A SCARE BRINGS $50 FROM JEW PEDDLER.
When Man in Jail Played Crazy Jew Found Money to Pay for His Liberty.
J. O. "Shiner" McGuire played a neat little trick on a Jew peddler in jail the other day that netted Mercer county $50.00. The peddler was taken in by officers for selling his goods in the county without a license. His fine and costs amounted to $50.00. He swore that he had no money and was placed in jail.
McGuire, who is awaiting trial in jail, eyed the little dark complexioned peddler as he marched in, and saw a chance for some fun. No sooner had the door closed than McGuire began to wall his eyes and make queer noises, indicating that he was insane and somewhat violent. Later when McGuire began to have fits and kicked the furniture around, the peddler got scared. He ran to the window, and cried frantically for the sheriff, and when the officer came he was only too glad to pay his fine and be released from imprisonment with a supposed crazy man. From a hidden pocket he brought out a roll of bills and quickly handed over the amount to settle the claim. He then lost no time in getting away.—Princeton Telegraph.
