No One But Yourself if You Don't Get Well When Sick.

All we can do is give advice. Of course that's easy. But our advice is really worth a little more to you than most people's, for we offer to give you the first bottle of our medicine free, if it fails to help you. We could not afford to do this unless our medicine was good. Such an offer, on the wrong kind of medicine, would put a merchant prince in the poor house. Dr. Miles' Nervine, however, as years of experience have proved, is a medicine that cures the sick. Those whom it cannot benefit—less than one in ten thousand—we prefer to refund their money.

All we ask of you is to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for your complaint. If you suffer from sleeplessness, nervous exhaustion, dizziness, headache, muscular twitchings, melancholy, loss of memory, weak stomach, poor blood, bilious troubles, epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance, etc., we will guarantee to benefit you or refund your money. You are the doctor.

"My son Bert, when in his 17th year, became subject to attacks of epilepsy, so serious that we were compelled to take him out of school. After several physicians had failed to relieve him, we gave Dr. Miles' Nervine a trial. Ten months treatment with Nervine and Liver Pills restored our boy to perfect health."—MR. JOHN S. WILSON, Deputy Co. Clerk, Dallas Co., Mo.

DROPPED DEAD!

You pick up a paper nearly every day and read that some man or woman in apparently perfect health has died suddenly at a banquet, on the street, at the theater, or "heart failure." 80 per cent of such cases follow heavy eating. The digestive organs are not in condition, the food ferments in the stomach, forming gases which distend the walls of the stomach—which presses against the heart—crowds—suffocates—"Heart failure" results. Take a spoonful of after eating. It relieves that "full feeling," stops fermentation, aids digestion and prevents biliousness and constipation.

L. G. HAMMER, Wagoner, Ind. Ter., under date of May 21, 1902, writes: "For over a year I was troubled with my heart. Doctors and medicines were unable to help me. Finally I noticed an advertisement of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin stating that it cures Heart Trouble. I bought a bottle and after taking it for a few days I was cured. I am now well and strong. I am glad to let others know of this means of letting others know of the merits of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin."

SEVENTEEN YEARS.

Since Locusts Were Here, so Due Next June.

Perhaps no one here has kept track of it, but it is said that next summer will be the time for the appearance of the seventeen-year locusts. An interesting bug story is told in a Dubuque paper, which sends forth the announcement that the locusts will be with us next June. The paper says:

According to local scientists, Dubuque and vicinity will be visited by "seventeen year locusts" during the first part of June this year, and they will tarry here for about a month. This will be the first visit of the winged pests to this vicinity since June, 1888, when they were here in goodly sized numbers, devastating hundreds of trees in and around the city. They are due to arrive next June, as they make their appearance every seventeen years.

They will commence to make their appearance as soon as the sun has fairly set, and the bulk of them will have emerged from the ground by 9 o'clock in the evening. The unanimity with which all those within a certain radius of a certain tree crawl in a bee-line to the trunk of that tree is interesting. To see these locusts in such vast numbers swarming out of their subterranean hole, crawling over the ground and converging at a certain point and then in a steady continuous stream clambering up the trunk of a tree and crawling along the branches in every direction is a sight not soon to be forgotten, and affords a rare opportunity of witnessing the natural instinct of insect life. The sight is most satisfactory witnessed where there is an isolated or solitary tree.

After crawling out to the ends of the branches they fasten themselves to the little twigs and leaves, and in about an hour after getting settled the shell of the skin peels off and the insect comes forth a full fledged locust of a light color, which becomes black as soon as the sun has shown on it for a few minutes.

In 1888 there was a large part of the country around Dubuque covered with heavy timber, but since then great changes have been made and much of the wooded land is now denuded of its trees. But the ground beneath where the trees formerly stood is now full of the locusts, which will emerge at the proper time and seek for other trees as soon as they are able to do so.

Naturally thousands of these locusts will make their way into the city and the shade trees will be covered with them, and their call of phar-r-roah will be heard all day long for about four weeks, as they disappear about that time after their appearance as suddenly as they came upon the scene. However, they will leave their trade-marks upon all the trees they visit, as, wherever an egg is laid on a twig or branch it will die and fall to the ground. This seems queer, but it is thought that they sting the twig or branch in such a manner that causes it to wither up and drop to the ground. This also appears to be in the program, as the eggs hatch out and the hub or worm passes off into the ground for its long wait of seventeen years before it can again come forth and devastate the trees.

This species of the locust is the smallest in the United States, as it only appears in a few places. A few counties in the southwestern part of Wisconsin and also along the river on the Illinois are some of the few places besides this community which have in any quantities. The region which they inhabit around here is bounded by the Cedar river on the west, the Mississippi on the east, as far north as Clayton county, and as far south as the boundary line of Muscatine county.

A Night Alarm.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the brassy cough of croup, which sounds like the children's death knell and it means death unless something is done quickly. Foley's Honey and Tar never fails to give instant relief and quickly cures the worst forms of croup. Mrs. P. L. Cordier, of Mannington, Ky., writes: "My three years old girl had a severe case of croup; the doctor said she could not live. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar, the first dose gave quick relief and saved her life." Refuse substitutes. L. P. VanWerd, druggist.

Mr. Lemuel Booth, of Doyle township, was a Sentinel caller Monday. He tells us of a fatal accident that befell Thos. Fullerton, a young man of eighteen years, in the adjoining township in Decatur county last Wednesday. He and another young man were hunting when Fullerton's gun was accidentally discharged blowing the top of his head off, causing death instantly. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Fullerton, well-to-do people of that county. This is the third death from rabbit hunting in this vicinity this winter, the other two being Huff of Murray, and Root of Woodburn. Two or three injuries have also been reported.—Osceola Sentinel.

