

STATE MEN SAY THEY HAVE EVIDENCE OF LIQUOR SALES

Will Not Wait for Analysis of Goods Taken in Yesterday's Raid on Thirteen Establishments.

INJUNCTIONS COMING

State Officers Have Been Busy in Keokuk for Week Securing Evidence for Clean-up.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 17.—"We are hitting them in both directions and right between the eyes," said Attorney General Cosson today in discussing the temp-bar raids at Keokuk yesterday afternoon. "We're going to stop this thing before it has time to get a good start. The fact that the bars were paying a heavy license to the city would indicate that some one knew they would sell real liquor. We have six special agents and an attorney in Keokuk and three men in Scott county."

C. A. Robbins, of the attorney general's office is in Davenport today looking after the case of Dr. Shumaker of Wolcott, in whose place liquor was seized. Dr. Shumaker was under permanent injunction. If the attorney general follows his usual course, contempt proceedings will be started.

Samples Are Secured.

George H. Chittick of Des Moines, assistant chemist in the state dairy and food department, came to Keokuk today and secured samples of the wet goods taken in the raid by state officers on thirteen near-beer saloons here yesterday. He will take these samples to Des Moines for analysis. It was first believed that the analysis would be made here but Mr. Chittick will take samples to his Des Moines laboratory for examination instead.

The state agents will not wait for the result of this analysis. They say that they have enough evidence of illegal sale of liquor here without it. Mr. Chittick may not go directly to Des Moines, and it will likely be some time before he makes known his report.

In the meantime the battle will go on here. The state men say that during the time the officials have been in Keokuk, which has been a week or more, purchases of liquor have been made by members of the party with witnesses to the transactions, and it is upon this that the injunctions will be filed, it is stated.

"We have plenty of evidence," said Special Counsel E. M. Steer, this morning. "Injunctions will be filed against those proprietors that have not already been enjoined," said H. W. Terrell, chief of the raiding squad from Cosson's office. "Where there are already injunctions, contempt of court proceedings will be instituted."

Want to Stop Traffic.

When asked the penalty in the latter case, Mr. Terrell replied that it rested largely with the judge. He brought out that the state wanted more to stop the traffic in liquor in Iowa than to continually prosecute offenders.

Mr. Ferrell is confident that he has the goods on Keokuk establishments. He stated this morning that besides the stuff taken in yesterday's raid, liquor had been purchased by state agents from local soft drink parlors and that there were witnesses to prove it.

Mr. Terrell stated that it was always hard to prove what was beer and what was not. This is because of the fact that most of the temperature brews will ferment under certain conditions and have been known to contain as high as two per cent of alcohol after standing a certain length of time, when they contained none when first purchased. The state agents have been fought on this point in every town in which they have conducted raids.

Has Plenty of Evidence.

The state agent has no fear of this here, however. He stated that at each place here whiskey had been secured and that this was evidence that could not be disputed.

The state men have been in Keokuk over a week securing their evidence and preparing for the raid. Mr. Terrell came here on October 10. M. Steer, who is a special counsel from State Attorney Cosson's office, came last Saturday night. He assisted County Attorney McManus today in some of the bootlegging cases that are up for this term of court.

The coming of the special officers was known to no one and their work was conducted in secret. Local authorities did not know they were here until assistance was asked at the police station to bring in the goods confiscated in the raids.

Legal Action.

The state officers will stay here until they are satisfied that everything is all right. This morning it was not known whether injunctions would be filed today or not. It is necessary to post notices at the places raided and go through other legal steps before injunctions can be filed.

Fourteen search warrants were secured by the state men on Saturday morning from Albert Messenger, justice of the peace, at Messenger's home. It was the intention to use them on the raid but the raid was postponed until Monday.

The state men were assisted by local officers in bringing in the goods although the search warrants were served by them alone. Some of the officers brought in the city licenses issued to the soft drink parlors a couple of months ago by the city council.

Open Again Today.

On the surface, the raid yesterday apparently had little effect on the Keokuk thirst emporiums for they were open for business as usual this morning.

The state officers came to Keokuk from Port Madison where they fined street concessions at the carnival that was held there, $500 for running gambling devices, although no effort was made to close up the ones running on Keokuk's streets.

