

AMUSEMENTS

AMUSEMENTS

AMUSEMENTS

SECOND TOUR

OF NOMINEE

(Continued from page 1)

Our Watchword- GRAND Quality Pictures

TODAY and TOMORROW

MARIE DORO

WITH ALL STAR LASKY-PARAMOUNT CAST INCLUDING THEODORE ROBERTS, THOMAS MEIGHAN, HORACE B. CARPENTER, AND MRS. LEWIS McCORD, IN

'COMMON GROUND'

THE STORY OF A YOUNG GIRL'S REGENERATION.

ALSO THE SECOND OF THE

FLORENCE ROSE FASHION PICTURES

'Betty Prepares for Cool Weather'

THURS. and FRI.

TRIANGLE PLAYS

NORMA TALMADGE

With Ralph Lewis who created the role of old Stoneman in "The Birth of a Nation," in

"GOING STRAIGHT"

—ALSO—

WILLIAM COLLIER

IN A TRIANGLE COMEDY

'Willie's Wobbly Ways'

Late Market Quotations

DAILY RANGE OF PRICES.

[Furnished by Long Commission Co., 403 Main. Telephone No. 100.]

Commodity	Open	High	Low	Close
WHEAT—
Dec.	1.47 1/4	1.48 1/4	1.50 1/4	1.49 1/4
May	1.48 1/4	1.49 1/4	1.51 1/4	1.50 1/4
Sep.	1.48	1.50 1/4	1.47 1/4	1.49 1/4
CORN—
Dec.	.72 1/2	.73 1/2	.72 1/2	.73 1/2
May	.75 1/2	.76 1/2	.75 1/2	.76 1/2
Sep.	.86 1/2	.87	.86 1/2	.86 1/2
OATS—
Jan.	.47 1/2	.47 1/2	.47 1/2	.47 1/2
May	.50 1/2	.51	.50 1/2	.51
Sep.	.44 1/2	.45	.44 1/2	.44 1/2
PORK—
Jan.	23.50	23.65	23.42	23.57
Sep.	28.00	28.07	28.00	28.07
Dec.	23.60-70	23.70	23.55	23.65
LARD—
Jan.	13.65	13.65	13.47	13.62
Dec.	13.75	13.90	13.67	13.87
RIBS—
Jan.	12.62	12.65	12.55	12.65
Oct.	14.17	14.20	14.05	14.20

HIPPODROME

Admission 5 and 10c. — TONIGHT — 7, 8:15, 9:30

EXTRAORDINARY FEATURE ATTRACTION

The world's greatest exponents of society dances

Mr. and Mrs. VERNON CASTLE

In a remarkable 6 act novelty dance photo-play

"THE WHIRL OF LIFE"

MATS. 2 TO 5 TOMORROW EVE. 7, 8:15, 9:30

LIONEL BARRYMORE in

"THE QUITTER"

A 5 act "Metro" play of romance and thrills.

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

OLDEST COMPANY IN IOWA

IOWA STATE

INSURANCE COMPANY (MUTUAL)

KEOKUK IOWA

300 MAIN ST. PHONE 160

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

It was designed to meet and this has served to confirm his belief that the measure was ill-advised and dangerous in principle as well as effect. He has some new material about Mexico and has had additional time in which to scan democratic legislation to which that party is "pointing with pride" in the campaign now on. He proposes to "go to it" strong on the basis of this new evidence of what he considers democratic incapacity for government. He foresees success of such an appeal and is brimful of energy even if he does face the hardest work in campaigning that a presidential candidate ever had mapped for him before.

Leaving Peoria at noon today the nominee was scheduled to arrive in Springfield about two o'clock, motoring out to Lincoln's tomb in the early afternoon. At four o'clock, he was to address a meeting at the state fair grounds, under the auspices of the republican state committee and the state board of agriculture.

Tonight his program calls for a public reception and an address before a mass meeting. Immediately after this, the candidate was to leave for Wisconsin, where he will campaign in Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee.

