

THE STAR FOR THE SUMMER. THE DAILY STAR will be mailed to persons who may be absent from the city during the summer at the rate of fifty cents per month.

THREE years in the Penitentiary and a fine of $1,000 is the way Jersey City rewards an embezzler.

A COMPANY with a capital of $80,000 is now being formed by the Mississippi Grangers for the purpose of building a large cotton factory at Natchez.

CIVIL RIGHTS in Washington have assumed a new shape. This time it is the colored brother that is the aggressor, and the white man sues for his rights.

MR. McCULLOUGH and Mr. Robt. Cliff, of Oxford, is each the owner of a church. They bought them yesterday at auction, and are now looking around for pastors.

EVERYBODY is congratulating everybody else on the termination of the Beecher trial. There are diverse opinions on all other points connected with the case, but the feeling that we have had enough of it is universal.

NEW YORK and Connecticut have a disputed line question, which is likely to prove as hard to settle as the similar one between Maryland and Virginia. Later day Masons and Dixons are not very successful in State line controversies.

THE Springfield Republican reminds the organs that they may overdo the thing in abusing Vice President Wilson, and it significantly remarks: "Presidents have been made before now by just this sort of injudicious indulgence in billingsgate."

MR. IRVING and Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crow) will appear in the Lyceum Theater, London, next winter, in the two leading parts of Mr. Tennyson's new drama, "Queen Mary," which is then to be brought out. The occasion will be a marked one in English theatrical and literary circles.

MOULTON is rushing around Brooklyn frantic to be arrested. We do not feel any special interest in Moulton's welfare, but hope he will not be gratified. His arrest and a trial for perjury would bring a reputation of all that the public have just suffered, aggravated by Gen. Butler as one of the attorneys. Tweed is languishing for a little public attention—do let this Moulton business rest and give the old man a chance.

THE English Court of Chancery, in a corporation case the other day, decided that a man who allowed stock to be purchased for him by interested parties in order to qualify him to act as director of a company was guilty of bribery. A Mr. Prince owned an oil well which he desired to turn over to a company, and in order to make the stock more salable he presented Sir John D. Hay with ten shares and had him made a director. The Court held that Mr. Hay as well as Mr. Prince was guilty of fraud, as the former had pretended to the public that he had invested his money in the company when in truth he had not put in a single dollar.

NEW YORK is now congratulating herself that she is to have some of the advantages of the Centennial in the way of taking boarders. She proposes to run trains to and from Philadelphia at suitable hours, and bid for boarders from among the Exposition visitors. It is claimed that arrangements may be made by which they can comfortably reside in New York and spend eight or ten hours in Philadelphia each day. The time between the two cities is now reduced to less than two hours, and the Centennial visitor, who, of course, is supposed to have plenty of funds, may breakfast at the Fifth-avenue Hotel, take the train for Philadelphia, spend a few hours there and return to New York by the fashionable dining room, and afterward, spend the evening in the great city. If, however, he chooses to economize both time and money he may take his hash at a cheap boarding-house, buy a second-class ticket and board the early train, and, provided with his dinner in a tin bucket, while away twelve or fourteen hours at the Exposition and return by bed time. This is a recent idea of the enterprising Gothamites but is at least a convenient way of disposing of the question which has been agitating the country of how the Centennial visitors could be accommodated, and also a pleasant picture for New York hotel and boarding-house men.

THE Government is now making about the first determined effort to secure a better condition of things on our Mexican frontier. The people along the Rio Grande have been for years at the mercy of the desperado Cortina and his followers, who made regular incursions into Texas, taking back whatever he could lay his hands on. He could not be captured by the Americans, and he was a man of too much influence to be interfered with by the Mexicans. They neither desired nor were they able to control his actions. He was a man of influence, controlling a good many votes, and the Mexican Government has the utmost respect for a robber that controls votes. So defiant was he that it was not an uncommon thing for him to ride into Brownsville, fully armed and surrounded by his friends, while an indictment for murder or horse stealing was pending against him, and when a warrant for his arrest was in the hands of the officers. He is now, however, in the hands of the Federal officers and a gunboat on he way to take him to Vera Cruz. Here the Government should see that he is punished. The officers having him in charge announce that he will be shortly attempt to make his followers to rescue him, and it will be a fortunate thing for the Mexican authorities if the trouble should be settled in that way. If taken to Vera Cruz alive he will prove an elephant on their hands. Our own Government is too much in earnest to permit them to release him as they have done heretofore, and he is a person of too much influence at home for the Government to deal with as his case demands.

