"At Pike's Peak." "At Pike's Peak" which will be presented at Van Worden's Opera House next Friday has gained a big following in all the cities where it was presented last season, playing as it did to big houses every where. It contains a strong and well developed plot; the climaxes are all striking and cleverly arranged and the scenic investure is unusually elaborate. The characters composing the drama require acting of high order and the company is a more than ordinary capable one. The press everywhere speak in the highest terms of the production. "At Pike's Peak" should interest the best theatre goers. Seats on sale at Van Worden's.

Illness is the post-graduate course of worthlessness.