CAN'T INSURE THE HOGS.

Iowa Insurance Department Makes Ruling Against Insuring Hogs From Sickness.

The state authorities have promulgated a very important ruling, or series of rulings, regulative of the insurance business in particular phases, says the Des Moines Register and Leader. In effect, these rulings are:

First—That individuals, associations and partnerships which essay to do an insurance business must comply with the laws regulative of the insurance business to which corporations engaged in it are subject.

Second—That live stock cannot be insured in Iowa, against sickness and death, but may be against accident.

Attorney General Mullan furnished the legal opinion on which these decisions have been promulgated from the insurance department of the office of Auditor of State Carroll.

The Farmers' Co-Operative Live Stock Association of Cedar Rapids, of which S. P. Kuhn and J. B. Leverich are the officers, sought to do business in the line of insuring Iowa live stock against sickness and death, and not be incorporated, the association, through its officers, claiming the right to do an insurance business without conforming to the conditions set out in the statute affecting corporations engaged in the insurance business.

Auditor Carroll and Mr. O. O. Roe immediately determined that this was a form of insurance not authorized by law, and they insisted that though unincorporated the association must conform to the statute relating to the insurance business. Taken to the attorney general, the position taken by the department was sustained absolutely.

The attorney general called attention to the fact that the statute has defined the specific risks against which insurance may be written in Iowa. Since some are named all others must be excluded, of course. One sub-division provides that live stock may be insured against loss or damage by "accident, theft or any unknown or contingent event which may be the subject of legal insurance." The question asked was whether insurance against sickness and death of live stock would be a "contingent event," within the meaning of the law. Death, it is self evident, is not a contingent event; it is absolutely certain, instead.

On the more important question of whether partnerships, individuals and unincorporated associates have the right to do an insurance business without reference to the laws governing insurance corporations and the business, the attorney general is equally positive. He is certain that they "must fully comply with the law regulating insurance other than life before they are entitled to issue policies of insurance upon any of the risks permitted by section 1709 of the code."

The attorney general says: Such unincorporated associations, partnerships or individuals must have the amount of capital required of incorporated companies, and are subject to examination by the auditor as are corporations organized for the purpose of carrying on an insurance business, and have no right to issue policies for any purpose until they have received the certificate of the auditor authorizing them to do business within the state. Such associations, partnerships or individuals are limited to the class of risks which incorporated companies are permitted to insure against, and must make their annual statements to the auditor as is required of such incorporated companies.

Under the provisions of section 1747 of the code, any person, association or partnership which issues policies of insurance without having fully complied with the provisions of chapter 4 of title IX of the code, is guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to a fine of one thousand dollars and to imprisonment in the county jail for one year.

Every such association, partnership or individual stands upon the same footing as an incorporated insurance company, so far as the compliance with all of the provisions of chapter 4 of title IX, relating to the manner of carrying on insurance business in the state, is concerned.

It may be suggested, as has been urged before the insurance department of the state, that it is the right of every individual within the state to enter into a contract of insurance with another, and that any statute which attempts to prohibit such contract is unconstitutional, because it abridges the liberty of contract; and that it follows, therefore, that an unincorporated association, partnership or individual has the right to enter into contracts of insurance and to insure against risks, casualties and contingent events without complying with the provisions of the statute referred to.

With this contention I cannot agree as it is clearly the right of the legislature to regulate the business of insurance and to provide the manner in which it shall be conducted within the state. The recent case of Brady vs. Matten, which is reported in 100 Northwestern Reporter, at page 358, is directly in point upon this question.

The legislature of Iowa has undertaken to regulate the business of insurance within this state, and, by the provisions of section 1751, has declared that such regulation applies equally to partnerships, individuals and unincorporated associations. This provision of the legislature does not prohibit the business of insurance; it regulates it. In substance says to all persons, partnerships, associations and corporations, if you wish to carry on the business of insurance, you must provide the capital required by statute, submit your affairs to the examination of the auditor of state, and obtain his permission to transact an insurance business under the laws of the state. That such power exists in the legislature, cannot at this time be questioned.

A Thousand Dollars Thrown Away.

Mr. W. W. Baker, of Plainview, Neb., writes: "My wife had lung trouble for over fifteen years. We tried a number of doctors and spent over a thousand dollars without any relief. She was very low and I lost all hope, when a friend suggested trying Foley's Honey and Tar, which I did; and thanks be to this great remedy, it saved her life. She is stronger and enjoys better health than she has ever known in ten years. We shall never be without Foley's Honey and Tar and would ask those afflicted to try it. L. P. VanWerd druggist."

Are You Interested in the South

Do you care to know of the marvelous development now going on in the Great Central South?

of innumerable opportunities for young men or old ones—to grow rich? Do you want to know about rich farming lands, fertile, well located, on a trunk line railroad, which produce two, three and four crops from the same field each year, and which can be purchased at very low prices on easy terms? About stock raising where the extreme of winter feeding is but (6) short weeks? Of places where truck growing and fruit raising yield enormous returns each year? Of a land where you can live out of doors every day in the year? Of opportunities for establishing profitable manufacturing industries; of rich mineral locations and splendid business openings? If you want to know the details of any or all of these write me. I will gladly advise you fully and truthfully.