Severe Rheumatic Pains Disappear

Rheumatism depends on an acid which flows in the blood, affecting the muscles and joints, producing inflammation, stiffness and pain. This acid gets into the blood through some defect in the digestive processes, and remains there because the liver, kidneys and skin are too torpid to carry it off.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old-time blood tonic, is very successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It acts directly, with purifying effect, on the blood, and through the blood on the liver, kidneys and skin, which it stimulates, and at the same time it improves the digestion.

Get Hood's Sarsaparilla today. Sold by all druggists.

Worth Knowing.

Seventeen injunctions were granted yesterday afternoon and this morning in the district court on application of the county attorney in liquor cases growing out of the raids made last July and August. These cases were the ones in which investigation was ordered by Commissioner Hilpert with Reuben Lewis and Harry Holland as the detectives. The petitions were filed some weeks ago by E. W. McManus, county attorney.

INJUNCTIONS ARE GRANTED IN COURT

Restraining Orders Issued Against Seventeen Persons by Judge Hamilton Here.

RAIDS MADE IN SUMMER

Applications Filed by County Attorney as Result of Activities During July and August.

Seventeen injunctions were granted yesterday afternoon and this morning in the district court on application of the county attorney in liquor cases growing out of the raids made last July and August. These cases were the ones in which investigation was ordered by Commissioner Hilpert with Reuben Lewis and Harry Holland as the detectives. The petitions were filed some weeks ago by E. W. McManus, county attorney.

The following were enjoined: Emma Nelson, Fred Hall, Frank Delaney, Clement Farrell, C. B. Wallace, Homer Berry, Jerry Stack, Hugh Brennan, Ed Cavanaugh, George J. Salzer, B. E. Fuller, Nathan Mitchell, Frank Nelson, Charles Hardesty, Anthony Coyle, Luther Hardin and Harry Taylor.

Considerable stir was occasioned last summer with the result of the investigations on the part of the special agents in these cases. Grand jury indictments were returned by the last grand jury against several of those who were today enjoined.

These injunction proceedings may make some of the defendants liable for contempt of court, in case that the state agents prove their cases against several whom they raided, and against whom injunctions have been issued.

STRIKERS CLASH WITH POLICE

It's hunger to stay in, so we had to quit and fight for a raise."

The speaker's eye was black from a strike fight—he'd been taken for a "scab," he said. "Some of the Poles have murder in their hearts," he said, "but the thinking men don't approve of trouble. They're for peaceful ways. But, I guess maybe you'd understand if you had a bunch of kids and only $2 a day to raise them with. Maybe you'd fight, too. And the police were mighty rough with their clubs and guns."

All the strikers tell the same story—hunger ahead, small wages to meet increased prices, police brutality.

A policeman bragged, "Ya," he sneered, "they ain't got any fight in 'em now. Their sand is all gone. Ya, we had to shoot 'em to get it out of 'em."

But Bayonne with its dirty houses, its crude streets, its myriad of ragged kids, hopes for better things. "John D. Rockefeller's making enough on his gasoline. Maybe he'll have a change of heart after a while," said one optimistically. "And there was hope today of an early settlement through getting both sides together. In the meantime, grim police swarm the streets, swinging vicious looking clubs and carrying big 'gats' on their hips.

Company Remains Firm.

BAYONNE, N. J., Oct. 17.—Despite a record of three persons dead, many wounded and pitched battles between strikers and police marking its progress thus far, the strike of oil workers here will go on so far as the Standard Oil Co. is concerned. Superintendent Hennessy today snubbed the strikers' committee of ten which asked him to end the strike by giving them more money, the men claimed.

There was neither bloodshed nor serious rioting up to noon today, but the feeling is as strong as ever. Early morning reports of rioting dwindled later to an irresponsible jag who fired several shots in the air. The police are watching closely for the return of Mrs. J. Sergeant Cram, New York society woman and strike leader, who was ordered away and warned not to come back. The police have orders to "pick her up" on sight.

After talking to the committee of ten from the strikers, Hennessy declared eight of them told him they were ready to tell their men to go back to work without more pay. The committeemen were not empowered to settle the strike, but merely to ask for the raise they struck for.

In the effort to avert it, I confidently pledge the co-operation of the people of the United States if only the way can be found to make their co-operation effective.
