

Medicines

When we speak of medicines we mean everything in a drug store in the medicinal line—crude drugs—spices—extracts—chemicals and lastly but most important of all—prescriptions. It is in this department that we are of the greatest service to you. Our diplomas guarantee that you get the same consideration and care when you have your prescriptions filled here—just as your doctor's diploma guarantees that you have the service of a thoroughly qualified medical man. When you want medicines of any kind or when you have any prescriptions to fill, we ask you to let us fill them. We tell you here that they will be filled right.

The soft weather of last week caused the new ground on several of the streets where sewers were put in last fall to cave in, and dangerous holes were made. The streets are going to be in bad shape for some time to come, for it will take several heavy rains before the dirt in the trenches fully settles.

There should be a stop put to the small boys using air rifles so promiscuously, many of them being very careless in handling these dangerous weapons. On Monday Harold, the little son of L. A. Pickering was shot just over the eye with an air rifle in the hands of a playmate, and a bad wound was inflicted. Had the bullet struck a half inch lower it would have destroyed his eye and perhaps killed him.

Mrs. Kane will be remembered by many of our readers, being a daughter of Hon. Z. H. Gurley, and for many years was a resident of Lamoni, and has given frequent readings in Leon. The doctors of Leon have raised the price for making professional visits. It now costs $1.50 for a visit in the day time and $2.00 if the doctor calls at night. About everything that we know of has advanced now except the subscription of The Reporter. Wonder if our subscribers would kick if we added fifty cents a year to the yearly subscription price of The Reporter?

Sam Wightman, editor of the Bethany Clipper, recently nearly fell dead when he opened a letter from a subscriber in a distant city in which was enclosed a draft for $100, the writer saying "only the enclosed draft on my subscription." For a whole day Sam walked the streets of Bethany boasting of his hundred year subscriber, but he went into deep mourning when he received a long distance telephone from the subscriber, who said he had made a mistake and sent him the wrong draft. He bought two drafts, one for $100 to send to his wife and the other for $1.00 to send to Sam, and by mistake endorsed and mailed the wrong draft to each. Sam wasn't kicking but the wife was.