NEW YORK is again agitated over its scant supply of water. Somehow water seems to be giving a great deal of trouble this year—almost as much as beer did last. Philadelphia, New York and San Francisco, are trying to carry out projects for a more adequate supply. Fraud has crept into the management of the water departments of each of these cities, and tax payers are trying to devise means to secure less supply and more water. Atlanta, Georgia, Jersey City, and any number of smaller places, are about in the same fix. San Francisco has two or three schemes for more water, with a big job in each. The water ring of Philadelphia has a nice scheme set up, and is at work to secure the co-operation of the other branches of the city government in order to effectually carry it out. Those who are most interested assert that "there's millions in it," and nearly all for the municipal plunderers. New York has spent immense sums on its Water-works, yet every year the supply runs so scant as to almost cause a water panic. During the dry spell three years ago the water department was compelled to shut off the supply for large factories and issue a request to families to use as little as possible, and it was understood that had a fire reached any headway at that time there could have been no way of saving the city. New York is convinced that another great undertaking must be commenced soon, and that there can not be much delay. But her experience has been so unfortunate in the past that large tax-payers, while acknowledging the pressing necessity of the case, hesitate to encourage what will be sure of proving such a rich harvest for the jobbers, and be the means to such an extent of fleeing the city. It has come to be understood that it is almost impossible to have any kind of public work done at what it should really cost, and the building of Water-works is sure to be attended with a grand swindle.

THE German Press. [From the Volkstempel.] The injustice done by the former Republican Trustees of the Water-works does not, of course, excuse that done under the reign of the Democratic party, yet it remains true that the injustice of the former has injured the people more than that of the latter party. Under the Democratic administration Water-works money was used for private purposes, which, however, were repaid. Furthermore, a deficiency was created in two collectors' districts, also fully covered. Under the Republican administration the city was swindled out of $130,000 by the purchase of the Kilgour pumping-works, of which sum not a red cent has been recovered.

As necessary as a new City Hall may be, still we do not believe that the present moment is adapted to undertake such a project. The inflationists wholly overlook the fact that, under the new laws, the National banks will no longer have any monopoly, but that every one has the right to institute a National Bank who can furnish the required securities.

A Priest Forsakes the Pulpit. Rev. Henry Lake, formerly of St. Ann's Church, in Twelfth street, and who, it will be remembered, was, during the first few years succeeding his accession to the Catholic priesthood, fierce in denouncing the public school system and warm in supporting the Papacy, has abandoned the pulpit. It appears that during his visit to Lorraine, some time since, Father Lake made the acquaintance of a wealthy French lady, returning to this country he left the pulpit and became a secular priest, being attached to the Church of St. Ann's of which Father Pres'ois is p. s. r. He was subsequently transferred to Manhattanville, and his friends were one day astounded to find that the young clergyman had severed all connection with that church of which he had been so apparent a supporter. Some months ago Father Lake married the young lady to whom he had become attached on his European tour, and left with his bride for California, where he is at present sojourning. The friends of the young clergyman admit that he has gone to California, but the church members are not especially shocked at the occurrence and make no superhuman efforts to suppress the scandal. At St. Ann's Church mention of Father Lake is proscribed, and they profess to have no knowledge whatever of his whereabouts. The lady to whom he was married has united his fortunes to a man of wealth, accomplished and of good family—N. Y. Times.

Livingstone's Grave. A memorial tablet, on which is the following inscription, now marks the spot in Westminster Abbey where the remains of Dr. Livingstone are deposited: "Brought by faithful hands over land and sea, here rests David Livingstone, missionary, traveler, philanthropist, Born March 19, 1813; died May 1, 1873, at Chitamba's Village, Uliana. For thirty years his life was spent in an unwearying effort to evangelize the native races, to explore the undiscovered secrets, to abolish the desolating slave trade of Central Africa, and where, with his last words he wrote: 'All I can add in my country is, may Heaven's rich blessing come down on every one—American, English or Turk—who will help to heal this open sore of the world.'" On each side of the tablet are also the following inscriptions: "Tantum amor veri, nihil est quod Romam malim, quam fidei causas pericula tantum intus" and "40th year sheep I have been—American, English or Turk—who will help to heal this open sore of the world."

Here is an extract from a letter written to her lover by a Montgomery, Ala., girl: "For your sake, darling, I have quit using chewing gum; would you have quit gum for me? I would not have quit gum for any other person in the world."

Right Rev. Michael Heiss, D. D., Bishop of La Crosse, Wis., laid the corner-stone of a new church, "St. Ignace," where Rev. Adolph Sangster has gathered around him some one hundred and twenty Polish families.

Rev. R. H. Pullman, general secretary of the Universalist association, reports that the Universalist mass meetings which have been held for several months in the Western States, have been attended with great success.

The Catholic Total Abstinence Union reports its growth throughout the country as purposing to erect a continent fountain in Philadelphia next year. St. Michael's Church, in that city, has already contributed $500 to that object.

Rev. Robert Hazleton, of the Irish Methodist Conference, has come to this country as the agent of the Wesleyan Theological School in Dublin, to raise $25,000 for the enlargement of that institution. He has raised $23,000 more at home.

The splendid new church of the Passaicists, at West Hoboken, that can be seen looming up of the Jersey Heights by passengers on any of the New York railways of the west side, is to be dedicated on Sunday, July 4, by the Right Rev. Bishop of Newark.

