The Lombards

One of the most looked forward to of the numbers on the American Legion and Progressive club Lyceum course is the Lombard entertainers, which will appear at the Y. W. C. A. auditorium Monday night, at 8 o'clock. Harry Lombard, baritone, and Lela Fairchild Lombard, soprano, reader are the artists, and they will give a delightful evening's entertainment.

The Lombards carry fifteen sets of costumes, among them one Japanese costume imported from Japan at the cost of over $500. They have the necessary stage setting to give their program to the best advantage under all circumstances.

Daily Stock Letter.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The Evening Sun's financial review today said: Trading in the short session today was quiet. The opening was steady, but heaviness soon came into the general list and considerable weakness developed in spots. The steel shares held well, while the kindred equipments, with the exception of Baldwin Locomotive, were quite insistently sold. Some liquidation took place in the oil group.

There was nothing in the way of news developments over night to influence the course of values, nor was sentiment guided appreciably by the likelihood of anything taking place in the forthcoming week to change the market position.

Weekly letters of brokerage houses did not reveal crystallization of ideas which could be interpreted as advice to buy. Caution was still the watchword in most of them. The sudden advance in the exchanges in the past two days was obviously based on technical conditions of the moment in that market, as was shown conclusively by the just as sudden setback experienced yesterday and today.

The week in trade was not devoid of encouraging features. Those features were, indeed, outnumbered by those not so encouraging, yet from week to week, the last week being no exception, improvement has been noted.

Buyers are showing renewed interest here and there.

ROMANCE OF THE SOUTH SEA

Two American Marines Elope With Two Native Girls, are Married and Now Face Charges of Desertion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Two South sea maids singing the siren song of their native tropical setting, have just led a pair of American marines into an adventure that included a perilous sea voyage, marriage and then arrest for desertion. And it hasn't ended yet.

Naval authorities here today were considering the romantic case of Corporal William V. Dawson, 22, of Walnut, Alabama, and Sergeant Everett E. Clifton, 22, of Winona, Minn., stationed in the marine corps on the island of Guam.

Official records of the case which came to light here today showed that life in sleepy Guam had begun to pall on Dawson and Clifton. And then they met the two native girls—Chamorroes they are called—with the luring complexion of cafe au lait and wearing grassy gowns that sway in the breeze.

A motor boat was commandeered, stocked with provisions, and all was set for the elopement.

Off they sailed, the four of them. Even the South seas are sometimes restless and the little motor craft with its lone cargo tossed menacingly. The gasoline supply was running low. But finally the cry of "land!"

The party went ashore, strange tropical people crowding about them on the beach.

The marines with their dusky sweethearts were on the island of Yap.

Their suspicions aroused, the Japanese authorities who boss the Yaplanders these days, seized the marines (the women too) and placed them under observation. The observation over, the Japanese sent Dawson and Clifton along with the two causes of the trouble to Yokohama. At that port they were turned over to the American consul.

The consul told on the marines. It was a double wedding, two marriages and two chamorroes. Today, with the brides in their newatched room apartment back in Guam, the marines are awaiting trial for desertion. Marine officials admit the case is "without precedent."

Dawson enlisted at Portland, Oregon, in 1916; Clifton joined at Seattle the same year.
