Appearance of Nude Woman Not Thought Objectionable by Prominent Men of City.

"Hypocrites"—the picture which seemingly has startled multitudes, incurring a storm of protest from some and unlimited approval from others, was witnessed by a select few at the Princess theatre, Wednesday morning.

Tony Sudekum, of the Crescent Amusement Company, desirous of learning whether Nashville should and wanted to see the much vaunted photograph, brought it here for approval or disapproval of the Nashville board of censors and some others.

About one hundred and fifty witnessed the play. About one hundred and forty-nine thought it ought to be shown in Nashville, and the full one hundred and fifty agreed that it was about the best picture ever seen. The local board of censors passed in favor of it being shown three to one.

"Hypocrites," a Bosworth feature, released through the Paramount program, is a modern play featuring Lois Weber. The characters are seen in the prologue as monks and nuns, later brought up to the present time with modern settings and twentieth century people. Gabriel, a monk, tries to perfect an image of truth. When the statue is unveiled by the abbot, Truth is discovered to be naked, and the people rush upon Gabriel and kill him.

Only two can look upon Truth unflinchingly—a child and the woman who loves Gabriel. In the modern part of the story, Gabriel is a minister and finds his congregation bored by his denunciation of hypocrisy. The story of the prologue is repeated in modern times.

The national board of censorship has passed favorably upon the film but exhibitors have met with some disapproval in various communities. The main objection seems to be the portrayal of Truth who is seen throughout the film as a woman in the nude. However, this is handled so cleverly by the producers as to make that objection nil.

The story told is wonderful. Hypocrisy in the church, in the home, in society, in every nook and corner of life is shown, and to the thinking man and woman, it startlingly tells the truth. In addition to the story, superb photography is exhibited throughout.

Seldom, if ever, has any picture ever produced equaled it in this line. Not only double and triple exposures but even sextuple exposures make it truly remarkable.—Nashville Exchange.

The film "Hypocrites," like an exceptionally good book, is not to be absorbed in one seeing, but needs and deserves two, three and four. It's wonderful—that's all.

The film will be shown at the Cresco Opera House on Saturday, July 22nd, matinee and evening. Children not admitted unless accompanied by parents.

HISTORY AS IT IS TAUGHT.

A Plea For Really Neutral Textbooks In Every Country.

History in every country is so taught as to magnify that country. Children learn to believe that their own country has been always in the right and almost always victorious, that it has produced almost all the great men and that it is in all respects superior to all other countries. Since these beliefs are flattering they are easily absorbed and hardly ever dislodged from the mind by later knowledge.

To take a simple and almost trivial example: The facts about the battle of Waterloo are known in great detail and with minute accuracy, but the facts as taught in elementary schools will be widely different in England, France and Germany. The ordinary English boy imagines that the Prussians played hardly any part; the ordinary German boy imagines that Wellington was practically defeated when the day was retrieved by Blucher's gallantry. If the facts were taught accurately in both countries national pride would not be fostered to the same extent, neither nation would feel so certain of victory in the event of war and the willingness to fight would be diminished.

It is this result which has to be prevented. Every state wishes to foster national pride and is conscious that this cannot be done by unbiased history.

The defenseless children are taught by distortions and suppressions and suggestions. The false ideas as to the history of the world which are taught in the various countries are of a kind which fosters strife and serves to keep alive a bigoted nationalism.

If good relations between states were desired one of the first steps ought to be to submit all teaching of history to an international commission which should produce neutral textbooks free from the patriotic bias which is now demanded everywhere.—Bertrand Russell in Atlantic Monthly.

Little Pitcher. Maiden Aunt—So you're studying physiology, Willie? Well, tell me, to what part of the animal kingdom do I belong? Sweet Little Willie—Dunno. Pa says you're an old hen and ma says you're an old cat.—Baltimore American.

Lydon's two trotting stallions, High Wilson and Gold, will be found at the home barn on the Vernon road, five blocks south of the city water works. This is a pair of sound and high-bred horses. 421f
