REBUILT BY THE DOCTORS.

Very Little of the Original Left of a Minnesota Man.

An odd character is now in Winona, Minn., in the person of George Burns, who has good reason for his eccentricity. He has papers which show that he was head engineer on the steamer City of Savannah, which was wrecked off the coast of Massachusetts on Jan. 18, 1884, while en route from Boston to Florida. He was reversing the levers when the steamer struck the rocks, and he was thrown into the machinery, receiving injuries which crippled him for life. There were 118 lives lost in the accident, and Burns is one of the thirty-seven survivors. For a long while he lay on a cot in the death row of Bellevue hospital, New York. Dr. Hayes Agnew attended his case and removed five ribs from his left side and trephined his skull, using six ounces of silver sheeting for this purpose. He was compelled to wear a plaster paris jacket for four years after the accident. A portion of the lower end of his spine and both elbow joints are gone. One knee cap is on the back of the leg, and his heart is on the extreme right side of his body. He is now 64 years of age and walks very well and has a cheerful disposition. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic and served during the war on the gunboat Essex, which was stationed at Cairo during the early days of the rebellion.

A BIFF AT BIKES.

A Doctor Says Some Pretty Mean Things About the Whirling Wheel.

Dr. Heine Marks, of St. Louis, has taken his life in his hands. He is fighting the bicycle fever. He makes bicycle riders a vast suicide club—suicide to morals and physique—and moves the bridge from under posterity. He says: "To my mind, owing to the excess of exercise indulged in by bicycle riders of to-day, when a man or woman buys a wheel they take the first spadeful of earth from their grave. First, you have a kind of paralysis of the hands from constant gripping of the handle bar, then contraction of the muscles of the legs, contraction of the posterior muscles of the lower limbs and of the inside muscles of the thighs, round shoulders from stooping over, and contraction of the chest. This causes contraction of the lungs, and leads to consumption. Continued violent exercise also leads to enlargement of the heart. Furthermore, with men, rupture, varicocele, hydrocele, follow, and, worst of all, it destroys virility. Take into consideration the abandon between wheel enthusiasts of the two sexes, the long lonely rides, the costuming of the women, calculated to show off their physical charms. With women, constant riding causes trouble to which women are peculiarly heir, and also conduces to immorality."

Had Been Learning.

"Dear little mother!" said the young man who had been away from home for six months, as he opened a letter addressed to him in the well-known handwriting of his maternal ancestor, "I wish she would go out into the world more and enjoy herself. She is such a domestic little body. I'll get all the news now about the last house-cleaning and how the cat and canary are getting along, and all about having the kitchen painted and buying new rugs for the back parlor, and so forth."

Then he opened the letter and read: "Dear Harry: I have just returned from seeing a ball game between our college nine and the team from Migs-sville. Our boys were all crippled up. Burnham had a glass arm, Hawkins was almost laid up with a Charley-horse, and Spicer had a game foot. One of the stiffs from Hanksburg had spiked him three days before. But it would have done you good to see how they fell on that Migs-sville pitcher. They patted him all over the field for six runs in the first inning, all of them earned, and 'Trick' Jackson made one of the longest hits ever seen on the grounds. It was a corking three-bagger, and if Pudleston had been doing his duty in the coach's position it would have been a home run. In the fourth inning they knocked the Migs-sville twirler out of the box." etc.—Chicago Tribune.

Penobscot Salmon Scarce.

Not for many years has there been such a scarcity of Penobscot salmon at this time of the year. For the last week or ten days hardly a dozen a day have been taken from the down river weirs, says a Portland, Me., special. The salmon in the markets are nearly all from the provinces, and it takes an expert to tell them from the native fish, either in appearance or taste. Seals are unusually numerous in the lower Penobscot this year and are a great pest to the fishermen. They get into the weirs and kill and eat any salmon they find, neatly scooping out all the flesh, leaving the skin only for the weir owner.

Edible Toad-stools.

A great many people fall into the error of considering every mushroom of a certain form and shape as being fit for food. In order to show what a grave mistake this is we will say that there are upward of 500 species of fungi, toadstools or mushrooms, and that only 134 of that great number can be safely regarded as edible. In the whole of the United States there are only eight species of fungi that are fit for food and thirty that are deadly poisonous.

Killed While Bicycle Riding.

Miss Carrie E. Stoddard of Chicopee, Mass., was struck by a horse while riding her bicycle and fatally injured, dying a half hour later. The shafts of the sulky struck her in the side, forcing a corset steel into her heart.

A Pleasant Call.

Friday afternoon we were honored by a few moments call from John W. Baker, editor of the Columbia City Commercial. And while on the subject we might remark that he is a candidate for lieutenant governor, if the republican convention of this state sees fit to bestow this honor upon him. Mr. Baker is a very pleasant social gentleman, and since he is a newspaper man, we feel like wishing him a fulfillment of his desires along political lines.

District Meeting K. of P.

The district meeting Knights of Pythias, held at Kendallville last week, was a similar gathering to those held in other portions of the state during the last three months. These district meetings begin to attract considerable attention, and the instruction received in the secret work is beneficial.