There were nearly 2,000 people at the depot to greet the candidate, notwithstanding the fact that his special train was half an hour late. The streets were well lined with throngs anxious to view the nominee and his wife. On the special train with Hughes and his party were Harold L. Ickes, republican state and national committeeman; Mayor Wm. Hale Thompson, of Chicago; A. T. Hert, western campaign manager of the republican committee; P. O. Lowden, gubernatorial candidate; his wife and three children; Julius Rosenwald and a dozen or more other prominent G. O. P. leaders in the state.

Hughes went direct to a hotel where he met republicans in conference and later addressed a crowd of 5,000 people in the Coliseum. The republican state convention was in session, but recessed to let the nominee, throwing open the doors to the hall to the public. On the platform sat "Uncle Joe" Cannon, gallantly talking to two ladies on either hand and looking lost without his usual cigar.

Lowden was enthusiastic over republican prospects in Illinois. "We are carrying on all over the state in my campaign for the nomination and talked with well posted people in every county," he said. "The republicans and progressives are united. I know of no defection of progressives anywhere in the state. Furthermore I am absolutely convinced that we are to have a greater accession from the ranks of the democratic party than in any campaign since 1896. The fact that women will vote for president for the first time in Illinois this fall makes it certain in my opinion that we will have a majority for Hughes and the rest of the ticket at least twice as large as we otherwise would have had. If I told you what I actually believe, the figures on what Hughes' majority will be in Illinois in November, you probably wouldn't believe me. The political situation from a republican standpoint, could not be better in the middle west."

SERBIAN FRONTIER IS CROSSED

(Continued from page 1.)

Official statement issued here today. On the Vretnik sector, Serbian artillery repulsed two Bulgarian counter attacks.

All Attacks Repulsed.

SOFIA, Sept. 19.—The repulse of all allied attacks around the Greig town of Florina was announced by the Bulgarian war office today. Bulgarian troops are continuing their advance against the Rumanians in Dobruja and have captured the Black sea port of Mangalia, twenty-three miles south of Constanza.

MORE POLITICAL NOISE COMING

Democratic Horses are to be Spurred All the Way Down Home Stretch.

[By Robert J. Bender, United Press Staff Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(Aboard the president's special train.) There is to be more political noise at Shadow Lawn from now on. The president, Chairman Vance C. McCormick and other political leaders, have reached the decision that from now on political horses will be spurred all the way down the remainder of the stretch.

Several big "Jersey days," several "open house" days at Shadow Lawn for woman suffrage workers, numerous porch speeches in which the president will uphold democracy's record of the past four years, and an occasional rally into surrounding states by the presidential party will be some of the heavy artillery unlimbered.

Democratic leaders admit the campaign from their standpoint has been necessarily lagging the past week or so. But from the time the president gets back to the summer white house, things are to be set humming. It is believed the president will be once more strenuously urged to make a western trip.

The first political porch speech will come on Saturday when the president will address the Business Men's league of Trenton. The same day he expects to receive a delegation of child welfare workers who will thank him for getting the child labor bill through congress.

Monday the president goes to Baltimore to address the National Grain Dealers association.

COMMITTEE ON BREAD TO MEET

Housewives Are Asked to Take Part in Probe of Higher Price of Loaf.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Housewives from every corner of the United States have been asked to meet in New York next Monday at the session of the national bread committee of the National Housewives' league in an effort to determine what steps shall be taken to meet the increased cost of bread.

Gloom hangs over New York bakers today, despite the fact that they have shown figures intended to prove that an increase in the price of their product is necessary to their existence, they face investigation by the federal trade commission and ordinance enactment by the board of aldermen prescribing the sale of bread by weight rather than by the loaf.

"The situation looks very critical both for the producer and the consumer," said Mrs. Julian Heath, president of the Housewives' league, today. Mrs. Heath has been investigating bread prices for the past three weeks.

"From the figures presented and from my investigation, it would seem that perhaps an increase is justified, but we want to be shown and we want to bring about some remedy which will lessen the burden on both the industry and the consumer," she declared.

Big bakers today presented figures to show that either a higher price or a smaller loaf is inevitable. A loaf has gone up more than ten per cent, the bakers state. Paper for wrapping bread has gone up. Master bakers throughout the country have been instrumental in seeking an inquiry, according to Mrs. Heath and hope that it may suggest a solution for the problem.

