SENATOR ANTHONY is reported to be dying.

The real estate frauds exposed some years ago are being revived at Washington.

It is reported from Washington that the President has assured Mahone that he should have the distribution of the Federal offices in Virginia.

The friends of Mr. Blaine claim that there is a growing sentiment in his favor in the southern States, and that he is steadily getting stronger as a Presidential candidate in that section.

The Democratic Central Committee of Brown county, O., met at Georgetown, a few days ago, and unanimously recommended Judge David Tarbell as a candidate for Attorney General.

A MEETING of Irish citizens was held at Lexington, on Sunday, at which the conclusions of the Philadelphia Convention were heartily endorsed, and the organization of a branch of the National League was begun.

MEMBERS of the Grand Encampment, as well as Knights Templar, will be charged $75 per ticket from the Missouri River to San Francisco and return. Whatever discount is made will be made by rebate in San Francisco.

THERE have been 2,036 returns made to the County Auditor by liquor-sellers in Cincinnati under the Scott Law. About five hundred more are expected. The amount added to the tax-duplicate will be not far from $450,000.

THE contest in the Bracken district for the candidacy for State Senator between Hon. A. R. Clark, of Pendleton county, and Judge W. T. Simmons, of Grant county, was settled on Saturday by a primary election. Bracken gave 700 majority for Clark, which will make his majority in the district from 1,500 to 2,000.

THE New York Sun says: Not much is known about Charles Lyman, Chief Examiner under the Civil Service Commission, except that he has drawn a salary as a treasury clerk for nineteen years. It adds that he has served in the war, and according to the press, he made a "good record." It then quotes the record of a dismissal of a Charles Lyman, from the Fourteenth Connecticut Volunteers, for furnishing the descriptive list of a man of his company to an unauthorized person in disregard of the general orders on that subject, and it asks: "Is this the Charles Lyman of Connecticut, who has been chosen to examine applicants for office, and to determine their qualifications?"

THE Chicago Horseman of last week contained the following: The grand old town of Maysville, Ky., opens its hospitable gates next week for its regular spring trotting meeting, and first-class trotting will be the order of the meeting. Last year the meeting was distinguished by the advent of several capital trotters that at once made for themselves a name, and subsequently went to the front rank. We expect the meeting next week will be fully equal in character to its predecessor. On May 15th, the 2:50 class, purse $500, the 2:25 class, $800, and the 2:20 pacers, purse $500, fill the card. The 2:34 and the 2:21 classes, for $800 each, will occupy the second day. May 17th is filled up with the 2:34 class trotters and the free-for-all pacers for purses of $800 each. The last day of the meeting opens with the 2:40 class, purse $500, and closes with the 2:19 class, purse $800. The entries are high in character, and we hope the public will give a hearty support to the sport in this great trotting center of Old Kentucky.

THE BAD BOY.

How his Pa Salted the Minister, and Why the Boy L-f-t the Livery Stable.

Peck's Sun. "Say, I thought you was going to try to lead a different life," said the grocery man to the bad boy as the youth came in with his pockets full of angle worms, and wanted to borrow a baking powder can to put them into, while he went fishing, and he held a long angle worm up by the tail and let it wiggle so it frightened a girl that had come in after two cents worth of yeast, so she dropped her pitcher and went out of the grocery as though she was chased by an anaconda.

"I am going to lead a different life, but a boy can't change his whole course of life in a minute, can he? Grown persons have to go on probation for six months, before they can lead a different life, and half the time they lose their end before the six months expire, and have to commence again. When it is so allured hard for a man that is endowed with sense, to break off being bad, you shouldn't expect too much from a boy. But I am doing as well as could be expected. I ain't half as bad as I was. Gosh, why don't you burn a rag. That yeast that the girl spilled on the floor, smells like it was raised with that yeast would smell like this cooking butter you sell to hired girls." "Well, never you mind the cooking butter. I know my business. If people want to use roor butter when they have company, and then blow up the grocer before folks, I can stand it if they can. But what this I hear about your fighting a duel with the minister in your back yard, and wounding him in the leg, and then trying to drown himself in the cistern? One of your new neighbors was in here this morning and told me there was murder in the air at your house last night, and they were going to have the police pull your place as a disorderly house. I think you were at the bottom of the whole business."

