Be Kind to the Old.

Those who are so fortunate should see to it that the old folks have the warmest and sunniest corner in the house and a goodly portion of the best that can be afforded of comfort, convenience and beauty, so that their aged blood may be kept warm and cheerful; that failing limbs may have restful repose and that the dim eyes that have watched through so many toilsome years may see around them the ever present evidences of faithful and graceful care.

Also the children of the household should be taught to be even watchful and ready to wait upon the "old folks," never omitting courtesies and polite attentions.

There is nothing in the world more pathetic than the meek, timorous, shrinking ways of certain old people, who have given up their homes to their sons and daughters, and subsided into some out-of-the-way corner of it, to sit by the fireside and table henceforth as if they were pensioners, afraid of "making trouble," afraid of "being in the way," afraid of accepting what is their due and going down to their graves with a pitiful air, as if constantly apologizing for living so long.

There is no scorn too deep and sharp for sons and daughters who will accept this attitude on the part of those to whom they owe so much, who have cared for them so many years.

Sometimes people grow old with bad grace. They become embittered by misfortune or affliction or are peevish and unreasonable under the goading of ill health. Yet all the more do they appeal to great gentleness and faithfulness. We should ever bear in mind that we are hastening on toward the sunset of life, and that it is possible that we may ripen into very uncomfortable old people, to demand much more of patience and devotion than we as children, yield. And as we treat those dependent on our care, so shall we be treated in our turn. Let us therefore, make it a special point of honor to be ever tender, watchful and considerate toward the "old folks," paying reverence and respect to their silver locks and bent limbs.

Important Decision.

It is important that you should decide to take only Foley's Honey and Tar when you have a cough or cold as it will cure the most obstinate racking cough and expel the cold from your system. Foley's Honey and Tar contains no harmful drugs. Insist upon having it. Bell & Robinson.

Mrs. Robert McCaull received a letter last week from Mrs. Enos Davis stating that Mr. Davis was much better than he had been for some time, but that her health was very poor. She also stated that the 26th of April, 1908 will be the 65th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Enos Davis. They were married at Ontario, Indiana, April 26, 1843, Wm. Jones, Presbyterian minister, of Lagrange Collegiate Institute, officiating. Mary Anthony was principal of the female department of Institute. Mary Anthony Davis and Susan B. were cousins. It is seldom that people live to celebrate their 65th anniversary, especially after passing through the hardships of pioneer life as Mr. and Mrs. Davis did.—Garden Grove Express.

Foley's Orino Laxative is best for women and children. Its mild action and pleasant taste makes it preferable to violent purgatives, such as pills, tablets, etc. Cures constipation. Bell & Robinson.

"Have you seen the new millinery creation called the 'Merry Widow' hat?" asks a contemporary. "One great advantage in these hats, they eliminate the necessity of a sunshade. There is enough straw in one of these hats to feed the family cow two weeks. The larger ones are equipped with a draw string, which, when you pull the string raises up the rim of the hat so that the person can go through a common sized door."

Itch cured in 30 minutes by Woolford's Sanitary Lotion. Never fails. Sold by W. A. Alexander, Druggist.

A good man is one whose goodness is part of himself.

Itch! Itch! Itch!—Scratch! Scratch! Scratch! The more you scratch the worse the itch. Try Doan's Ointment. It cures piles, eczema, any skin itching. All druggists sell it.

Doctor Jamison found a very unusual condition in the case of the youngest child of Mr. Carlow's a girl, of less than two years of age. When the mother was attending to it Saturday afternoon she found a thread projecting from the rectum and pulled but could not get it all. She called Dr. Jamison and he thought it too late to operate besides he wanted assistance. Sunday he and Dr. Foxworthy cut into the rectum and found a pin with a thread tied around it which the child had swallowed no one knows when. The mother had been in the habit of giving the little four year old sister that to sew with in place of a needle and it is presumed that the smaller child secured one and swallowed it. How long it has been in its meandering through the alimentary canal no one knows. The child is doing very well. —Weldon American.

A lazy liver leads to chronic dyspepsia and constipation—weakens the whole system. Doan's Regulax (25 cents per box) correct the liver, tone the stomach, cure constipation.

