languages. During last year 940 cremations took place in England as against 855 for the previous year.

Rabbit skins are largely used as a substitute for ermine in connection with British coronations.

The biggest brewer in England says the consumption of beer has decreased in five years by 2,000,000 barrels—from thirty-two to twenty-six gallons a head of population.

Fandom Fancies.

So far not a single pop bottle has been thrown at an umpire. Who says the Americans aren't a patient people?—Syracuse Herald.

Did you ever notice that it is the fellow in the bleacher seat who can call the manager all about how to run his team best?—Omaha Bee.

Another trouble is that the average prominent citizen becomes so much less excited about election frauds than about those perpetrated by the umpire.—Columbus Dispatch.

FRIED POTATOES.

Sold on the Streets From Pushcarts in Parts of France.

The street vending of pommes frites, or French fried potatoes, is peculiar to the northern part of France. Pommes frites take the place of peanuts and popcorn and are sold in much the same fashion. Not only is this trade carried on in some instances as a regularly established business, but workers wishing to increase their earnings come out on the streets in the evening and sell these fried potatoes from pushcarts. Their profits often exceed their day's wages.

The pushcarts are of the ordinary type, but covered. A coke brazier is inserted through the flooring, over which is placed the large iron caldron holding the fat obtained from beef suet. Raw potatoes, after being pared, are pressed through a special cutting machine, coming out in long, narrow, four sided pieces. These are immediately put into the boiling fat and in several minutes are thoroughly cooked. They are then salted and sold in small paper cornucopias holding 1 or 2 cents' worth.

Pommes frites have the advantage that they supply a satisfying and nutritive meal for a few cents. This is especially appreciated by the mill employees during the noon hour, as they are thus enabled to have something hot with their otherwise cold lunches. Rather than go to the trouble of preparing the dish, to say nothing of filling the house with the odor of boiling fat, many families prefer to purchase the freshly cooked tubers from the nearest vendor. These fried potatoes are not sold merely at mealtimes, but during the day, and are eaten like popcorn.—Consular Reports.

BULL ANTS OF AFRICA.

Elephants, Lions and Even Man Himself Flee From Them in Terror.

In the vast equatorial forests of Africa the most dreaded of animals is the great bull ant. Unlike other ants, it carries nothing away; everything is eaten on the spot. Every kind of beast and reptile—elephants, lions, gorillas, snakes and man himself—flees before this terrible insect.

These ants march through the forests in a long thin column, two inches wide and miles in length. If they come to an open space where there are no trees to shelter them from the sun they burrow underground and form tunnels, through which they march on. It often takes as long as twelve hours for one of these armies to pass.

Any creature overtaken is at once attacked with irresistible fury and instantly devoured. The strongest and the weakest, the most fierce and the most timid of creatures are alike their prey.

Natives overtaken by them seek refuge in the nearest river or pond. Yet even when the ants themselves are drowned their strong pinners refuse to relax their hold upon any flesh they may have attached themselves to, and though their bodies are torn forcibly away, their heads remain.

Certain barbarous tribes, when a man is condemned for witchcraft, fasten him to a tree and leave him to the ants. When they have passed a skeleton alone is left to tell the tale.—Pearson's.

Spoiled Her Romance.

I was blessed with a romantic brain, and a quiet, even state of things could not satisfy me for long. So the thought suddenly entered my head to have my husband maddly in love with me. One evening as we were promading the bank of the Vistula, under those venerable trees which shaded the less sophisticated loves of the beautiful Marie d'Arquin, I brought round the conversation to sentiment. I maintained that no happiness was possible on this earth except in a reciprocal attachment, both lively and enduring.

My husband, after listening to me indulgently for a little while, looked at his watch, called my attention to the lateness of the hour, observed that our cousins were becoming very tiresome and that it was time to go in.—Fremont Countess Potocka's Memoirs.

The French Immortals.

The French Academy of Immortals has added four new names to its membership. They are those of M. de Regnier, who writes poems; General Langlois, who wields a pen as well as a sword; Henri Roujon, ex-director of the Beaux Arts, and Denis Coehin, a man of letters. The academy is now up to its full strength of forty and for the first time in several years.