"O, it's all a darn lie, and those neighbors will find they better keep still about us, or we will lie about them a little. You see, since pa got that blacking on his face he don't go out any, and to make it pleasant for him ma invited in a few friends to spend the evening. Ma has got up around, and the baby is a daisy, only it smells like a goat, on account of drinking the goat's milk. Ma invited the minister, and went into the rest, and after supper the men went up into pa's library to talk. O, you think I am bad, don't you, but of the nine men at our house last night, I am an angel compared with what they were when they were boys. I got in the bath room to untangle my fish line, and it is next to pa's room, and I could hear everything they said, but I went away, 'cause I thought the conversation would hurt my morals. They would all steal, when they were boys, but darned if I ever stole. Pa has stole over a hundred wagon loads of water-melons, one deacon used to rob orchards, another one shot tame ducks belonging to a farmer, and another tipped over grindstones in front of the village store, at night, and broke them, and run, another used to steal eggs, and go out in the woods and boil them, and the minister was the worst of the lot, 'cause he took a seine, with some other boys, and went to a stream where a neighbor was raising brook trout, and cleaned the stream out, and to ward off suspicion, he went to the man the next day and paid him a dollar to let him fish in the stream, and then kicked because there were no trout, and the owner found the trout were stolen and laid it to some Dutch boys. I wondered, when those men were telling their experience, if they ever thought of it now when they were preaching and praying, and taking up collections. I should think they would not say a boy was going to hell right off because he was a little wild now days, when he has such an example. Well, lately, somebody has been burgling our chicken coop, and pa loaded an old musket with rock salt, and said he would fill the fellow full of salt if he caught him, and while they were talking up stairs ma heard a rooster squawk, and she went to the stairway and told pa there was somebody in the hen house. Pa jumped up and told the visitors to follow him, and they would see a man running down the alley, full of salt, and he rushed out with the gun, and the crowd followed him. Pa is shorter than the rest, and he passed under the first wire clothes line in the yard all right, and was going for the hen house on a jump, when his neck caught the second wire clothes-line just as the minister and two of the deacons caught their necks under the other wire. You know how a wire, hitting a man on the throat, will set him back, head over appetite. Well, sir, I was looking out the back window, and I wouldn't be positive, but I think they all turned double back summer-suits, and struck on their ears. Anyway, pa did, and the gun must have been cocked, or it struck the hammer on a coken, for it went off, and it was pointed toward the house, and three of the visitors got salted. The minister was hit the worst, one piece of salt taking him in the hind leg, and the other in the back, and he yelled as though it was dynamite. I suppose when you shoot a man with salt, it smarts, like when you get corned beef brine on your chapped hands. They all yelled, and pa seemed to have been knocked silly, some way, for he pranced around and seemed to think he had killed them. He swore at the wire clothes line, and then I missed pa and heard a splash like when you throw a cat in the river, and then I thought of the cistern, and I went down and we took pa by the collar and pulled him out. O, he was awful damp. No, sir, it was no duel at all, but a accident, and I didn't have anything to do with it. The gun wasn't loaded to kill, and the salt only went through the skin, but those men did yell. May be it was my chum that stirred up the chickens, but I don't know. He has not commenced to lead a different life yet, and he might think it would make our folks sick if nothing occurred to make them pay attention. I think where a family has been having a good deal of exercise, the way our has, it hurts them to break off too suddenly. But the visitors went home, real quick, after we got pa out of the cistern, and the minister told ma he always felt when he was in our house, as though he was on the verge of a yawning crater, ready to be engulfed any minute, and he guessed he wouldn't come any more. Pa changed his clothes and told ma to have them wire clothes lines changed for ropelines. I think it is hard to suit pa, don't you?"