It is reported that one board of township trustees in Clarke county last week ordered and bought one of those outlandish machines called a road grader, at the expense of $125. We can hardly believe the report. It is possible that there still lives in Clarke county men who would do such a foolish thing? It is not only the cost, but every hour such a machine is used on the roads means worse roads for a year at least. They are using the road tax to make the roads as nearly impassable as possible. It would be a God's blessing to the farmers of Clarke county if every road grader in the county could be smashed into fragments and thrown in a junk pile. The split log drag, costing but a trifle, make good roads, while the grader spoils every rod of road it goes over. —Osceola Democrat.

Modern Remedies.

My heart is sad, for my health is bad, every day I can feel it sink; so shovel some bran in that old tin can, and brew me a wholesome drink. O bring me a tray full of shredded hay, and oats from the Health Food mills—and the melted prunes are sick men's boons—away with the doctor's pills. You may stuff my tank with the burdock rank, and eke with alfalfa tea; you may load my craw with unbolted straw, and a bundle of egg-o-see; O friends, be fleet with the cream of wheat, and the toasted jigmarrigs! For my need is great; if I have to wait, I'll go and feed with the pigs.

WAR DECLARED

Who Will Enlist In This Popular Movement?

War has been declared by our leading druggists.

They are going to fight stomach troubles with Mi-o-na Tablets. They feel so sure of success that they guarantee to refund the price of any 50-cent box that does not give satisfaction and do all that is claimed for it.

Mi-o-na is an absolute strengthener and cure for the stomach and digestive organs.

If you suffer with headache, dizziness, palpitation, have bad taste in the mouth, nervousness, coated tongue, distress after eating, try Mi-o-na.

It will not be long before all these symptoms have disappeared and you are strong and well.

L. P. Van Werden sells Mi-o-na under an absolute guarantee to refund the money unless it cures.

The Globe Trotters.

(Original.)

"Will you show me some bracelets?" asked a modest looking man, very genteel in appearance and wearing clothes of a British cut.

The clerk pulled out a tray of gold bracelets, and the gentleman looked them over critically.

"Talk about the jewelry abroad," the customer remarked in a pleasant voice. "I think our American jewelry is much more tasteful. I've looked over the stock in London, Paris, Vienna, Berlin and St. Petersburg—I'm a globe trotter, you know—and I give you my word I've not seen any such unique designs as these."

After hesitating a long while between two or three bracelets he bought one for $50, paid for it by check from a pocket check book and told the jeweler to send it to the hotel as soon as the check was reported to be good.

The next morning, the check having been pronounced "good," the bracelet was delivered.

A week later the same gentleman strolled into the same jewelry store and asked to see some diamond solitaire rings. The same clerk waited on him and drew forth a case containing diamonds worth from $10 to $100.

"Something better, please," said the customer, and, putting back the tray, the clerk pulled out another with gems of far greater value.

"Rings are the same everywhere," said the customer after looking over the lot. "Let me see some brooches. Ah, these are better. There is more chance for originality in design. By Jove, that's a beauty! Quill prix? 'Pon my word, I've stopped so often in Paris that I forgot I was in America. How much, I mean?"

"Fifty-five hundred dollars." "Isn't that a big price?" "There are two diamonds in it worth $2,500 each unset."

The gentleman looked longingly at the brooch, went away, came back the same afternoon, looked over the stock again and again, and then he said, "I'm unaccustomed to American ways," he said to the clerk. "I don't know anything about this house, and, though I'm a fair judge of diamonds, I don't like to put so much money into them without the opinion of an expert. Would your house consider it improper for me to bring an expert here to look at this brooch?"

"Certainly not." So the customer went out and the next day brought an expert, who pronounced the diamonds of the first water, and the customer, being satisfied, requested that the brooch be sent to his hotel for his wife's approval. That afternoon it was brought there by a shrewd looking man, who said he was one of the members of the firm. He was obliged to wait till the globe trotter sent for the expert; then the box containing the brooch was opened, and the gems shone forth in great splendor. The globe trotter's wife, a delicate looking woman, who seemed to be tired out following her husband around the world, admired it immensely.

