Miss Guthrie Favored.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Miss Martha Guthrie, of Pittsburgh, is today looked upon as one of the top notchers of the entrants in the Metropolitan title tennis championship tournament, following her flashing victories over Miss S. J. Strauss and Miss Jane Rowson at the West Side club, Forest Hills. Miss Molla Bjurstedt, who holds women's tennis title of consequence, won her two rounds in handy style, defeating Miss Elsa Kane and Miss Pollak without difficulty.

Hammer Wins Again.

KENOSHA, Wis., May 16.—Ever Hammer, Chicago lightweight, was more than a serious contender for Freddie Welsh's title today. Hammer added another victory to his string here last night by dimming the hopes of another title aspirant, the Bitter Root Kid, of Montana, when the fight was stopped in the seventh because of the western youth's inability to continue. The fight was a one-sided affair for Hammer from the start.

Preparing for Bout.

NEW YORK, May 16.—Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, is today putting on the finishing touches for his bout with Ted Lewis here Thursday night.

FOOD FOR FANS

Yesterday's homers: Graney, Cleveland, off Caldwell, Yanks; Baker, Yankees, off Bagby, Indians. The Giants continued their pleasant task of mowing down the Cubs. It was made easier for them when the Cubs made a bunch of errors.

It was no secret about Benny Kauff being in the game, but the only way the fans found it out was by looking at the score board.

Dave Robertson, of the Giants, was pinched speeding to the Club-Giant game, but the judge, a ball fan, let him go when Dave promised to be in court Tuesday.

The Dodgers nearly broke their winning streak. A freak play was the only thing that prevented the Cards from beating them. Mowrey's grounder in the eleventh bounded over Miller's head and two scored.

The Pirates are playing desperately to keep the Giants from crowding them into the cellar. They beat the Braves by a narrow margin.

Cravath, of the Phillies, batted 1.000. Three hits and a hit by pitched ball in four times to the plate was his record.

The Indians and Dodgers are leading their league by a game and a half a piece.

Jack Graney's homer flustered Fritz Maisel so much that the Yank gardener broke a collar bone trying to field it.

Cliff Markle, the Yankee's pitching find, was given his first jolt of the season. The Indians batted him out of the box. He had won five straight.

Eddie Plank, former Athletic and now with the Browns, pitched against Connie Mack's club for the first time in his life, but lost a close game.

The Senators, with the aid of five pitchers, held the Tigers in check and won an eleven inning ball game.

George Moriarity, ex-Detroit star, signed up to pilot the Memphis club of the Southern association.

Suff's Storm Congress.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—A spectacular parade and demonstration were staged this afternoon as women, congressional union delegates who have traversed the country on the "suffrage special," presented their petitions to congress. The petitions were from the women of the enfranchised states asking suffrage for the entire nation.

Three hundred school girls dressed in white, bearing La Toaca staffs roped together with purple, white and gold streamers formed aisles up the broad, impressive steps of the capitol as the delegates marched in with their petitions. Later, members of congress mingled with the delegates in front of the capitol in a final demonstration.

Jasper Blines Has Plan for Museum of History to Be Given to Kahoka

g of Seven Pines Will Race His Records and Relics in This Building When Secured.

Burlington Saturday Evening Post: The editor of The Post had as a guest at his home on Prospect Hill during the week, a gentleman of considerable celebrity in the middle west. The name of this well known antiquarian, collector and historian is Jasper Blines, and his place of residence on a farm bordering on the Des Moines river, in Clark county, Mo., near the quaint old hamlet of Alexandria. We have been intimately associated with Mr. Blines, personally and through correspondence, for the last forty years, and have observed during that period that he has been tireless and enthusiastic in the pursuit of knowledge. During the same period he has been a voluminous writer for newspapers and magazines, and in this way has given to the public the knowledge acquired through his earnest and diligent researches. On his farm out on the Alexandria bottom, Mr. Blines has lived interestingly and intellectually, and his daily work resembles in many of its essentials the tranquil life lived by the great essayist, Henry D. Thoreau in his cottage on the bank of Walden pond. Thoreau wrote many interesting books, and basked in the literary atmosphere of New England. Had he lived a generation later, and in the middle west, he would have had to print his beautiful and sensible thoughts and reflections in the newspapers, as Mr. Blines has done, because the newspaper and not the book or the magazine, is the great public forum of the present day.

Has Fine Collection.

Mr. Blines has been an industrious collector of books, newspaper clippings, curious and old records for half a century, and persons who have seen and examined his collection pronounce it one of great value and interest, and well worthy of permanent preservation in some public institution.

Mr. Blines collection outgrew the quarters he was able to provide for it several years ago, and the necessity for some change suggested itself. Mr. Blines thereupon determined to organize an historical society in Clark county, and to organize and lead the intellectual forces of the community to the enterprise of acquiring a suitable site and constructing a permanent home for the historic records and relics of the county. By reason of its geographical location, and the further fact that the county was settled originally and almost exclusively by families from Kentucky and Virginia, the history of the county up to the present time is of exceptional interest.

Mr. Blines' parents were from the latter state. For generation after generation all of these old families have kept up their old-time social intercourse, and the social and neighborly bond among the people of the county is very strong.

