If your house needs painting, talk to R. W. Cole, he will give you prices on paints.

Don't forget A. W. Hopper when you want groceries. You know his goods are first-class.

Rev. J. W. McGarvey preached to a large congregation at the Christian church last Sunday morning.

Messrs. Bolton and Hayes have about completed Mrs. Dan Johnson's new residence on High street.

Just received a car load of matting, oil cloth and inoulium at the Palac furniture store.

Frank Catron was acquitted in the Police Court Tuesday upon the charge of carrying a pistol.

Just received, an up-to-date line, Men's Clothing and Footwear.

GIBSON & PLANK,

There are several cases of small-pox reported in Corbin, but the malady appears to be in a very light form.

Don't allow your advertisement to stand for months unchanged and then complain that advertising does not pay.

Miller & Son handle a full line of almost anything you want, and will be glad to wait upon you. Give them a trial.

Dan. H. Williams is still getting in new goods every day and has a full line to select from. Drop in and see for yourself.

A heavy rain and wind storm struck this section Tuesday afternoon, but no damage of any consequence was done.

Special bargains in Men's and Women's Shoes. GIBSON & PLANK.

Premium Tickets with each purchase. GIBSON & PLANK.

Take your prescription to Dr. B. F. Herndon and have it carefully compounded. You can also get anything in the drug line.

Ed Hurst has filled his new refrigerator with ice and will now keep his meat cold and sweet. Try him with an order.

Prices has a loud voice, quality has a low voice; but a duet between "Quality and Price" brings down the house. Come to our store and see what we have for you in new Spring Dress Goods, Trimmings, Laces, &c. GIBSON & PLANK.

Dr. G. N. Jolly preached a very interesting sermon last Sunday upon Christ's triumphant entry into Jerusalem. His text was Mark 11 chap. and 9th verse.

Whether you want groceries or garden seed you can get either by calling on Faulkner Bros. They will treat you right

DO You want Shoes that fit your feet, that give satisfaction, that are reasonable in price, that are comfortable? If so, the Bostonians are what you want. We sell them.

GIBSON & PLANK.

Hignite & Childers have a nice line of spring goods to make your selection from. You should see their stock before buying elsewhere.

Frank Hawn has treated his residence to a new coat of paint which has improved the appearance very much. Let others take pattern and do likewise.

Don't go away from home to get your printing done when you can get just as good work done here at reasonable prices. Patronize your home office.

Parker Bros. are the only ones in town who sell Oleomargarine. When you can't get butter you can get something just as good, and we doubt if you could tell the difference. Try it and see.

Lookout for the prizes which the ADVOCATE is going to give away. Don't let some one get that handsome $75 Diamond ring without working for it.

Every citizen of the county should take pride in having a good county paper. The way to have one is to patronize it by subscribing for it. Don't put it off—subscribe to-day.

We give our readers a six page newspaper this week and it is full throughout with interesting reading matter. One page of which is devoted to the latest news from the World's Fair.

See the millinery opening ad of Mrs. Carrie Dickinson which appears in this issue, and don't fail to attend the opening. You can do as well at home as you can aboard, and besides you build up home industry.

The protracted meeting that was expected to begin at the Methodist church on Easter Sunday has been postponed because of the failure of Bro. Fellows, of Somerset, to be able to assist Dr. Jolly in the meeting.

If you have friends visiting you we will take it as a personal favor if you will write down the names and hand them into this office. We want to publish all the news and will do so if you will kindly help us a little in this way.

Rev. J. T. Brown delivered two very interesting lectures at the Christian church last Monday and Tuesday nights. His subject for Tuesday night was "Seeing the World," and was a very interesting lecture. Large crowds greeted him both nights despite the inclement weather Tuesday night.

The case of Hon. Caleb Powers before the Court of Appeals was argued last Thursday and Friday after which court adjourned until April. The opinion will in all probability not be handed down until just before court adjourns for the summer vacation.

Dr. J. R. Smyth is absent this week at Hyden on a business trip. The doctor is one of the best Dentists in eastern Kentucky and it is seldom that he can find time to get away from his office on account of the large amount of work he has here to do.

We call the attention of our readers this week to ad of J. B. Stivers, the butcher. Mr. Stivers handles a nice line of meats that are prepared by Swift & Co., and everyone knows this is the best. He also handles piec renovated butter, and all his goods are first class. Give him a trial order and you will be sure to be pleased.

Hon. W. C. Black returned from Frankfort last Thursday afternoon. He made a splendid record while in the Legislature, and was the first man from Eastern Kentucky to be honored with the nomination for Speaker of the House. Dr. Black, while quite a young man, is very poplar and quite a politician, and will yet make his mark in the political world. He has been urged by his many friends throughout this section of the State to make the race for Congress, but he has declined to enter the contest at the present term, but we may keep a weather eye on the doctor as he bids fair to make a strong leader in this district.

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Blessed by a Smile.