The Methodists of Canada have now ten educational institutions, employing nearly 1,000 teachers for about 1,500 pupils. Seven are academies for girls. The endowments and property of these institutions are valued at $400,000, and the expenditures for last year amounted to $300,000.

Rev. Henry Clay Trumbull, of Hartford, removes to Philadelphia, where he will edit the "Sunday School Times," the leading paper devoted to the Sabbath-school interest in the United States.

The English Baptists are prosecuting their foreign missions with especial energy and success. During the past year 3,046 converts have been baptized. In South America the Norwegian missionaries have had unusual success. One thousand and thirty have been baptized during the past year.

The Methodist missionary superintendent in Italy has just bought at auction one of the finest sites in the headquarters of the mission. The purchase money and improvements amount to $8,500 gold, $3,000 of which has been given recently in New York City by great admirers of this mission.

Very Rev. Thomas Burke, O. S. B., who has labored so much unavailingly, is progressing most favorably. He has found that the real benefit to him, and such is the effect of the native air of Galway, where he is now staying, that he is every day regaining strength.

The Boston Journal says the Rev. Olympia Brown, of Bridgeport, Conn., was served with an injunction forbidding her to preach, but, disregarding it, went to meeting the other day and freed her mind in the pulpit, comparing her hearers, in the course of her remarks, to the "wild beasts of Ephesus."

The First Presbyterian Church of Cumberland, Md., has just finished a $50,000 stone church. It had on it a debt of $12,000, and accordingly the Trustees had prepared beautiful bonds and fully expected to carry about $38,000 as a debt; but at the dedicatory services recently the church removed the debt, and now exhibits the bonds as curiosities.

himself, called in his carriage and carried Maud to the well, we will say the State Department, for it was not the State Department—where she was duly installed as a translator and clerk at $1,200 a year, where she was to be.

To this the venerable Bogan was moved solely by an unselfish Bohemianism, the press, who, taking a sudden interest in Maud, said, "Look here, Bogan, it's got to be done," and it was.

This little romance, that seemed some strange and idle fancy, was so hastily told, would serve a good purpose in the hands of some playwright or tale-writer anxious to portray the real life at our national capital.

At a recent Washington breakfast fruit was served as the first course, with articles of jewelry inclosed in the stones. The loaves were in the form of corny stalks and ears of green corn. How nice.

Court Callings. In the Probate Court the will of Frederick Vogel was admitted to probate. Margaretha Vogel, executrix. Personality, $200; real estate, $4,000.

Geo. A. Smith was appointed guardian of Horace W. Wilson. Judge Murdoch yesterday overruled the motion to dismiss the appeal in the case of Bradford & Sharp against Geo. H. Sandman. The ground of the motion was that the appeal was not made within thirty days. The case was appealed from a decision of a Justice of Peace. The Court held that according to the 202d Section of the Justices' Court appeals must be made within thirty days, but the first day shall be excluded, and the last day included; and if the last day be Sunday it shall be excluded. In this case the twentieth day was Sunday.

Mr. Merz yesterday succeeded in getting Mr. Peter Jacobs, a cooper, to go on his bond. He was accordingly released from custody.

THE BATES WILL CASE. Mrs. Har-ine was the next witness called by the defense. She testified as follows: I was the granddaughter of John Bates; he was always very kind to me, and often gave presents to me and my sisters and brothers. In June, 1867, he came to our farm in Xenia, he was then very feeble in body, and always got stronger the longer he remained in the country. My father and mother always treated him as becomes a son and daughter to treat a father. Amelia Wells was always kind to Mr. Bates. His mental condition was always very good. He never failed to recognize me. He never said anything about my father or begrudging his grandchildren their meals when they visited his house.

Mrs. Amelia H. Wells was then called and testified as follows: I am the oldest daughter of Mr. Smith. The most friendly relations always existed between my parents, brothers and sisters and Mr. Bates. Mr. Bates always recognized me. His condition of mind was excellent always. I never saw him labor under any delusion, nor heard him say anything about being in a nunnery. The defense next offered several letters from various persons and places. One came from Col. Stevens and Capt. Locke, of the Dayton Military Academy, which stated that Henry Bates had been expelled and could not be reinstated.

A letter dated April 8, 1866, from W. A. Warren stated that Harry went there and told them he had been robbed on the boat. After he went away Mrs. Warner discovered that the trunk broken open a bureau drawer and taken a document, ring, and that he had gone through nearly every drawer in the house. The writer said he had put the police on Harry's track, and hoped to arrest and bring him in. In one letter Harry begged for money, because if he did not have anything that strikes his fancy, the other he tells his grandfather that what is in the blood is bound to come out. In all his letters he promises to reform. In one from Boston, written in 1867, he asks for money, and says that he has changed his character, so that if he can return with as much money, get a good character, and be an ornament to you. Your loving to right grandson?
