Howell-Strome Wedding.
The wedding of Miss Mary Howell of Keokuk and Mr. Oscar Strome which occurred in Yokohama August one of the first to be given in a house Japan Gazette gives the following ac-

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ensworth gave prettily arranged wedding for Mr. Oscar Strome and Miss Mary Howell, at their spacious residence, 8, Bund, ast night at nine o'clock.

C. J. Strome and Mrs. Strome of Yokohama, and Miss Howell, the daughter of the late Mr. Jesse Bowen Howell, a well-known newspaper prorietor of Iowa, U. S. A., and Mrs.

The civil service had been performed at both British and American conulates general, under the direction of H. B. M.'s consul general, Mr. A. M. Chalmers, and the Hon. George H. Scidmore, U. S. consul general, re-

The large drawing rooms of the Ensworth home were beautifully deco-rated, two high gold screens being arranged to form an alcove where a kiosk, cleverly contrived of strung cedar canopied with green foliage, made an attractive bower for the ny. It was flanked by tall jars with large clusters of lilies, beyond which, on one side, stood a wide palm tree, and, on the other, the artistic apanese flower arrangement of pine and flowers, which marks the wedding decoration in this land. The other rooms were adorned with lilies and chrysanthemums. Dr. H. W. Schwartz of the American Bible society, and acting pastor of Union church, came down from Karuizawa to perform the ceremony.

As the bride entered the reception room the wedding march from Lohengrin was rendered with consummate skill by Mrs. Simpson-Baikie, who softly played a voluntary during the satin in cream-white, veiled with silk tulle, the skirt short and very full, the bodice (slightly "v"d) and long plain sleeves of the tulle, the under girdle-bodice being of the satin. Then there was a Watteau train, long and wide, of heavy brocaded cream satin, in flower-cluster pattern lined with duchesse. This beautiful train, pen-dant from the shoulders, was held by jewelled clasps, and was slightly "formed" at the waist-line and widened to a circular length. It held a special interest, having graced the wedding-gown of the bride's mother more than a quarter of a century ago.

A veil of silk illusion held by real orange-blossoms, followed the long lines of the train. The bride wore a rope of fine pearls and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses, y to Ernest L. Goeser, 24, and Erma orchids and maiden-hair fern, tied with long white satin ribbons. Mr.

The honeymoon will be passed to Mivanoshits, to which place the bride and bridegroom motored, the night being exceptionally fine, with the moon just past its full.

Among those invited, besides the bridal couple, the clergyman, Mrs. Miller and the host and hostesses, were Consul-General and Mrs. Chal-mers, Consul-General and Miss Scidmore, Mr. G. G. Brady and Mrs. Brady (nee Strome), Miss Doreen Brady, Mr. F. W. R. Ward and Mrs. Ward (nee Strome), Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keane, Mr. and Mrs. Simpson-Baikie, and Messrs. Wedding cake.

The going-tway gown was sapphire faille taffetas, coat and skirt with lace blouse. The sleeves were long, with deep cuffs, embroidered buttons, and a Russian belt with pearl buckle.

Mrs. Forrester Miller, who has been chaperoning M ss Howell since her arrival, was govered in embroidered ecru net over black net, full skirts, and a crushed girdle of velvet in American beauty rose.

Mrs. Ensworth had an imported robe of pink satin, veiled in a triple-skirted over-dress of white tulle embellished with silver ribbon and points of net embroidered with seed pearls, larger ones outlining the decollettage. A Parision reception train falling from the shoulders, where it was fastened with clasps set with pearls, was in pale bronze hue, striking an unusual

Mrs. Brady had embroidered pink satin, with wide skirt; Mrs. Ward, yellow net over taffetas with full overskirt, and Mrs. Keane was all in white—trained taffeta, veiled in chif-ion, the shoulders effectively outlined in a pattern of white satin laurel leaves; gold clasps, set with pearls, were at the sleeve lines, and a neck-lact of pearls and diamonds finished the toilette. Mrs. Simpson-Baikle had a gown of living-rose, in chiffon cloth, bouffant with accordeon pleating, and a large jeweiled comb in her dark

The Gazette comments upon the gown worn by the bride in the following:

There has scarcely ever been a more beautiful wedding gown seen here than that worn by Miss Howell on Wednesday evening at her mar lage with Mr. Strome.

It was of heavy cream-white satin covered with full veiling of silk tulle the sleeves long, the throat finish pointed in front and evenly rounded at the back. Then there was a won-derful train of heavy brocaded satin in floral design, lined with plain duchesse satin. It was of the pattern made famous by Watteau, hanging from the shoulders, where it was held with clasps set with pearls, slightly fitted in at the waist-line, then widening into the form known as circular, and lengthening out and out to the extent of the modified "court" train. The peculiar part of it is that while being entirely en regle today, it was also the dernier cri of fashion many years ago, when Miss Howell's mother wore it at her wedding. When Mrs. Ensworth mother, Mrs. Miller, came out from America last month, they were asked to look after Miss Howell as far as Honolulu, where she would be met by her aunt (an army officer's wife), who should accompany her here for the wedding, as it was impossible for the bridegroom-elect to get away at the time. Arriving in Honolulu, it was found that the trouble in Mexico had upset all the plans of Colonel Howell and his wife, and thus it was impossible for the lady to leave. Mrs. Ensworth had become so attached to Miss Howell, and so impressed by her charming personality, that she continued to act as chaperone, and on arriving here rade arrangements and gave for her the very pretty and 704.82, the United States companies artistic wedding described in full in $829,622.37 and foreign companies $95, the Gazette of Thursday evening, 668. August 17.

The presents, mostly of chased, en graved and beaten silver, were very many and handsome. Several cablegrams of well-wishing reached the bride from her home country.

For those who are interested and believe in the weather-augury of weddings, it will have been sasisfactory to note that the bride's day was quite perfect, also that of the bridegroom, Entertained Last Night. Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Taber enter-tained at a small dancing party at the Country club last night, which was one of the most beautifully appointthe summer. The party was given in the club house; the guests danced in the reception room and on two sides the porch. Refreshments were the south porch. Many served on roses and dahlias and asters were used in decoration of the reception room and the rooms on the second floor. The guests from out of town included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brady, Mrs. Bigham, Miss Bigham, Mrs. Kirk Meek and Mr. Percy Neff.

Will Look Into Milk Price. [United Press Leased Wire Service] WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—A national probe into the cost of producing milk and the justification for the in prices was today announced by the agricultural department. The first formal action will be taken tomorrow when milk producers from several states will confer with department officials. W. J. Spillman f the office of farm management, D. H. Rawl, chief of the dairy division and Department Solicitor Frank G. Caffy will be in charge of the government effort. Spillman today said he would appoint a special investigator, an expert of national reputation to study conditions throughout the United States, to learn whether producers would be justified in a gen-eral price advance.

The probe will be undertaken as an answer to the following proposition received from milk producers all over the country and especially from New York, New England, Pennsylvania and the region about Chicago: We don't know just what it's costing to produce milk, but we do know we are getting poorer so we want to know whether we are getting enough money for our products.'