Because she smiled he went away
Brave hearted to his work that day;
His petty cares were all forgotten.
He hurried on with one glad thought.
His task became joy-giving play.
He did not know the sky was gray.
To him the world was bright and gay;
By spendid hopes his breast was sought—
Because she smiled.

She smiled as any woman may
While letting fancy freely stray.
She smiled at him, yet saw him not.
And lo! a miracle was wrought—
A man was changed from hopeless clay.

Do let the children feel that they are mother's most cherished possession, and that home is a place for them to be happy in.

Do learn to hold your tongue when vexed or angry. A muzzle applied at the right moment would prevent many a family discord and heal many a wounded heart.

Do remember that a very little thing may work a marvel. A kiss has changed the destiny of men and women.

Do beware of scolding the silent man. A man who can hold his tongue under provocation is worthy of admiration, veneration and devotion.

Do cultivate a sense of humor, that peace and merriment may dwell in thy house, and the little annoyances that darken the day will disappear as a morning mist before the sun.

Do not feel offended if he who asks advice fails to follow it. What is wisdom in us may prove folly to another.

Do see a little of your neighbors and the outside world. A house-bound woman is generally a dull woman, and often a cross one.

Do be generous in your criticisms. It is a form of magnanimity that leaves no sting of regret.

OUR nature demands home. It is the first essential element of our social being, which cannot be complete without the home relations. There would be no proper equilibrium of life and character without the home influence. The heart, when bereaved and disappointed, naturally turns for refuge to home life and sympathy. There is a mother's love and a father's influence, the loving brothers and sisters. Oh! what is life without these? Our habits, too, are under the moulding power of home. Every young woman should feel that just what she is at home she will appear abroad. If she attempts to appear otherwise, everybody will soon see through the attempt. All the duties of home, when rightly understood, are so many means of improvement. To love home with a deep and abiding interest, with a view to its elevating influence is to love truth and right, heaven and God. The grand idea of home is a quiet, secluded spot where loving hearts dwell, set apart and dedicated to improvement.

"The inner side of every cloud
Is bright and shining
I therefore turn my clouds about
And always wear them inside out,
To show the lining.

If you can't have what you like, like what you have. But that's just what the majority of us don't do. Instead of resolutely making up our minds to like what we have, our lives are one continual lament that we can't have what we like—or think we should like. Distance lends enchantment, to the view sometimes. It is wonderful into what discontented grumblers we can degenerate too, once we let ourselves go, and forget to look for the silver linings of our lives. It's the easiest thing in the world to grumble. One of the most difficult to cure one-self of the habit, once it has got a hold of one.

And the worst of it is that people who grumble not only make themselves utterly miserable, but are extremely unpleasant to live with, and make things miserable for other people, too.

The husband of the "if only" woman is the man to be sincerely pitied. Her children, likewise, are in need of help. Fancy bright youth compelled to spend its best days with a mother who is always lamenting the fact that she hasn't and can't have what she likes. If they don't grow up to be pessimists it certainly isn't her fault; and imagine what pleasure it would give you to return to such a home. My dear friends, if you're in the habit of wearing your silver inside, do make up your minds to "turn your clouds about." That silver lining would be so much more inspiring, so much more cheerful, to live with, than the cloud side you so persistently turn to the world.

Do not waste your vitality in hating your life. Find something in it which is worth liking and enjoy, while you keep steadily at work to make it what you desire. Be happy over something every day, for the brain there is a thing of habit, and you cannot reach it to be happy in a moment if you allow it to be miserable for years. What might have been you have nothing to do with; your business is to like what you have, and make the best of it. There would be a great many more happy people in the world if we all do it. But if the "if only" are things that with a little exertion on your part can be righted, why that's a different matter. Lament them by all means, if such lamentation stirs you up to remedy them. It is the things that are over and done with, and cannot be altered, however much we wish otherwise that we want you to forget. It is such a waste to spend your lamentation of these.

No. Make up your mind that what ever you may have done in the past you will in the future wear your clouds "inside out, and show the lining." We all have clouds, but that is no reason why we should draw the attention of the world to them. It is the brave, cheerful soldiers who inspires the others. So if you can't get what you like, determine to like what you have or at all events to make the best of it and go on your way bravely, without complaining.

FEW people stop to think that their individual happiness is not dependent on outside circumstances. A habit of happiness can be cultivated, like any other habit, just as successfully. Happiness is as much a duty as cleanliness and morality. The cheerful, hopeful temper which refuses to let itself be harrowed up, it is everyone's duty to cultivate. "There's a beautiful legend that at creation's dawn an angel came down to earth, seeking something to take back with it to heaven. It returned with a bouquet of flowers, a baby's smile and a mother's love. When it reached the pearly gates of Paradise again the flowers had withered, the baby's smile had vanished, but the mother's love was found to be as pure an eternal as the waters that flowed by the heavenly throne, and all the angels exclaimed: "There is nothing on earth pure enough for heaven but a mother's love!" What a sublime thought and holy moral this old legend illustrates and teaches to mortal creatures.