"Anything more of me?" asked the expert after stating that the jewels were the same or at least of equal value to those he had seen at the store. "Nothing more, thank you," replied the customer, slipping a bill into her hand. "Now," he continued to the jeweler, "I want this brooch with these identical jewels, and you want $5,500 in good money. I don't ask you to trust me, and I wouldn't trust anybody. I once bought a diamond in Constantinople, and before I got it into my possession a paste facsimile had been substituted. What I propose is this: I will put the brooch in this little box, seal it up, stamped with my own seal and you take it back to the store with my check for $5,500. As soon as the check is pronounced good at the bank you send me the box, still sealed. What do you think of that?"

"I think it an unusual method." "Very well, if you object I suppose we shall have to call the sale off. I don't come to take."

"As you like," said the jeweler, who knew there was $500 profit in the transaction.

The globe trotter placed the brooch in the box, put a piece of wrapping paper about it, tied with a string, sealed it with a ring he wore on his little finger and was about to hand it to the jeweler when the wife shrieked and put her hand to her heart. For a moment all eyes were turned to her, then, recovering, she said:

"Don't mind me. It's only one of those sharp pains I have so often."

The husband, with an anxious expression, advancing to her, handed the box and a check to the jeweler as he passed and, apparently dismissing everything else than his wife's condition, stood over her fanning her. The jeweler withdrew, expressing a word of sympathy before closing the door.

The next day the protest clerk of the bank on which the check had been drawn called on the jeweler and presented the check, on which was written "No Funds." A suspicion that something was wrong came at once to the jeweler, who took the box from the safe, broke the seal, destroying the imprint of a very pretty crest, and took out a bit of newspaper. No brooch was there.

A telephone to the hotel elicited the information that the globe trotter and wife had gone on trotting within ten minutes after the jeweler had left the hotel. The trick consisted in changing the box for one exactly like it when the trotter's wife shrieked, thus momentarily withdrawing the jeweler's attention.

Notwithstanding the police made a special effort to capture the thieves and the brooch, neither was ever found. F. TOWNSEND SMITH.

The Eternal Feminine.

The sons of men rule the world, but the daughters of men govern it through them. It is woman who founds society in its artificial aspects. It is woman who creates class distinctions and insists on maintaining them. It is woman who imbues man with desire to emulate, who instills into him social ambition that inevitably brings in its train the restless fever of acquisition, the madness of greed, the ambition for power through financial success. It is woman who is at once the social bulwark and the autocrat.—London Woman's Life.

The Drama.

The drama begins in Athens, Greece, on the wave of enthusiasm created by the Greek victories over the Persians. Aeschylus, B. C. 429, was the creator of tragedy. Aristophanes, B. C. 390, was the father of comedy. During the middle ages the theater dropped to the low level of the "Miracle Plays" or "Moralities" and was revived in the sixteenth century on Greek methods.—New York American.

The Carthaginians were, from all the accounts, the first to have paved roads. The Romans in the time of Augustus had pavements in many of their streets. The celebrated Appian Way, built in 312 B. C., was so soundly constructed that parts of it are still doing good service.

All is not false which at first seems a life.—Southey.

SIMPLE WASH CURES ECZEMA.

Itching, Burning Skin Disease Routed Without Use of Injurious Drugs.

Great inventors often have been praised for surrendering the secrets of their discoveries. Practically the same thing happened in the medical world in the case of Dr. Decatur D. Dennis, the eminent skin specialist of Chicago.

Dr. Dennis, in his own office practice, discovered that pure vegetable oil of wintergreen, properly mixed with other simple remedies was practically a sure specific for eczema, psoriasis, barber's itch, salt rheum, and other itching skin diseases. But the oil of wintergreen alone was found ineffective. It required other mild ingredients such as glycerine and thymol compounded with the wintergreen to produce the real eczema cure.

This compounded D. D. D. Prescription positively takes away the itch at once—the instant it is applied to the skin.

This vegetable liquid does away with deleterious drugs so long used in an attempt to doctor the blood, whereas modern science has determined that eczema is first and all the time a skin disease.

If you want to know more about the merits of D. D. D. Prescription, call at our store. We vouch for this remedy. L. P. Van Werden, Leon, Iowa.

Be tolerant. You may be in the wrong. Even if you are not, the only way to convert the other fellow is to be tolerant and kind.