At this time Jasper Blines is a man in the prime of life, apparently with the years of his best performance still before him. Clark county is proud to possess a citizen who is animated by such altruistic and disinterested motives, and for many years past has regarded his labors with appreciation and friendly approval. He is respected, beloved and taken at his real worth by the entire population.

In Prime of Life.

While visiting with us, Mr. Blines outlined many features of his plan which have been fully thought out. Other features are under consideration and not fully developed. By reason of his wide reading, and extensive correspondence with scholars and directors all over the country, and some travel, Mr. Blines has developed into a museum collector and director of the first class and is mentally equipped to do now for his home county a work for which few men anywhere are better fitted.

effect of the trip and the impression on politicians, delegates said, that they hoped the proposed women's party, with suffrage its sole plank, would not have to be formed.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Undine," a Beautiful Photoplay. The fashion writers of fairyland must have a terrible struggle to keep their departments interesting, if the advance promises for "Undine," the Bluebird photoplay to be seen at the Grand today and tomorrow may be taken at face value. The screen version of Pierre De La Motte Fouquet's fairy-classic has been made true to the legendary description of mythological modes and "dresses." Mermaids are mermaids and fairies are all (or that little) they are presumed to be, in the photoplay.

In the first place Henry Otto, who directed "Undine" for Bluebird Features, picked out the nice, warm waters of the Pacific ocean in which Miss Ida Schnall and a few score attendant swimming experts, of faultless physical proportions, might display themselves while acting the part of satellites to Queen Unda, mistress of the under-sea. The shores of Catalina Islands, off the California coast, furnished the settings of sandy beaches, rugged and jagged rocks and picturesque grottos with their mirroring pools.

A cute little mite of a girl, Marie Klerman, figured prominently in "Undine." Miss Ida Schnall has enacted the title role, is famed for her exact physical perfections—in those charts that papers print, showing in inches the length of the nose, the distance from chin to elbows and the various other angles in tape line testimony of divine formations, the "Undine" of the "movies" is put at the head of the first class in Venus competitions. She bears upon her chest numerous medals won in swimming contests, has trophies galore to prove that she is an athlete, and in the photoplay displays her daring as a high-diver by gracefully glancing from the top of a cliff at a height of 130 feet.

Photographically, "Undine" promises many revelations in the art of reproducing scenes of fairy revelry by night; the charm of Pacific sunsets, among the coaves and grottos of the Catalina Islands; in forest scenes and the rugged landscapes of the western coast. There was no need to go to the tropics for settings in which to frame the story of "Undine."

And the fairy tale, originally meant as a contribution to childish flights of fancy, offers no end of opportunity for sensational scenes, spectacular effects and attractively colorful scenes of general appeal. We grown-up will be well entertained, and the little folks have in store for them one of the greatest treats imaginable when the story of "Undine" is unfolded before their wondering gaze.—Advertisement.

Farming as a Business.

Cedar Rapids Republican: Life on a farm is not all dreaming, if it is dreaming at all. But it has its rewards, its compensations, its great satisfactions. To sow and to reap, to plant and to harvest, to see things growing, all these have their own pleasures, as every man who has lived on a farm knows. And there is financial independence also that can be reached, if one goes about farming in the right way—that is, applies to it business sense as well as hard labor.

Mr. Blines is receiving a great deal of encouragement in his work of promoting a historical association and museum, and without a doubt he will succeed in giving to the county an institution that will be of great value to it in the beginning, and that will grow in interest and value from year to year.

At the present time, Mr. Blines is making his headquarters at Kahoka, the county seat of Clark county, and it is here that the museum will be located. Mr. Blines has the endorsement and the financial backing of many of the best citizens of the county, all of whom comprehend the value of his labors in past years, as well as the greater value he will be able to give to the public in the future by reason of the proper organization and assistance. The Daughters of the American Revolution in Clark county have given their endorsement to Mr. Blines' plan for a historical society and permanent museum and are now doing effective work in assisting to organize the forces that will enable him to bring about the consummation of his hopes. It is intended in the near future to erect a suitable building in Kahoka as a permanent historical home, which Mr. Blines in charge. In this museum will be installed the large and valuable collection mentioned above as having been gathered during the past half century by Mr. Blines. Mr. C. P. Fore, a banker at Wayland, Mo., will give his collection, which is next to that of Mr. Blines' in point of interest and size in the county. Another large and valuable collection was gathered by the late James H. Gore, a typical country gentleman, who lived for many years near Wayland, and will also be given. Kahoka has a good public library, but it is without suitable quarters, and it is considered quite likely that this library will be added to the new museum's treasures. Many other citizens of Clark county have smaller collections that have been freely tendered, so that in the aggregate the Clark County Historical association will be able to make a showing that will be a source of community pride, and that will grow and increase rapidly from year to year.

Real Test of Friendship. Michael Monahan: And I said to myself with a sigh that there were not left in all the world three men, the thought of dining with whom could yield me an equal joy. That is, I maintain, the crucial test of friendship. Do you like to dine with him? Not without a deep meaning was of old the life of a man held sacred with whom one had shared bread and salt. The sacramental rite of ancient hospitality persists under our less simple and less beautiful forms. Nor may we violate it with impunity, barbarians as we are; nature cries out against our performing this act with one whom we