THE WEATHER

[U. S. Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.]

River Bulletin.

Flood Stage Change

St. Paul	14	6.1	x0.1
La Crosse	12	5.0	0.0
Dubuque	18	5.0	0.0
Davenport	15	3.8	0.0
Keokuk	14	3.4	x0.4
St. Louis	30	4.5	0.0

The river will remain nearly stationary, or fall slowly, from Davenport to Warsaw during the next 48 hours.

Weather Forecast.

For Keokuk and vicinity: Fair tonight and Wednesday; rising temperature.

For Iowa: Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight and east and south portions Wednesday.

For Illinois and Missouri: Fair tonight and Wednesday; rising temperature.

Local Observations.

Sept. 18 7 p. m. 30.29 60 N Clear

19 7 a. m. 30.22 50 SE Clear

Mean temperature 18th, 53; highest 65; lowest 41; lowest last night 48.

FRED Z. GOSEWISCH, Observer.

Spoke Before Convention

[By Perry Arnold, United Press Staff Correspondent.]

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 19.—Refreshed by his rest at Bridgehampton, and stimulated by an enthusiastic reception here, Nominee Hughes struck out even more vigorously today in his demagogic attack on the republican party. He spoke before the Illinois republican state conference.

While the republican candidate had very little new in his speech from the diatribes he hurled during his transcontinental trip, it was evident his period of study at Bridgehampton had enabled him to assemble his facts in more orderly fashion and to ram home his thrusts with greater power. His audience gave him a tremendous reception of cheers and applause.

For the most part the theme to which the candidate addressed himself was "democracy's broken promises." And to a recounting of the republican party's achievements.

"It was under administrations," he said, "that will always be counted notable in our history that in state and nation it was demonstrated that community interest, the welfare of the people, the supremacy of the national interest in nation and of the state interest in state, were our highest concerns. We desired to maintain individual initiative. We have tolerated nothing which threatened the opportunities for individual incentive, but we determined that in this land there should be equal opportunity, not endangered by monopolistic practices or unjust discriminations, nor any exploitation to attain selfish advantage at the expense of the public interest. It was the republicans, more than anyone else and I do not disparage the great advantage in all these matters that we have received from patriotic democrats but it was republicans notably that in state and nation furnished the cause for state and national disaster."

One new note in the speech was construed as a bid for democratic votes in the delicate way in which the republican nominee declared his belief that many of opposite political faith were sincere and his references to the fact that "patriotic democrats" joined with republicans several times.

At one juncture in his speech a strident voiced individual in the back row strove to interrupt with a question about "Wilson," but he was literally kicked out of the hall by two burly blue coats, without Hughes even pausing in his talk.

One other thing new in the nominee's speech was the way in which he related his plans as definite "proposals" or "pledges." This was apparently in direct answer to democratic criticisms that he had nothing constructive to offer and his marshaling of republican doctrines in this fashion got another big hand.

Chicago Live Stock

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Hog receipts 13,000; market steady, 5c higher. Mixed and butchers, $10.10@11.60; good heavy, $10.50@11.40; rough heavy, $11.20@11.35; light, $10.35@11.65; pigs, $7.00@9.50.

Cattle receipts 9,500; market weak, 10¢@15¢ lower. Steers, $6.60@11.20; cows and heifers, $3.50@9.35; stockers and feeders, $4.60@7.65; Texans, $7.25@8.30; calves, $8.25@12.75; westerns, $6.00@9.40.

Sheep receipts 27,000; market slow, steady. Native, $6.75@7.30; western, $7.15@8.40; lambs, $6.75@10.50; western, $7.00@10.85.

Omaha Live Stock

OMAHA, Sept. 19.—Cattle receipts 12,000; market steady, 10¢ lower. Steers, $6.75@10.85; cows and heifers, $4.50@7.25; stockers and feeders, $5.00@11.00; calves, $5.25@7.00.

Hog receipts 5,000; market steady, closing 10¢ lower. $10.55@10.75; top, $11.00.

Sheep receipts 27,00