W. B. PATTON IN "THE GOOD SAMARITAN."

In his new production of "The Good Samaritan," W. B. Patton is to be commended for picking a play in which the plot is plain enough to be seen without the aid of a search-light or a pocket guide. The moral is self evident, that the human race is not all that it should be, and that the people are divided into two classes—those who are worse than they are painted, the others who are better. "The Good Samaritan" is beyond a doubt the best vehicle in which Mr. Patton has ever appeared.

The wonderful character of the Samaritan is a type which has never before been enacted upon the stage, it has more sight and shares, and is more droll than any character Mr. Patton has ever played. The comedy side sparkles with the richest humor and contains a wealth of those quaint situations which this peculiar comedian manipulates with that artistic touch which never fails to convince those who pride themselves on being immune from laughter. In "The Good Samaritan," Mr. Patton is irresistible.

In portraying the serious side, he rises to the full possibilities of the character of one of nature's noble men whose wisdom and goodness reach the hearts of men and women, and even children.

Mr. Patton's company is one of more than ordinary strength and support him in a way that fits well with his peculiar characteristics. Without them Mr. Patton would be good. With them he has no equal.

God made man.
Woman makes bread.
It takes the bread
That woman makes
To sustain the man
That God made,
But the bread
That some women make
Would not sustain any man.
That God ever made.

The Season is Closed.

Hunters and fishermen should remember that the laws prohibit the killing of prairie chickens after the first of December, and that it is also unlawful to catch any of the game fish found in the waters of this section after the same date. The quail season closed Dec. 15. Nobody seems to be right sure whether the federal game law regarding ducks is going to be enforced or not, but it's safest to quit shooting them after Dec. 15 if there were any left at that time. By next spring the thing will probably be settled.

The January Woman's Home Companion.

In the January Woman's Home Companion an article by Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson tells of gigantic work done by the Federal Employment bureau, which is obtaining jobs by the thousands for men and women out of work. Another article entitled "Learning to Dance at Sixty" gives practical information as to the best ways to master the new steps and reasons why old as well as the young should take up dancing.

A wide variety of exceedingly interesting fiction is contributed by the best short story writers in the country, including Katherine Holland Brown, Anna McClure Sholl and Parker Fillmore. Three big serials, "The Rising Tide," "Chloe Malone" and "The Geranium Lady" are continued by Margaret Deland, Fannie Heaslip Lea and Sylvia Chatfield Bates.

The Rev. Dr. Charles B. Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle, contributes a sermon to grown up sons, Laura Spencer Porter has an unusual article called "The Traditions of England" which gives a study of British standards and temperament.

A moving picture department conducted by Helen Duey, contains a collection of the best motion picture films which are now being shown in this country. The other regular departments contain many interesting and helpful features. The better babies bureau has many suggestions that will be of service to mothers. In the department on fashions Grace Margaret Gould discusses the most recent Paris styles. The department on cooking is conducted by Cora Farmer Perkins, a prominent authority on this subject and sister to the late Fannie Merritt Farmer, whose fame was national. For young readers Winifred Arnold and George and Clara Williams continue "Mr. Barker and the Twins," and "Jack and Betty's Magazine." The number is an excellent one.

Dr. Huff's Car in a Ditch.

As Dr. K. R. Huff was returning home Tuesday morning from a professional call east of town, he became drowsy and just after crossing the bridge on East Line street, he was rudely awakened by finding himself in a ditch, his car turned over and himself quite badly bruised and shaken up, but fortunately not seriously injured, the car, however, was quite badly demolished. He had fallen to sleep and allowed the car to swerve to one side of the road striking a telephone pole and turning the car over on its side and going through a barbed wire fence into the ditch.—Lincolnville Tribune.

A GREAT WORK.

Christian Home Orphanage Cares for 500 During the Year.

It is announced from the office of the Christian Home Orphanage of Council Bluffs, Iowa, that the annual Thanksgiving offering to the home, on which the institution depends, to a very great extent, for funds to clear up the debts that accumulate during the financially dull summer and fall months, and for at least a small balance to help meet the always heavy and greatly increased demands of winter, when suffering among homeless and destitute children is greatest, has this year failed of its mission. The Thanksgiving offering has provided only a trifle over half of what is needed, and the Orphanage is left with much of the old debt still unprovided for, and with no balance with which to carry on the work during the winter.

Steps must be taken at once to clear the home of debt, and to leave something of a working balance in the treasury, and to this end, the home is earnestly asking for Christmas donations that will supply the funds for this purpose.

There are no doubt many friends of the home among the readers of this paper, or at least many who are interested in homeless boys and girls who will regret the unfortunate condition in which the home is left by the partial failure of the annual Thanksgiving offering, and who will promptly send a donation to relieve the work of its present heavy load.

Surely Christmas could not be more fittingly celebrated than by helping to provide for the hundreds of homeless boys and girls under the care of this great institution.

During the year of 1915 the home will have cared for nearly five hundred inmates, and the constant daily average has been 260, wholly dependent upon the home for food and shelter.

Whatever you feel like doing to assist the home in its truly arduous undertaking, will be gratefully received and promptly acknowledged. Let us all help to make this a truly bright Christmas for the home.

All donations should be forwarded to the Christian Home Orphanage, H. R. Lemen, Manager, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Lad Killed by Horse.

Yesterday afternoon while hauling wood to the house Frank James, the little son of Ed James, was instantly killed by a horse. Mr. James and his little son, who was nine years old, had a load of wood and were going to the house and had to pass through a gate which was closed and when the boy attempted to open the gate one of the horses reared and struck him on top of the head, crushing the skull. Death came instantly. It has not been decided when the funeral will be held. The sorrowing relatives have the sympathy of the entire community.—Mt. Ayr Record-News.