"O, your pa is all right. What he needs is rest. But why are you not working at the livery stable? You haven't been discharged, have you? And the grocery man laid a little lump of concentrated lye, that looked like maple sugar that had been broken, knowing the boy would nibble it.

"No, sir, I was not discharged, but when a livery man lends me a kicking horse to take my girl out riding, that settles it. I asked the boss if I couldn't have a quiet horse that would drive himself if I wound the lines around the whip, and he let me have one he said that would go all day without driving. You know how it is, when a fellow takes a girl out riding he don't want his mind occupied holding lines. Well, I got my girl in, and we went out on the White fish Bay road, and it was just before dark, and we rode along under the trees, and I wound the lines around the whip, and put one arm around my girl, and patted her under the chin with my other hand, and her mouth looked up at me and twinkled as much the whip, and put one arm around as to dare me to kiss her and I was all of a tremble, and then my hand wandered around by her ear and I drew her head up to me and gave her a smack. Say, that was no kind of a horse to give to a young fellow to take a girl out riding. Just as I smacked her I felt as though the buggy had been struck with a pile driver, and when I looked at the horse he was running away and kicking the buggy, and the lines were dragging on the ground. I was scared, I tell you. I wanted to jump out but my girl threw her arms around my neck and screamed, and said we would die together, and just as we were going to die the buggy struck a fence and the horse broke loose and went off, leaving us in the buggy, tumbled down by the dash board, but we were not hurt. The old horse stopped and went to chewing grass, and he looked up at me as though he wanted to say 'philopene.' I tried to catch him, but he wouldn't catch, and then we waited till dark and walked home, and I told the livery man what I thought of such treatment, and he said if had attended to my driving, and not kissed the girl, I would have been all right. He said I ought to have told him I wanted a horse that wouldn't shy at kissing, but how did I know I was going to get up courage to kiss her. A livery man ought to take it for granted that when a young fellow goes out with a girl he is going to kiss her, and give him a horse according. But I quit him at once. I won't work for a man that hasn't got sense. Gosh! What kind of maple sugar is that? Jerusalem, whew, give me some water. O, my, it is taking the skin off my mouth."

The grocery man got him some water and seemed sorry that the boy had taken the lump of concentrated lye by mistake, and when the boy went out the grocery man pounded his hands on his knees and laughed, and presently he went out in front of the store and found a sign, "Fresh Lett, been picked more'n a week, buffer'n trips."

QUARANTINE is to be established at Memphis next week. The labors of the Civil Service Commissioners are thus summed up by a Washington correspondent: In all they have made three appointments—a Chief Examiner, a stenographer and a messenger. The original appointee as messenger still holds on. One of those appointed Chief Examiner had to retire under the weight of public criticism, and the other is now on the defensive. There have been three different stenographers appointed and dismissed, and now the trio are off on a junket to reform the Civil Service in the principal cities of the Union, whereas, as a matter of fact, they have no power to do any thing under the law until after the 1st of July, when the humbug law takes effect.

THE FROST THAT KILLED THE PEACHES.

Burlington Hawkeye.

"There will be no peaches this year, by the way. Frost killed them all. Every solitary peach," the man on the box remarked, with a pathetic infection in his voice.

"Which frost?" savagely demanded the fat passenger.

"Same old frost, replied the man on the wood-box, sadly.

"Same frost that killed 'em last year, I suppose?" said the cross passenger.

"The same," the man on the wood-box asserted.

"And the one before that again?" the brakeman echoed.

"Same old frost," he said, that kills all the apples in Michigan every year, and destroys the ice crop on the Hudson. I've been a farmer myself, before I reformed, and I've known a snow-storm in Colorado, blight all the sugar maples in Vermont."
